A TOUCHING RELIC OF POMPRII.

In digging out the ruins of Pompeii, every In algeing out the same rolls of the ancient life, some witness of imperial luxury. For far the greatest part, the relies have a merely curious interest, they belong to archaeology, and find appropriate resting places in historical mucuus seums.

But there are some exceptions. Here for instance the excavator drops (an uninvited guest) upon a banquet; there he unexpectedly obtrudes himself into a tomb. In one place he finds a miser cowering on his heap; another shows him bones of dancing girls and broken instruments of music lying on the marble flopr. In the midst of the painted chambers, baths, balls, columns, fountains—among the splendid ovidences of maternal wealth, he sometimes sumables on a simple incident, a touching humanless on a simple incident, a touching human dences of maternal wealth, he sometimes stum-bles on a simple incident, a touching human story, such as strikes the imagination and sub-ject the mournful interest of the great disaster— as the sudden sight of a wounded soldier con-jures up the horrors of the field of battle. Such, to our mind, is the latest discovery of the excavators in this melaucholy field. It is a the excavators in this melancholy field. It is a group of skeletons in the act of fighting, accompanied by a dog. There are three human beings, one of them a young girl with gold rings and Jewels still on her ingers. The fugitives had a bag of gold and silver with themsantched up, no doubt, in hasts and darkness. "It the flery flood was on their track—and vain wealth, their flight—the are of one the above them and beyond, and the faithful dog turned back to share the fortunes of his mistress,

dying at hier feet.

Seen by the light of an incident, how vividly that night of horrors looms upon the sense!—Does not the imagination picture the little group in their own house, by the side of their evening fountain, languidly chattering over the day's events and of the unusual heat? Does it not bear with them the troubled swell of the waters in the bay? See, as they do, how the night comes down in sudden strangeness—how the sky opens overhead and flames break out, while corim, sand and melten rocks come pouring down? What movements, what emotion, what surprise! The seene grows darker every instant—the hollow monotony of the bay is lifted into yells and shricks—the air grows thick and hot with flames—and at the mountain's foot is heard the roll of the liquid lava. Jowels, household gods, gold and silver coin, are snatched upon the instant. No time to say farewell, darkness in front and fire behind, they rush into the streets—choked with falling houses, flying citizens. How find the way through passages which have no longer outlets? Confusion, danger, darkness, uproar, every where; the shouts of parted friends, the agony of the men struck down by falling columns—fear, madness, dispair unchained—here penury clutching gold it cannot keep—there, gluttony feeding on its final meal, phrenzy striking in the dark to forestail death. Through all, fancy hears the young girl's scream—the fire is on her jewelled hand. No time for thought—no pause—the flood rolls on, and wisdom, beauty, age and youth, with all the stories of their love, their hopes, their rank, wealth and greatness—all the once affluent life are gone forever. dying at her feet. Seen by the light of an incident, how vividly

A few hopeful youths spent the fore part of the Lord's day collecting together, in a vacant lot in Penn street, all the straggling ogs they could find about the city. They gathday a considerable force of porkers, which they opt together until the crowds of people returning from devotion came along. Suddenly the gates were thrown open, and the drove of excited swine driven furiously out upon the pavements among the people. The scene of confusion that followed may be readily imagined.—Silk dresses, spindle shanks, small chnes, parasols, kid gloves and filthy pigs, were indiscriminately commingled. The hogs were very dirty, and considerably scared, and ran in every direction, without caring whose finery they damaged or whose pins they uptripped. Many a gent found difficulty in suppressing the roughest kind of oaths: and many a fair one restrained the ebullitions of passion, only to allow them better vent when she got within doors. To Charleston, Massachusetts, one evening last week, two rufflans entered the shop of Mr. Samuel O. Pollard, just as he had blown out his last light and was leaving. They spoke a word to him about the employment of a journeyman, when they seized him violently, stuck a pitch plaster upon his mouth, tied his wrists close down to his ankles, robbed him of $580 in cash, set the shop on fire, locking the outer door, and carried off the key, evidently with intent to burn their victim alive. Mr. Pollard, however, worked his way down stairs, and by knocking against the door, called persons to his rescue. The fire-department saved the building.

THE MARRIAGE STATE: all Happiness and Health, or Misery of Sickness, attend it ?

MOST STARTLING CONSIDERATIONS! Reflections for the Thoughtful.

Strange that countless human beings exist and drag through life as do the beasts of the field, or the insects of the carth, evincing no more thought or reflection than though the noble faculties of mind were not vouchasfed to them. Many such are husbands and fathers, upon whom are dependent the health, the well-being, and the happiness of a confiding and affectionate wife, with perhaps a family of children.

IOW OFTEN IT HAPPENS THAT THE WIFE LINGERS FROM YEAR TO YEAR WIFE LINGERS FROM YEAR TO YEAR
Is that pitiable condition as not even for one day to feel the happy and exhiberating influence incident
so the happy and exhiberating influence incident
to the happy and the property of the may not be an invalid confined to her bed or even to her room, as her pride, ambition and energy induce and norve her to take personal charge of her household, even when her houth will not admit of it; but she is nevertheless perceptibly
sinking from day to day, and always alling.
Thus, day after day, and may alling.
Thus, day after day, and may all and ye ope of recovery no longer remains. And thus

THE BLOOMING BRIDE. dut a few years ago in the flush of health and youth, and buoyancy of spirits, rapidly, and apparently inexplicably, becomes a feeble, sickly, debilitated wife, with frame cuncitated, nerves unstrung, spirits depressed, countenance bearing the unpress of suffering, and an utter physical and anottal prestration.

montal prostration.

Sometimes this deplorable change may and does arise from organic or constitutional causes. But aftener, by far offener, to gross and inexcusable spnorance of the simplest and plainest rules of health as connected with the marriage state, the violation of which entails disease, suffering and misery, not only to the wife, but often "UNTO THE THIRD AND FOURTH GENERATION,"

And must this continue I Shall we be wise in all that concerns the cattle of our fields, our horses, our skeep, our cown, the nature and character of the soil we possess, the texture and character of the soil we possess, the texture and character of the soil we possess, the texture and character of the soil we possess, the texture and character of the soil we possess, with human functions and passions, subject to great derangement, involving our future pence and happinessin all that concerns the health and welfare of the wife of our affections, and the mother of our children, in all that concerns the mental and physical well being of thuse children, we should be immerced in the darkest and most.

BENIGHTED IGNORANCE.

BENIGHTED IGNORANCE. BENIGHTED IGNORANCE,

AS CULPABLE AS INEXCUSABLE!

How long shall this ignorance prevail so productive of its bitter fruits! I law long shall the wife and mother be ignorant of the nature, character and causes of the various womb and sexual complaints, embittering her days by suffering—suffering often prolonged to years, eventuating in a complication of diseases utterly and hopelessly incurable? Shall we for over closs our eyes to the results of physical production of the process of the proposition of the production of the production of the proposition of th
