A RACE FOR LIFE

A STEEP CHASE ON THE PRAIRIES

The first of June 1849! Seven years ago! How strange than fiction it seems that on this stronger anniversary of that eventful day...

more satisfactory inspection. Gradually across the broad expanse of the prairie, they drew nearer and nearer, now disappearing from view in 'crossing' some, and reappearing again displayed in bold relief against the sky...

My horse was fleet and true, but he was also tired and fatigued. How long could he maintain that pace? How long could he keep that distance from the immediate danger? But there was no time to deliberate...

It was descending a long, but gentle inclination towards a broad level depression in the distance, which spread out about a couple of hundred yards wide, and at its center a small stream was winding its way...

As we were about to enter the valley, we were met by a party of about a dozen men, who were armed with rifles and pistols. They were dressed in the ordinary attire of the prairie...

It was a long, but not a very difficult descent. The ground was covered with grass and apparently firm. We were going at a steady pace, and were not aware of our danger until we were almost upon the summit...
