The Goose Question.—A large collection of sprove the propriety and expediency of your plan, but bid you covidially 'God speed ! with it.

I will not, though strongly tempted, advert to the best practical course, to uphold the Union. They will necessarily eagage the deliberations of the 'Clubs,' when formed. But there is one comprehensive, injunction which you will parson me fot thinking important enough, however crite, to be repeated here—Look steadily to the Constitution, and see that its provisions be strictly executed. That instrument involves the being of the Union. The Constitution violated, the Union lingers only upon sufferance; the Constitution enforced, the 'Union flourishes Will perennial vigor. I do not question that a Union existed before the Constitution was framed; but it was a haling; half way, poweres Union; a Union dragging its slow length along through the rovolution, and secreely kept-alive even by the necessities and enthusiasm of those from times. Such a Union could not encounter the emergencies of one-evating and everish jeace, and its continuance would have kept-alive for times. Such a Union could not encounter the emergencies of one-evating and everish jeace, and its continuance would have kept-alive for times. Such a Union of the Constitution; in contrast of the Union of the Constitution was from the Union of the Constitution; in contrast of the Union of the Constitution; in contrast of the Constitution of the Constitution; in contrast of religious legislation: Resp to them as men who know on what the interests, tranquilty, freedom and powers of the country truly depend, and are resolved not to see them sacrified or endangered by overwought and transitory excitements—do this through the instrumentalities year contemplate starting, and you will flave done the test that private, patriotic citizens can do to perpetuate the glorious Union.

It is possible that you may liave noticed how partially I have mingled in political controversies since leaving the Vice Presidency, in March, 1840. With the expeditor, lift, of an anxious effort to sustain, what is known as the Compromise of 1850, and, second, of a like effort on behalf of the Democratic candidate of 1852, I have been led, by considerations not worth mentioning to indules in at least comparative rettrement. I refer to this, not only as an excusae to you for not replying in more ample detail, but also in order to give to the few sentiments I have expressed their rightful force, as offspring of cool and unimpassioned reflection.

I am, dear sir, your fellow-citizen and friend, Or. Alfarapp E. Wangur. The Phil

Honnyith Case OF INPANTICIDE. -The Philadelphia Inquirer of Sunday, gives the particulars of the most horrible murder that has come to our knowledge for some time. It says:

large of the most horrible mirder that has come to our knowledge for some time. It says:

"At a late hour on Smiday oreining, we were informed by one of the mayor's police, that there had been a most horrible murder committed—the perpetrator of which had been arrested, and committed to prison, but our information reduced the decise of the terrible affair by the decise of the terrible affair of "The prisoners" name is framelia Meyers.

She is about twenty two or keenty-three years of age—good looking, but, for, years past, has borne rather an uncaviable repution among the citizens of Nicetown. She has resided for some time past with Mr. Thomas Rice, a farmer on the Nicetown Lane, a short distance above its information with the Rising Sun Lake. She was taken into custody on Sunday afternoon by two of the mayor's special officers, who destruced by scorete, and taken before the mayor, who after a private hearing committed her to prison for a further investigation yesterday afternoon the color of the mayor afternoon at further investigation yesterday afternoon the control of the color of the color
