smile he had marked an instantaneous change; and, as he bent forword through the lips, so beautifully wreathed, there came no breath.

"Well might she exclaim," Death, where is thy sting I" said the parsor turning with tear-illied eyes, "never saw I the king of terrors in so lovely a garb. How sweetly she sleeps!"

Ayel saweetly still, in the grave yard upon the hill side; and on the white shaft that bears her name, some lovely hand has chiseled:

"It is not hard to die!"

ADVICE FOR THE YOUNG.

Seldom have I seen any advice for the young hat gave me so much satisfaction as the folowing. Leannot tell my young readers who wrote it; but as it is good, I hope they will read it carefully and try to remember all it says to sermon, which he started off thus:

"My brethren, there'll be great meracles, great meracles in heaven. And the first meracle will be, that many you expect to find there you won't see there. The people that go round with long faces makin' long prayers, won't be there; and the second meracle will be that many you don't expect to find there.

New Business.

We heard a pretty good one the other day, which we think merits a wider circulation than it has got. The story runs, that some honest-faced Hossier, went into a finely store in Cincinnai, in hunt of a situation. The proprietor, or head clerk, was sitting in his counting-room, with his feet comfortably crooked up on a table, and contemplating human life throthe softening influence of cigar smoke. Our Hossier friend addressed him modestly as follows:

lows:

'Do you want to hire a hand about your establishment, sir?''

The clerk looked up indifferently, but seeing his customer, concluded to have some fan out of him, so he answered very briskly, at the same time pulling out a large and costly hand-kerchief and blowing his nose in it:
'Yes, sir; what sort of a situation do you want?'

'Well, 'said the Hoosier, 'I'm not particular; I'm out of work, and almost anything'll do me for a while.'
'Yes, well, I can give you a situation if it will sunt you.'

vill suit you.'
What is it? What's to be done, and what
