Fate of Sir John Frinklin Further Parliculars.

Lata Montreal papers contain some details concerning the discovery of Sir John Franklin's party, jobtained by Dr. Rise from the Esquimaux. The report is as follows:

In the spring of 1850 a party of white ment amounting to about forty, were seen travelling southward over the ice, and dragging boats with them, by some Esquimaux. None of the party could speak the native language intelligibly, but by signs the natives were made to understand that their ships had been crushed by ice, and that the whites were now going to where they expected to find deer to shoot.

From the appearance of the men, all of whom, except one chief officer, looked thin; they were supposed to be getting short of provisions, and they purchased a scal from the natices.

At a later date, during the same season, bits previous to the disruption of the ice, the bodies of about thirty white persons were discovered on the continent, and five more on an island near it. About a long day's journey—say 35 or 40 miles—to the northwest of a large stream which can be no other than Capt. Back's Great Fish river, as its description, and that of the low shore in the neighborhood of Point Ogle and Montreal island, agree with that of Sir George Back's.

Some of the bodies had been buried, some were in tents, others under a beat that had been turned over to form shelter, and several lay scattered about in different directions. Of those found on the island, one was supposed to have been an officer, as he had a telescope strapped over his shoulder, and his double-barreled gun lay underneath him. From the mutilated state of many of the corpses, and the contents of the kettle, it is evident that the party had been driven to the last resource—'cannibalism'—ar greaten or virgunishing fire—ar Evel tripe greaten or virgunishing fire—ar Evel tripe greaten or virgunishing fire—ar Evel tripe greaten or the properties of the corpuse of a large stream where the party had been the party of the corpuse of the corpuse of the c

There appears to have been an abundant stock of ammunition, as the powder was emptied in a heap on the ground by the natives out of the cases containing it, and a quantity of ball and shot was found below highwater mark, having been left on the ice close to the beach. There must have been a number of watches, telescopes, compasses, guns, &c., all of which appear to have been broken up as Dr. Rae saw pieces of these different articles with the Esquimanx, together with some silver spoons and forks. As many of which as could be obtained were purchased, and a list of the most important of the relies found with the drawings of others, were to be forwarded to London.

CHINESE INSURRECTION .- The Chinese robel CHINESE INSURECTION.—The Chinese robed chief has written a letter to the residents of Hong Kong, signifying his pleasure to them.—He terms them "staves and foreign" devils," says they are but "fowls, apes and dogs by kind," ignorant of the fine relations, and not snsceptible of civilization. He demands the authorities to release such of his people as are in prisons, and treat Chinese gentlemen with respect. He says:

and treat Chinese gentlemen with respect. He says:

1, the King, have spoken of war, and have talked of the movements of troops. We have many thousand guns of divine power, weighing millions of pounds. We have many myriad vessels 100 chango in length, which, without wind, can convey themselves hence to the three Kinak provinces. On a lucky day, which we shall select, we shall descend straight on the province of Canton, and in the autumn shall send you a challenge to fight. Our clustering standards shall shade the nine heavens, and with numberless swords and spears we shall enclose the seas. Our divine fire shall consume your ships, our troops your dwellings; our divine weapons shall flash to the pole, and our divine youths and maidens shall be as thunder shaking the skies.
