Gov. Bigler's Administration

There are certain distinctive features in the administration of our present worthy Executive, which have never received that degree of applause which they justly merit. Their justice and impartiality secured their approval without any considerable opposition, and they have been allowed to pass without scarcely any note or comment, but on looking back to them, no one can fail to be struck with their wisdom. He has made it an unvariable rule, to insist upon the adoption of the Individual Liability clause in every charter which has passed since. Heretofore this has been rigidly insisted upon by some of his Democratic predecessors in Bank Charters; but he has masterly the rule of universal application to all bodies seeking corporate powers for business purposes. It is just as proper that a dozen or a hundred men who banded together, should pay the same whether their speculation prove profitable or the reverse, as that one man should do so. And it is just as proper that manufacturing, mining, mechanical, or other corporations should be held to the same standard. The protection of the masses imperatively required the adoption of this policy, and it is not strange that the masses should be so strongly in favor of it. It is not strange that it did not contain this protective feature. One of the most essential measures for the protection of the masses was the "Protecting American Industry." It is to make certain provisions against the industrial man being treated on the same footing as the dishonest speculator, which was the object of the bill. Members of companies individually liable for the debts their corporations contract. The other feature to which we allude is the complete destruction of the whole, vice system of omnibus legislation under cover of which, so many iniquities have been perpetrated by our Pennsylvania Legislature. In Gov. Bigler's last annual message, he set his face sternly against this whole system, and the result is, that the people of this State have seen the laws of the last session come to be published, that for the first time for many years, every act is confined to its own class, and the object and character of the bill is expressed in its title. This reform was most imperatively demanded, and its adoption will have the effect of restoring our Legislature to its proper position, and of exposing infamously those who have taken advantage of the system to do wrong, for the sake of securing the passage of the laws they felt interested in. There are advantages in the reform which will readily suggest themselves to every reader of our paper. Gov. Bigler richly deserves the thanks of honest men of all parties.—Columbian Democrat.

The Women at a Turkish Bazaar

A correspondent writes from Constantinople, under date of May 1st, "Visit to the Sweet Waters of Europe are now at an end, and the fashionable of the Turkish world will soon have to resort to the more distant Asia, at some distance up the Bosphorus, nearly opposite the Bosphorus. An amusing scene took place at the Bosphorus, where a gallant English gentleman was detained at a distance of a few words to some fair inmate of the bazaar. He asked a friend to write down for him some complimentary phrases in the Turkish tongue, such as "You are very pretty," "I love you," and so on. Armed with this document, he visited the Bosphorus, and selecting the prettiest face he could find, seated in the carriage window, and proceeded to favor the lady with the contents of the paper, which he drew from his waistcoat. The lady, however, from the cushions betrayed her horror at this audacity. They rushed up and attempted to drag him away. He realized the danger, and fled much pleased at the discovery of his error. In fact, the fair creatures are much more independent than you, the summary proceedings of the Turkish Government, and the ladies have no longer before their eyes the traditional terrors of the sack and the Bosphorus.

The Milk Tree

In a narrative of travels on the Amazon and Rio Negro, just published, Mr. Wallace describes an extraordinary tree called the milk tree, which was one of the first wonders he saw near Para. The fruit is eatable and full of a very juicy pulp, and is surrounded by a vegetable milk, which exudes in abundance when the bark is cut. It is in abundance the consistency of milk, and of a very peculiar taste, could hardly be distinguished from the natural product of the cow. Mr. Leavens ordered a man to tap some logs that had lain in the yard nearly a month, and to add to the quantity a quart of milk, and in a minute the rich sap was running out in abundance. It was collected in a basin, diluted with water, strained and brought up at tea time and at breakfast the next morning. The peculiar flavor of the milk seemed to improve the quality of the tea, and gave it a good color and a rich bouquet. It was equally good for the coffee. The milk is also used as it is said to be as durable as that made use of by carpenters.

