This welf was dug for salt, but it commenced blowing out oil, and continues its blowings at inter-vale up to the present time. Every fifth day it blows out about fourtoon gallons of oil. At the oil springs, wast quantities of oil are on-nuily gathered, by sinking pits in the earth thiry feet deep. The bed of oil lays parallel with the bed of the river, and is generally near five foot thick.— The oil, in its natural state, adheres to the sand, and can only separated from it by washing its head in water. The sand is washed by sinking a small pit as deep as the bed of the oil; the pit soon fills with water, when men go into it with broad hore, and when the sand by pulling it to them and push-ling it from them. While this is done, the oil loce its affinity for the sand at it immediately rises on the top of the water; it is then put into barrels and sent it warket. Some pits fiften for stares are head to a large its affinity for the sand and it is stared by a large it die and put into large ciatorns or hogsleard, where it purfice itself; it is then put into barrels and sent it market. Some pits fiften for stares have sold-ed one hondred and thirty five barrels of oil, but all are not alike rich. The oil is valuable for workness in the hereat, springlift; cott and brains; it burns tory well in lamps, and may be used in dressing itselter. Instead of fibs holl, but makes the leather tery well in lamps, and may be used in dressing leather, instead of fish oil, but makes the leather borous.

The Refiegade's Fate. The fate and political fortuines of Ex. Goverhof Johnston and Christian Myers are apt and forcible Illustrations that while men may how the treasen that aids their schemes, they invariably despise the traitor. Both these filen came from the same district —both are renegades from the Democratic party, and both have sank into a quiet political grave from which no ordinary coruse of human events on fo-duract theth — they will out live the epidemeral great-files with which their treason invested them. In the cases of Myers, both partices might learn a useful leason, viz: that a renegade has a cormorant appetite, and is always doaily pürchased. Show us at political renegade, and we will show you a man whose thirst for office is as unquenchable as the firce of Vesuvies. The bistory of the gentleman in ques-tion is well known. Ho was elected to the Senate san tindependent, and finding that be had the casting vois in that body lis set a price dpon him while the compact was, we do not know; but there is to bilter to file that it was fulfilled; but Myers demanded more that the dond pailed for, and on the out the Spaskership. This, however, was too bitter a fill for the cld line. Whigs, and they re-sitt of old Christian, and the low the fut for the sheat the could be filled the cld line. Whigs, and they re-decide Walked, of Eric. This was a personal in-suit for old Christian, and the low the fut motion in fillowing it, by voting on several party questions with the Democrates—the Federalites were alarmed, and the momination for Surveyor General followed. There is little due in following the the the tampaign, or reverting it the following the the disting admention to traitors—the bidderify as a working to renegades —and to his politic, but will simply content our-self by folnting to him as a living sdmention to traitors—the bidderify as a working to renegades —and to his political grave as a monorm of bidding'sbut et hopes and short-lived greatnes.—Hollid
