As wo expected, the Free State men of Kansas hay resolved not to vote at the coming election of delegates to the Convention to frame a State Constitution. They held a Convention at Topeka on the 10th and I thu ult: and such is the import of one of the resolutions adopted. Of course, then, it will be entirely a pro-islavery convention, and the character of the constitution to be formed is no. longer doubtful. The Free State men may yet have one chance more to make fools of themselves. When the constitution is presented to Congress and admission demanded as a State, it may be referred back to a vote of the people, as it should have been under the territorial act itself. If in that event the Free State men again refuse to vote, there will of course no longer be a doubt as to "whose fault" its that Kansas becomes a slave State. But the late Topeka Convention was certainly a curjosity in its way. They resolve that they will inflexibly "abide by the principles of squatter sovereignty enunciated in the Kansas-Netwask bill!!!!!"

There, then, are the Free State men of Kansas pedarsing, approving, and resolving to sus-

There, then, are the Free State men of Kan-There, then, are the Free State men of Kansas endorsing, approving, and resolving to sustain the principles of the Kansas-Nebraskabill!! And yet they refuse to vote, which is the only way they can be sustained and carried out. If that is not an incongruity and an idiotic absurdity we know no what is.

It is evidently the result of a struggle in their minds between the promptings of their minds between the promptings of their own judgment and interests on the one side, and the commands of the Northern Abolitionand the commands of the state o

hay, who wanted to eat them both at once, and before he could make up his mind which to seize first, he starved to death.—Pittsburg