A Lofly Cataract

Captain Walker, of the U. S. Surveying Expedition, gives the account in the San Diego Herald, of a wonderful cataract which he discovered in his expedition. "On the Upper Virgin River are two very remarkable falls. One of them, two hundred miles from its mouth, is the most stupendous cataract in the world. It falls in a narrow, broken sheet a distance of full one thousand feet! The river some distance above, traverses a pretty level valley, and then runs through a close forest here the current breaks into rapids. The mountain seems to run directly across the river. At the fall, the stream is narrowed to thirty or forty yards, while the kenyon rises on either side in almost perpendicular cliffs to a height of two thousand feet. It pent up steep rushes on to the brink of the precipice, leaps over the falls with scarce a break, into the vast abyss below. "About thirty miles above, there is another magnificent fall. Here the river plunges over the cliff, falls a distance of two or three hundred feet, and breaks into a myriad of fragments upon a projecting ledge beneath. The water here is not so great as the other, it is more picturesque, from the multitude of smaller cataracts into which it is divided by the rocks."

The Tomb of Odoacer

It is stated in a letter, quoted by the Parlamento of Turin, of the 28th, that the tomb of Odoacer, King of the Heruli, has been discovered at Ravenna by some workmen, who, it appears, found the body encased in a suit of armor of gold, which they broke into pieces and secretly sold. The body was, however, soon discovered, and further investigation has led to the discovery of some other precious objects which had been buried in the sepulchre, and of a monumental inscription confirming the fact of its being the tomb of Odoacer.

A Great Speech

The greatest speech on record is the following, describing the destruction of a meeting house by accident. "There was a meeting house in your midst like a grizzly bear in a corn-field. Now, none so poor to do it reverence! It was of England, and was called by Shovel, the redoubtable admiral. There was a Fox, the real original Friend. There was a Saxe, the poet of Nuremberg, and the friend of Luther. There was the medical hero and the anatomical Partridge, the powerful Gifford and the gentle Bloomfield. There were Savage and many others—all sons of Odoacer's hand. For example, the lightning and energies into new channels.—Household Words.

A SENSIBLE VIEW

The Philadelphia correspondent of the Pennsylvania Patriot takes a very sensible view of the issue attempted to be raised by the ultra Prohibition Law advocates, between Pollock and Bigler. While, says the paper, Mr. Pollock, the whig candidate for Governor, swallows down all the puritan features of the Old Maine Liquor Law, without at all understanding it, never stopping to analyze its provisions, or its antidotes, Governor Bigler, like a shrewd statesman, says: "I sincerely deplore the evils of intemperance, and I am now willing, as I always have been, to sanction any measure to mitigate, and if possible entirely remove the vice, but I cannot pledge myself to sanction a law, the details of which I have not seen. The terms of the constitution, and the public good, seem to forbid this course on the part of an Executive. He should be free to judge of the constitutionality and wisdom of a proposed law after having fully examined and considered its principles."

Attention Dyspeptics!

THOSE who have been afflicted for years, with this loathsome and distressing complaint, will find relief in the public without relief. We say to you, try "Bocher's Anti-Dyspeptic," and you will soon be convinced of its great superiority over every other preparation. We could give you many certificates corroborating our assertion, but a single trial is worth more than all. This remedy is prepared and sold at the Drug Store of South Hanover Street, a few doors south of the Court-house, Carlsruhe, June 15, 1854.

THE MARRIAGE STATE

Reflections for the Thoughtful. Strange that people human beings exist and drag through life as to the beasts of the field, or the insects of the earth, evading no more thought or reflection than though the noble faculties of mind were not vouchsafed to them. Many such husbands and fathers, who are dependent on the health, the well-being, and the happiness of a confiding and affectionate wife, with perhaps a family of children. NOW OFFER IT HERETOFORE THAT THE WIFE LINGER FROM YEAR TO YEAR In this pitiable condition as not even for one day to feel the happy and exhilarating influence incident to the enjoyment of health. She may not be so invited to her bed, or to her room; as her physical, and energy and nerve fail to take personal charge of her household, even when her health will not admit of it; but she is nevertheless perceptibly sinking from day to day, and always falling. The only way to her relief, and to her recovery, is to be supplied with the latest novelties of Fine White and Gold Band, English, French China sets of Tea ware, and other varieties of useful and fine fancy China ware, including Teas, Plates, Yases, Fruit Dishes, Coffee-cups, &c. &c. GLASSWARE, embracing bottles, dishes, molasses cans, sugar bowls, large saloons, and fine glass, wine, water and egg glasses, and other useful articles. WILLOW AND CEDAR WARE, among which are tubs, chairs, water pails, men's, women's, market baskets, traveling baskets, as well as every variety of useful and fine fancy China ware, including Teas, Plates, Yases, Fruit Dishes, Coffee-cups, &c. &c.
