They said they came to have a take with us; and a half-breed, shalf-educated boy, undertook to interpret for us, wWhite Oow," an erator chief, six fee! in height, and cowered with sears, addressed us in substance: "Friend, we are now little—very small. We were once great, and feared not the Sioux, nor any foc. We had abundance of game, and knew no want; we were content and happy, and our youing men and women sported on the green grass under the shade of our own forests. The white man came among us; he brought the fatal fire-water, and incurable discases. We believed the pale faces were sont by the Great Spirit, and we listened to them. My people have learned all the bad things of the white men, but they could not understand all the good that they spoke of. The great spirit became offended, and killed our people by great numbers. He sont our enemies upon us, who also killed our kindred and warriors. He drove away our flocks of game, and now we are nothing. The wind on the prairie will almost blow us away. Our horses are taken from us, we have nothing to eat; our hearts fall us; we are men in the proper of the standard of th

MOURNFUL EVENTS.—The N. O. Christian Advocate, recoulty in recapitulating the heavy misfortunes that have befallen our nation during the present year, sums up the mournful tale in lapguage as full of truth as the year has been of memorable events:

"We sing of mercy and judgment. The year past will be signal in history for its disasters. Drought, in the best agricultural districts, cutting off millions of produce. Fire in cities and forests—mountains in a blaze. Cholera invading from the sea-coast to the interior.—Disasters by railroads, and greater ones by rivers and by sea. Sailing vessels lost; and stamers, huge and staunch, foundering midcean, or in tempting view of shore, or burning ocean, or in tempting view of shore, or burning in hopeless distance of rescue. Thousands of lives lost, moaning and wailing fill all the land. Such ovents show us that God does not need such over a show us that God does not need wars; fos of steel and iron, serried ranks of invading hosts and armed fleets, like those that distress the other hemisphere, in order to reduce the proud to humility, or to make his soveress.

JAH. ANY SEMENTS IN INDIANA.—According to the Lafayette (Ind.) Journal, the prisoners in the jail at that place have a jolly good time every day. It says:

"Through the kindness of the jailor they have been provided with a violin, one of the number being a good player, they have frequent colillion parties or stag dances, which have the advantage of being, 'select,' without the stiffeness and formality peculiar to such entertainments in higher circles." They have recently made a valuable aquisition to their number.

An itenerant showman, who had fallen into the clutches of the law, and, owing to the tightness of the money market, was unable to pay clutches of the law, and, owing to the tightness of the money market, was unable to pay the cost, was eaged to satisfy the insulted dignity of the State. Process of Making Suor.—The pilg iron lead is carried to the tower by windlass and cain, worked by steam, it is then put in a furnace; kept constantly burning night and day, worked by two sets of men—one for the fires, and two to pour the melted lead into the strainers. After passing the strainers it falls a distance of 150 feet, the passage through the air giving the shot their shapes or form. They fall into a large tule or busin of water. Here a man is engaged dipping them out with a ladle and throwing them on an inclined plain, down which they run to a drum, heated by the steam and worked by machinery, so as to dry the shot; when dry they are passed into a revolving drum, which stops by action of machinery every five minutes, for polishing them; from the drum they are thrown into a hopper, and from this pass over a series of inclined plaines; where the descrived and are acrived off, and then through sloves into drawers, where they are assorted by for city a shot are carried off, and then through sloves into drawers, where they are assorted by action of machinery or sieves; then into the large boxes; from which they are taken and put in sacks, weighed and are ready for use.
