Let That Trunk Alone. An old lady who resides in Sandwick was aken ill a few days since, and to all appearances died. She had been living alone for some time, and it was thought she had a good deal of money stowed away in some secret corner, as she had always been well to do in the world.—The neighbors attended her during her illness, and when she ind ceased to breathe, made preparations to perform the last office to the dead. The bedy was measured for the coffin by the undertaker, who went about his work. The corpse was washed, and made ready for the burial; yet, the ladies, in performing these duties, noticed that the body was unusually limber, and did not exhibit the rigidity of corpses in general, after that the body was unusually limber, and did not exhibit the rigidity of corpses in general, after being dead for only half an hour. For the purpose of obtaining some clean linen, which was known to be locked up in a large trunk in a corner of the room, one of the women got the key and wont to open it. The instant the lid of the trunk was heard to grate on its hinges, up popped the old woman in bed, like the "rale ould Irish gentleman" of the song, and screeched out, "Let that trunk alone!" The lid of the song and screeched out, "Let that trunk alone!" The lid of the song and screeched out, "Let that trunk alone!" The lid of the song and screeched out, "Let that trunk alone!" The lid of the trunk was dropped like a het potato, and with a universal cry of surprise, the neighbors gazed upon the "live corpse" berore them. The nervous twitching of the lips, and the angry flashes from the little grey eyes, was sufficient evidence that their services were not needed longer, and with morriment depicted upon their countenances they left. The undertaker was reluctantly compelled to give up his job, and the funeral was postponed sine die! The old woman is alive wat well and declares that she was in a trunce. compelled to give up mayon, and was postponed sine die! The old woman is alive was postponed sind diel. The old woman is alive and well, and declares that she was in a trance; but it is the general opinion of the neighbors that she was only playing "possum."

Singular Trial by Court Martial.

A singular trial by Court Martial has just taken place at Algiers. The trial will rank among the causes of the defence adopted by the accused. The court martial was assembled to try a Cadi named El Kharoubi, for the murder of a young Arab, named Si Mohammed ben Djellai. The accused, since 1846, has been chief of the tribe of Cheebibia, of the district of Tenes. In that capacity he has rendered valuable service to the French; though his tribe is one of the most turbulent in the country, and though it assassinated his predecessor, and has more than once attempted to murder him, he has succeeded in reducing it to tolerable order. Some time ago Si Mohammed, who belongs to the tribe, entered his service; and after a while it was rumored that he had established a criminal connexion with the Cadi's wife. The Cadi discharged him, but it is not known whether it was because he had heard of the improper connexions with his wife, or because he had other reasons to be dissatisfied with him. Under a variety of pretexts Mohammed returned to the Cadi's house. On the last occusion he went there during the Cadi's absence. On hearing of it he mounted his horse, and galloped after the destroyer of his peace. When he overtook Si Mohammed he cried, "Soo of a dealer in bournous, did not forbid you to appreach my bouse!" Si Mohammed presented his pistol, but quick as lighting, the Cadi took aim with his gun and shot him dead.

Singular Trial by Court Martial.

Immediately after this, the Cadt, who though he had only committed as act to legitimate vengence, galloyed off to the chief of the Aral beamean, and told what he had done. The ac teamenn, and told what he had done. The accused, after the evidence was given, was called on for his defence, and said, with great simplicity. This man was in my service, he deceived ma, and I discharged him. He then endeavored by all means he would, to twing me into continuous he ouraged my honer, and dared to say to me—You are only a woma, and I do not fairly you? Thus is why I hilled ham—I who fairly hope here here never killed ham—I who have annly killed your enemies, and by your ordars—for I have no other friends, no other enemies than yours: and I are ready, as they ardiers—for I have no other friends, no other mannis than proms: and I am ready, as they know well, to strike when you command? Nevertheless, to the family of the man I have justly of aim I office the prace of blood? Let the body off any memy be weighed in scales, and I will give an equal amount in money? But if I have affinited you. I offer you a different reparation. Followed by not therefore equipped and armed at my rost. I will go to war with your ensemies, and promise to bring you a hundred heads! If touch to warding you shall take mine? The tribinal, taking into consideration that the Cadi had received gross provocation, and that the Cadi had received gross provocation, and that the contours of his country rendered his vengeance to a certain extent justifiable, or, at least, exempaile, acquitted him and ordered him to resume his ampisarrial functions.

The Bedford Circusche (Whip) makes the fol-lowing remarks in reference to the Know-Noth-ing movement. What the editorsays, is so well said, and to the point, that we transfer it to our said, and to the point, that we transfer it to our columns:

"We fully agree that a political party which aims at prescribing a portion of our citizens on second of their religious opinions, is not only opposed to the very spirit of our institutions, but unworthy the sympathy of every honest American mind. The organs of this new party arow that one of their objects is to put down Poperty, and in order fully to inflame the minds of the prejudiced and ignorant, tales are put in circulation against Catholics destinate of the slightest foundation in truth, witness the ridiculous stories of the boxes of muskets at Canton and Emmitaburg. A party that aims at carrying into effect such a principle as that of proscription of a large body of American citizens because of their attachment to any particular religious belief, and they are such expressions. tion of a large body of American citizens because of their attachment to any particular religious belief, and that uses such weapons as those to which we have alluded, cannot stand long borre the intelligence of the men of this day and generation. The novelty, and the success that has hitherto attended them, may attract for a brief period, but to suppose for a moment that their principles can ever be engrafted in the legislation of the country, is a libel upon American Republicanism."

How An Ishian Can Die.—A touching instance of this characteristic trait occurred at the late engagement between a small war party of the Chippewas and a greatly superior party of Sioux, near Gedar Island Lake. The Chippewas, who were en route for a sculping foray upon the Sioux villages on the Minnesota, here foil into an ambuscade, and the first notice of far arms from a thicket. Four of the number foil dead in their tracks. Another, named the War Cloud, a loading brave, had a leg broken by a bullet. His contracts were loth to leave him, and while his assallants were re-loading their guns, attempted to carry him along with them to where they could get the shelter of a thicket, a short distance in the rear. But he commanded them to leave him, telling them that he would show his enemies how a Chippewa could die. At his request, they scated him on a log, with his back leaning against a tree. He chen commonced painting his face and singing his death song. As his enemies approached him he only sang a louder and a liveller strain, and when several had gathered around him, flourishing their scalping knives, and serecelling forth their demonical yells of exultation, not a look or a gosture manifested that he was even aware of their presence. At length they seed him and tore the scalp from his head. Still seated with his back against a large tree, they commenced shooting their arrows into the trunk around his head, grazing his cars, neck, &c., until they literally pinned him fast, without having once touched a vital part. Yet our heroreming to chaunt his deflant strain, and although one of the number flourished his recking scalp before his eyes, still not a single expression of his countenance could be observed to change. At last one of the number approached him with a tomahawk, which after a few unheeded flourishes he buried in the capitive's skull, who sank in death with the song still upon his lips. He had indeed succeeded well in teaching his enemies whom on the first hear and a flately women calm quietly down into How AN INDIAN CAN DIE .- A touching in-
