Here his briefly presented such sugges in the self such that the briefly presented such sugges in the self such that the product of the present, you can hardly fail to avail yourselves of the light, which the experience of the past casts appear the future.

The growth of our population has now brought us, in the destined career of our national history, to a point at which it well behoves us to expand our vision over the vast prospective.

hooves us to expand our vision over the vast prospective.

The, suscessive decennial returns of the census since the adoption of the constitution have revealed a law of stoody progressive development, which may be stated, in general feirms, as a deplication every quarter century. Carried forward from the point already reached, for only a short period of time as applicable to the existence of a nation, this law of progress, if unchecked, will bring us to almost incredible results.

A large allowance for a diminished proportional effect of emigration would not very materially reduce the estimate, while the increased werage duration of human life, known to have already resulted from the ecientific and bygienic improvements for the past fifty years will tend to keep up through the next fifty, or perhaps hundred, the same ratio of growth, which has been thus reveaked in our past progress, and to the influence of these causes may which has been thus revealed in our past progress, and to the influence of these causes may be adedd the influe of laboring classes from easiern Asia to the Pacific side of our possessions, together with the probable accession of the populations already existing in other parts of our hemisphere, which within the period in question, will feel, with yearly increasing force, the natural attraction of so vast, powerful, and prosperous a confederation of self-governing republics, and seek the privilege of being admitted within its safe and happy bosom, transferring with themselves, by a peaceful and healthy process of incorporation, spacious regions of virgin and exhaberant soil, which are destined to swarm with the fast growing and fast-spreading millions of our race.

These considerations seem fully to justify the presumption that the law of population above stated will continue to act with undithe presumption that he have on the hard safety stated will continue to act with undiminushe? effect, through at least the next half century, and that thousands of persons who have already arrived at maturity, and are now exercising the rights of freemen, will close their eyes be the spectacle of more than one hondred millions of population embraced within the majestic proportions of the American Union. It is not merely as an interesting topic of speculation that I present these views for your consideration. They have important practical bearings upon all the political duties we are called upon to perform Herestofor our system of government has worked on what may be termed a ministure scale, in comparison with the development, which it must asmay be termed a ministure scale, in companion with the development, which it must assume, within a future so near at hand, as scarcely to be beyond the present of the exact of the searce of the sear

It is evident that a confederation so vast and It is evident that a confederation so vast and so varied, both in numbers and in territorial extent, in habits and in interests, could only be kept in national cohesion by the stretest fidelity to the principles of the constitution, as understood by those who have addired to the most restricted construction of the powers granted by the people and the States. Intervised and applied according to these events. preted and applied according to these princi-ples, the great compact adapts itself with healthy ease and freedom to an unlimited exhealthy ease and freedom to an unlimited extension of that henign system of (decrative

The minimum of federal government, com-patible with the maintenance of national unity and efficient action in our relations with the rest of the world, should afford the rule and measures of construction of our powers under the general clauses of the constitution. A spirit of strict deference to the sovereign rights and dignity of every State, rather than a dis-position to subordinate the States into a proposition to subordinate the States into a pro-vincial relation to the central suthority, should characterize all our exercise of the respective powers temporarily vested in us as a sacred trust from the generous confidence of our con-stituents.

In like manner, as a manifestly indispense and the nervetuation of the Union ble condition of the perpetuation of the Un and of the realization of that magnifi-national future adverted to, does the duty some yearly stronger and clearer upon us, as citizens of the several States, to cultivate a fraternal and affections to spirit, language, and conduct, in regard to other States, and in re-lation to the varied interests, institutions and habits of sentiment and opinion, which may respectively characterize them. Mutual for-bearance, respect, and moninterference in our personal viction as citizens, and an enlarged exercise of the most liberal princicles of coin ectively characterize them. Mutual fo exercise of the most liberal principles of coin ity in the public dealings of State with State, whether is legislation or in the execution of laws, are the means to perpetuate that confidence and frastority, the decay of which a more political union, on so wast a scale could be still another point of view, is an impor-bentill another point of view, is an impor-bentill another point of view, is an impor-bentill another point of dimensions, to which our political system, with its corres-ponding machinery of government, is an rapid by expanding. With increased vigilance does it require us to cultivate the cardinal virtues of public furgality and official integrity and of public frugality and official integrity and purity. Public affairs ought to be so conducted that a settled conviction shall pervade the entire Union, that nothing short of the highest tone and standard of public morality marks every part of the administration and taggislation of the general government. Thus will the federal system, whatever expansion to need concerns and are again, continue increases.

will the federal system, whatever expansion tem and progress may give it, continue more and more deeply rooted in the love and confidence of the people.

