If public opinion were only enlightened on this subject, so as to protect all insectivorous birds, we should soon cease to complain of curculios, weavils, peach tree and apple tree borers, peabugs, and a hundred garden birds, flies, snails, grass hoppers, locuists, cotton and tobacco worms. We have had opportunities for studying most of these depredators, and regard the unnatural destruction of birds, and their expulsion from all so-called civilized communities, as the principal cause of the increase of insects.

Let us study Nature and observe how nearly all the feathered tribes, with which we are familiar, hatch their young at that season of the year when insects and their larra most abound, when so many millions are daily consumed to feed the voracious broods of rapidly growing birds. In Maryland and Virginia large flocks of turkeys are reared expressively to be driven through Cobacco fields by children "to worm the crop." A turkey, from the time it is large enough to cat a worm till it attains its full growth, will consume an incredible number of insects, and foreity illustrates an important law.
