The present Legislature of Massachusetts is a remarkable one, and the laws it enacts are as remarkable as the Legislature. It has just passed a law practically nullifying the act of Congress in reference to fugitive slaves. This law provides that:

"No justice of the peace, sheriff, constable by jailor shall arrist or detain, or aid in arresting or detaining, any person for the reason that he is detained as a fugitive slave, under the penalty of imprisonment and a fine. Also, that the writ of halvest corpus may be issued by all courts of record judges of probate, and in some asses, justices of the peace; and instead of the proceedings authorized by the act of 1850, substituted are that he is use and that me confusions. bases, justices of the peace and make of the proceedings authorized by the act of 1850, substitutes a trial by jury, and that no confessions, idmissions, or declarations of the alleged fugitive against himself, shall be given in evidence, and that the jury shall have the right to return a general verdict. It also deprives any attorney of Massnchusetts, who shall act for a slave claimant, of the right to practise in Massachusetts Courts of law."

The attempt to enforce such a law as the above, if it should receive the Governor's signature, will soon bring the State into collision with the United States Government, and it is not difficult to predict the result. The citizens of this country value the Union too much to allow its stability to be impaired by such miserable fanaticism. Another statute of that State makes poverty a crime, and, without trial by jury, seizes helpless women and transports them out of the country. This law whorts them out of the country. This law

'Authorizes any justice of the peace upon complaint, by a warrant directed to and to be executed by any constable, or any other person there designated, to cause any pauper to be removed out of the State to any place beyond the sea where ho belongs, if the justice thinks proper, and he may be conveniently removed; and also that, independently of this provision of law, a practice has arisen by which the commissioner of alien passengers undertakes, even without the warrant of a justice of the peace, to send back paupers in cases in which he sees fit, and pay the expenses from money in his hands belonging to the State Trasury."

The operation of the law is exhibited in the

The operation of the law is exhibited in the following paragraph from the Boston Adverti-following paragraph from the Boston Advertiser:

"Yesterday morning, there sailed from this port a splendid packet ship, bearing the noble name of Daniel Webster, which fitly belongs to so flive a vessel. Among the crowd of human beings on board that proud vessel was one poor woman, with an infant daughter. Her passage and that of her child were paid by the rich and powerful commonwealth of Massachusetts. She left, our free and happy shores unwilling and reluctant. She went away against her own free will, constrained by force of the civil authorities of the State. Her cries as she begged not to be thus cruelly, banashed, were, we are told, most pitcous, and such as to cause the accidental witnesses of the scene to burn with indignation. The offence of this unfortunate woman, for which she was thus violently and ignominiously expelled from Massachusetts, was the fact that she was born in Ireland, and is called a pauper. Her infant daughter, who unconsciously shares her mother's sad fate, is a native of the commonwealth of Massachusetts; but she, too, partakes of that hard lot of poverty which it has been reserved for Massachusetts; bunake a crime, and a crime which Massachusetts punishes as no other crime is punished in America, by banishment—banishment from one s native land."

It provents immediate decomposition and obviates the necessity of hasty burials; for, being perfectly air-tight, it prevents any unpleasant odor from escaping and can be kept from day to day, until it suits the convenience of the friends of the deceased to inter.