That wise economy, which is as far removed from parsimony as from corrupt and corrupting extravagance—that single regard for the public good, which will frown upon all attempts to approach the treasury with for the public good, which the treasury inside the projects of private interests can under public pretexts—that sound administration, which in the legislative de-partment guards against the dangerous temptations incident to overflowing revenue, and in the executive, maintains an unsleep and in the executive, maintains an unsleeping watchfulness against the tondoncy of all national expenditure to extravagance—while they are admitted elementary political duties, may, I trust, be deemed as properly adverted to and urged, in view of the mere texpressive sense of that necessity, which is directly suggested by the considerations now presented.

Presented.
Since the adjournment of Congress, the Vice President of the United States has passed from the scenes of earth, without having entered upon the duties of the station to which he had been called by the voice of having entered upon the duties of the station to which he had been called by the voice of his countrymen. Having occupied, almost continuously, for more than thirty years, a seat in one or the other of the two Houses of Congress, and having, by his singular parity and wisdom, secured unbounded confidence and universal respect, his failing health was watched by the nation with painful solicitude. His loss to the country, ander all the circumstances, has been justly regarded as irreparable.

In compliance with the Act of Congress, of March 2, 1853, the cath of office was administrated to him on the 34th of that month, all Arladus estate, near Matanzas, in the island of Cola; but his etrangth gradually declined, and was hardly sufficient to onable him to return to his itome in Alabama, the adichemit day of April, in the seland of Curis, but his a strong in glaucary declined, and was hardly sufficient to enable him to return to his itome in Alabama, where on the eighteenth day of April, in the most caim and peaceful way, his long and emisently useful course was terminated.

Entertaining unlimited confidence in your intelligent and patriotic devotion to the public interest, and being conscious of no movified on my part which are not inseparable. The first honer, and advancement of my country, I. hope it may be my privilege to deserve and secure, not, only your cordial cooperation in great public measures, but also those relations of mutual confidence and regard, which it is always so desirable to regard, while have an members of co-ordinate branches of the Government.

MOST STARTLING CONSIDERATIONS I Reflections for the Thoughtful.

Strange that countless human beings exist and drag through life as do the beasts of the field, or the insects of the searth, winning no more thought or reflection than though the noble faculties of mind were not vouchasted to them.

Many such are humands and fathers, upon whom are dependent the health, the well-being, and the happiness of a confiding and affectionate wife, with perhaps a family of children.

HOW OFTEN IT HAPPENS THAT THE WIFE LINGERS FROM YEAR TO YEAR

WIFE LINGERS FROM YRAR TO YRAR

to the enjoyment of health.
She may not be an invalid confined to her bed, or even to her room; as her pride, ambition and energy induce and nerve her to take personal charge of her household, even when her health will not admit of it; but the is nevertheless perceptibly sinking from day to day, and always alling.
Thus, day alter day, and month after month temspire. Her health daily sinks, till finally even the

THE BLOOMING BRIDE.

But a few years ago in the flush of health and youth, and buoyancy of spirits, rapidly, and sppa-cently inexplicably, becomes a feeble, sickly, do-bilitated wife, with frame emeciated, nerves un-strung, spirits depressed, countenance bearing the impress of suffering, and an utter physical and mental prostration.

mental prostration.

Sometimes this deplorable change may and does arise from organic or constitutional causes. But oftener, by far oftener, to gross and inexcusable ignorance of the simplest and plainest rules of health as connected with the marriage state, the riolation of which entails disease, suffering and misery, not only to the wife, but often

And must this continue? Shall we be wise in all that concerns the cattle of our fields, our horses, our sheep, our cows, our oxen, the nature and character of the soil we possess, the toxture and character of the soil we possess, the toxture and quality of our goods and merchandiss; but in all that concerns and passions, subject to great dorangement, involving our future peace and happinessin all that concerns the health and wolfare of the wife of our affections, and the mether of our children; in all that concerns the mental and physical well being of those children, we should be immersed in the darkest and now a should be immersed in the darkest and now BENIGHTED IGNORANCE,

AS CULPABLE AS INEXCUSABLE! AS CULTABLE AS INEXCUSABLE!

How long shall this ignorance prevail so productive of its bitter fruits? How long shall the wife and mother be ignorant of the nature, character and causes of the various womb and sexual complaints, embittering her days by suffering—suffering often prolonged to years, eventuating in a complication of diseases utterly and hopelessly incurable? Shall we for ever close our eyes to the results of physicalogical science by which we may arrive at an understanding of curselves as men and women, subject to serious life-long enduring diseases, and perpetuating them to our children.
