POTATORS AND PROCENY.

Dr. Mackensia tells with great good humor an enecticle in the New York Union, which we before heard verbally. It is all about a cortain Lady Middleton, who contrary to her most cardet which was unblessed with any children. After an absence of saveral years with her lings ord in England, also returned with him to reside, for a short time, on one of their Irish estates. As the carriage drove up to the mansion, she noticed several ince looking clildren about the gate, and having learned, that their mother was the wife of the gate porter, she determined to interrogate her relative to the cause of her way down to the porter longe, and commenced her inquiries!

"Whose children are these, my good woman?"

"Whose children are those, my good woman?"

"All my own, my good lady."

"What! three infahis of the same ago?"

"Yos; my lady, I had three the last time."

"How long are you married?"

"Three years, your ladyship."

"At how many children have you?"

"Seven, my lady."

At last came the quistion of questions how sheecame to have the quistion of questions how sheecame to have the quistion for war and, not well knowing low to wrap up in delicate words her idea of cause and effect, blushed and grow confused, and at last for want of something betten to say, replied—

"I think it must be the potatock, my lady."

This unfolded a theory of population quite new to lady Mr, who eagerly demanded—

"The potatoes! Do you cat much of them?"

"Oh, yes, lady, very seldom we have bread, and so takes potatoes all the year round."

Greatly agitated with her new information, the lady further asked—

"And where do you get the potatoes?"

Greatly agitated with her new information, the Lady further asked—

"And where do you get the potatoes?"

"We grow them in our little garden, my lady, sure Pat tills it!?

"Well," said Lady Middleton, "send me np cart load of these potatoes, and the steward shall pay you well for them."

Shortly after her ladyship, rose to leave the house, and indeed had left it, when the matron was discharged by the part the great was the part the great and left it, when the matron.

an after her, and blushing as she put the ques ion, asked...

"Ah, then, my lady, is it to have children that on want to get the load of polatoes?"

It was the lady's turn to blush, as she con-fossed that it was.

"Because I'm thinkin," my lady, in that case
Pat had better take the potatoes to you himself !

Kissing Under Duress.

Kissing linder. Duress.

The following incident developes a mode of enforcement of the claims of personal respect, through the medium of constrained attention to a third party, which, to say the least of it, is peculiar. Of its perfect success, however, in the present instance; we have the proof in our personal experience.

In the days when we were young—oh! would I were a boy again!"—we made one of a happy throng of youngsters, who, after having spent a delightful attention in the various dutles and amusements usually incident to an old-fashioned 'quilting in the country'—such as rolling up, toting water, threading needles, &c.—found themselves with the quilt out, the room cleared and swept, the chairs all placed against the walls, and everything in 'readiness for a regular, out-and-out quilting frolic. against the walls, and everything in readiness for a regular, out-and-out quilting frolic.

Our party, in addition to the boys and girls, included several married persons, some older and some younger, most of whom had just dropped in to see the young folks enjoy themselves, and to partake of the creature comforts which usually constitute an important feature in the programme on such occasions. But among them were John B——— and his newly wadded wite, the latter of whom, by-the-by was scarcely sixteen, and decidedly the prettiest girl in the room. Her husband was a man of about five and twenty, near six feet high, of about five and twenty, near six feet high, and withal had the reputation of being the 'best man' in the district, and ready at short puties to prove it. 'best man' in the district, and ready available notice to prove it.

After the usual preliminaries in the way of small talk and compliments, just to wear off foolish embarrassuent, the order of the evening commenced with the play called 'Contentment,' and many a pawn was paid and faithfully redeemed—not by reneating verses of poetry. and many a pawn was paid and faithfully redeemed—not by repeating verses of poetry, standing five minutes with the face to the wall, walking three times around the room blindfolded, or any such tame performances as are commonly practiced in the mora refined circles of the cities, which only serve to remind one of the cities, which only serve to remind one of the tetre times in the country, but in the primative way, by good old-fashioned, honest kissing, that sounded out clear and distinct, like the cracking of a wagon whip, 'set the old folks' mouths to watering, and made old Mrs. Deal whisper to Mrs. Skeleton that 'She didn't see why a married woman couldn't enjoy plays why a married woman couldn't enjoy plays just as well as single gals; for her part, she didn't see no difference; becouse she was old, it waru't no reason she wouldn't feel

