During a residence of two years in our town, this gentleman has several times charm ed us with "the music which is divine." His con-concerts have always been well attended, and the last given by him on the occasion of the opening of the new Hall, was probably the most brilliant and fashionable fete that Carlisle has over witnessed .--Certainly if a good programme, a pleasant room, and above all, a sincere desire to please, are deserving of remuneration, then our friend should be greeted by full house. We sincerely hope that this effort will surpass all previous ones in the completeness of its success
