BARANA MY HUSBAND. A PRETTY SKETCH PROX REAL LIPE.

A PRETTY BREFOR ROAL NEAL LIFE. A PRETTY BREFOR ROAL NEAL LIFE. IN A subband is a vory strange man. To think how ho, could have grown so provoked about such a little thing as that scartle scart. Well, there is no use in trying to drive him ; I've set-lied that in my mind. But he can be conxed-iter the though 7. And from this time shan? I know, how to manage him 7 Still. there is no donying Mc. Adams is a strange man. You see it was this morning at breakfast I said to him; 'flenry, I must have one of these to dollar scarfs at Steward's. They are purfectly charms-ing, and will correspond so nicely with my ma-roat volvet cloak. I, want to go this morning and get one before they are all gone." "Ton dollars don't grow on every bush, Ade-liney; and just now times are prefity hard, you know," he answered, in a dry, careless kind of too, which irritated me greatly. Boside that, I knew ho could afford to get me the seard, just as well as not, only perhaps my manner of ro-questing it did not quite auit his lordably. "Gontienean who can afford to buy saitn vests at the dollars apiece can have no motive but pe-nuriousness for objecting to give their wives as much for a scarf," I retorted, glaneing at the money, which, a moment before, he had laid by my plate, requesting me to procure one for him, is always trusta mo in theso matters. Simpleity of True Genius.

Simpleity of True Genius. That night I found mysolf, about 11 o'clock, in a pretty bed room, about fourteon feet by twelre. Much I foared it might turn out the best room in the house, and it illustrates the best room in the house, and it illustrates the best room in the house, and it illustrates the best room in the house, and it illustrates the best room in the house, and it illustrates the best room in the house, and it illustrates the best room in the ottage be in an op-posite. corner, soliloquizing in a low tone. I seen recognized the words, Suffered under Pon-tius Pilate, was cruciled, dead and buried; and the roice I easily conjectured to be that of the eldest among Wordsworth's children, a son, and at at that time about three, years old. He is a re-makable fine boy in strength and size, and pro-mising (what has in fact been realized,) a more powerful person, physically, then that of his fa-ther. Miss Wordsworth I found making break. fast in the little sitting room. No urn was there, hold the sitting room. No urn was there the strength of the sitting room. No urn was there the strength of the sitting room. No urn was there the strength of the strength of the sitting room. No urn was there the strength of the sitting room. No urn was there the strength of the strength of the sitting the strength of t ther. Miss Wordsworth I found making break-fast in the little sitting room. No urn was there, for glittering breakfast service, a kettle boiled upon the fire, and every thing was in harmony with those unpretending arrangements. I rare-ly have seen so humble a monage; and con-trasting the dignity of the man with this honor-able poverty, and this courageous avowal of it, his differ absence of all efforts to disguise the simple trath of the case. I folk my admiration increased. This, thought L to myself, is, in-depd in his own words.

This is indeed, to reserve the humility and the parsimonies of life for its bedily onjoyments, and to apply its lavishness and its luxury to the enjoyments of the intellect. So might Milton have lived so Marvel.—De Quincy.