The sport continued for sometime, the boys ever and anon slyly peeping at the pretty face of Mrs. B——, and only wishing they could select her as a partner, but restrained by the fear that her stalwart husband might think proper to resent such a liberty with his new bride; in consequence of which latter impression, she was, for the time being, a mere wall flower.

This state of things was observed by John, who, construing this lack of attention to one whom he thought as deserving as any, into a want of proper respect towards himself, determined it should not longer pass unnoticed. So rolling up his sleeves, he stepped into the middle of the room, and in a tone of voice that at once secured marked attention, said:

Gentlemen, I've been a noticing how things we been working here for sometime, and I have been working here for sometime, and I aint half satisfied. I don't want to raise a fuss,

'What's the matter, John ?' inquired a half What's the matter, John? inquired a half dozen of us. What do you mean? Have I done any thing to hurt'your feelings? Yes, you have; all of you have hurt my feelings? and I've just got this to say about it; Here's every gal in the room has been kissed mightly near a dozen times apiace and there's my wife, who I consider just as likely as any of em, has not had a single kiss to-night; and I just tell you now, if she don't get as many kisses the balance of the time as any gal in the room, the man that slights her has got me to fight—that's all. Now go ahead with your plays!

plays!'
If Mrs. B——— was slighted during the balance of the evening, we signed uning intera-or ourselves, we knew John had no fault to find with us individually, for any neglect on our part,—Columbus Inquirer.

Ancedote.

We find in an exchange paper an anecdote of the late Win. Writ, that is too good to be lost. Wirt's life of Patrick Henry. as every reader of that hiegraphy knows, is excessive in its laudation of the great Virginia orator; in fact, it may well be doubted whether the man ever lived to whom such swelling and varied strains of penegyric could bejustly applied, as Wirt continually resorts to in depicting the character of Henry.

In illustration of this trait the following story current in Eastern Virginia, said to be true to the letter, is told.

Writ was once ongaged in the trial of a story current in Eastern Virginia, said to be true to the letter, is told.

Writ was once engaged in the trial of a cause in which one of the most material witnesses on the other side was notorious for his guilbility. By way of showing up this trait in the witness, and thus impairing his testimony, Wirt asked him if he had eyer read Riley's Narrative, and if so, whether he thought it was true. "Oh, yes." said the witness, "I've read it, and I believe every word of it!"—The counsel on the other side, perceiving the divantage gained by his opponent, here interposed the question:—"Did you ever read Wirt's life of Henry, and if so, do you believe it is, true?"—"I have read-it," replied the simple witness, "bu. I can't say. I hileve it: no, no, that's more than I can swallow!" Wirt was "essent illy illored."

DR. HUNTER'S, Medical Manuel' and Hand Book for the Afflicted—containing an outline of the origin, progress, treatment and cure of every form of, disease contracted by promiscuous sexual intercourse, by self-abuse or by sexual access, with advice for their provention. Written a familiar style, avoiding all medical technicalities, and everything that would offend the ear of decency; with an outline of complaints incident to Females, from the result of some twenty years' successful practice, exclusively devoted to the cure of diseases of a delicate or private nature.

To which is added receipts for the cure of the above diseases, and a treatise on the causes, symptoms and cure of the Fever and Ague.

Testimony of The Professor, of Obstetres in Fens. Cellegt, Philadelphia—"DR. HUNTER'S MEDICAL MANUEL."—The justice of this work; unlike the impority of those who advertise to circ the diseases of which it treats is a graduate. of one of the best Celleges in the United States. It affords not pleasure to recommend him to the udiortunate, or to the victim of malpractice, as a successful and experienced practitioner, in whose honor and integrity they may place the greatest confidence.
