Working His Passage.

A tall, awkward-looking chap, just from the Green Mountains of Vermont, came on board one of the splendid North River boats at Albany. His curiosity was amazingly excited at once, and he commenced "pecking," as he called it, into every nook and corner of the boat. The captain's office, the engine-room, the barber's shop—all underwent his inspection; and then he went on deck, and stood looking in amazement at the lever beam, the chimneys, and the various "fixins," till at last he caught sight of the bell. This was the crowning wonder, and he viewed it from every position; walked around it, got down on his knees and looked up into it, and exclaimed—

"Well, raly, this beats the bell on our meetin' house a great sight."

By this time, the attention of the captain and several of the passengers were attracted to this genius.

"How much would you ask to let a feller ring this bell?"

"You may ring it for a doller, sir," said the captain.

"Wall, it's a bargain, all fair and agreed, and no backing out."

"It's a bargain, sir," said the captain.

Our hero went deliberately and brought a seat and took hold of the bell rope, and having arranged everything to his satisfaction, commenced ringing, slowly at first, and gradually faster and faster, till everybody on board thought the boat was on fire, and rushed on deck, screaming with alarm.

There stood the captain, and there sat the "Varmonter," ringing away, first slow, and then fast, and then two or three taps at a time. The passengers began to expostulate; the captain said it was a bargain. But the passengers became urgent that the eternal clangor should be stopped. All the while there sat our hero undisturbed, ringing away more ways than a cockney chime-ringer ever dreamed of. At last the captain began to think it time to stop the simpleton; but his answer was—

"A fair bargain, and no backing out," and he rang away for dear life.

"Well," says the captain, "what will you take and stop?"

"Wall, cap'n, I guess I sheant lose nothing if I take five dollars and a free passage to New York, but not a darned cent-less."

"Well, walk down to the office and get your money and a passage ticket," said the captain.

The Silence of an Arctic Night.

The following eloquent description of the silence of an Arctic night occurs in Dr. Hays' lecture on the Arctic Regions. We have, at least, upon one occasion, when eight or nine miles under ground in the Mammoth Cave, seemed to feel the darkness, but we never imagined that other negative attribute of nature, silence, could be so intense as to be heard.—Yet the Doctor's description makes this strange paradox a reality. He says:

"The moonlights of this period (winter) are the most grand and impressive of anything I have ever witnessed. The clearness of the air, the white surface of the snow and ice give an effect monotonous and cheerless, but truly grand. But there is a new element which makes this mid-winter moonlight seem almost terrible in its impressiveness—it is silence.

"I have often, to escape from the trying monotony of ship-board life, gone off six or eight miles into the interior in search of novelty, and in order that I might be alone. There, seated upon a rock or snow-bank, I look around me and see a great uneven country, rocky hills and glaciers covered with snow, myriads of crystal gems sparkling in the light of the pale moon, which shoots its rays down through the crisp air, making it almost as light as day. I look seaward, and see a long plain of ice, melting into the horizon, dotted all over with huge towering bergs—nothing more.

"All nature is in the repose of death. I am too far from the shore to hear the crunching of the cables as they rise and fall lazily with the tide, or the roar, like distant thunder, as some huge crack opens through the heavy flocs.—There is no animal to cross my path, no tree among whose stiff branches the wind can sigh and moan. There is no song of bird to enliven the scene, no wild beat to howl. I stand there alone, the only representative of God's living world—the only being that has life or can move. Every sound that I hear, every motion that I see, is made by myself. I hear nothing but the pulsations of my own heart, my own footsteps, or now and then, possibly, in the distance, the deep rumbling of a falling snowbank. The sensation of utter loneliness and isolation creeps over me. My heart beats as it rushes the blood through the sensitive organization of the ear; I am oppressed as with discordant sounds. Silence has ceased to be negative; it has become sternly positive. I hear, see and feel it. Its presence is unendurable.—I spring to my feet; I plant them heavily in the snow to drown its presence, and I rush back to the vessel, glad even to find refuge in its dull, dull life of horrid inactivity."

Local Superstitions.

That a very large proportion of the seed sown by teachers of all kinds—the press included—falls upon utterly sterile soil, is shown by the wide-spread prevalence of superstition among the masses of the people. There is still a large portion of the community who utterly ignore Providence, and attribute every operation of Nature to the direct and specific influences of the moon. The moon must be in a certain quarter, or the agriculturist believes that there is no use in planting, sowing or harvesting. To insure a permanent fence the rails must be split in "the dark of the moon." Unless the same luminary is in the second quarter many of the Jersey rustics believe that to shear sheep is equivalent to losing the clip of wool; while the matron who is about depriving her chubby infant of its natural lacteal supply in favor of that yielded by the dairy, first consults the almanac with religious confidence to see that "the pale Diana" proves propitious. There are also among us hundreds of people who believe that the moon-beams streaming in upon a sleeping person will produce lunacy; just as they implicitly credit the revelations of the numerous impostors scattered about the city, who earn a handsome living by "telling fortunes." The blasphemous pretensions of the woman Anna Moister, who has just been acquitted from the charge of swindling—a woman who for a long time caused some two hundred people to believe beyond a peradventure that she was the sister and equal of the Savior of the world—is an apt illustration of the popular credulity in anything which is enveloped with a coating of superstition.

Besides these luculators we find believers in dreams, in charms and incantations, and in absurdities as great as those promulgated by Dr. Dee or Bulwer's Arbaces. The days of even love philtres are not gone by, as may be seen by any one who will con over the advertisements of sundry morning papers. But the most singular case of superstition which was ever presented to us personally, was shown lately in Philadelphia, at the Central Police office. A remarkably well dressed and intelligent looking colored man presented himself before Alderman Bnue, and entered a complaint against a man and woman who are his neighbors, for torturing him by night with red hot pincers. He said that the parties were witches, gifted with power from Satan to render his life miserable. The magistrate asked him if his tormentors ever molested him in person. His reply was that they had never entered his premises, but that they employed witches and sorcery. To fathom the depth of his intellect, he was then closely questioned, and gave evidence of considerable information and mental culture except in this one point. Of course his complaint could receive no attention, yet there can be no doubt that the poor fellow's life is a burden to him in consequence of his ignorant belief in witchcraft.

There will be a great deal to accomplish in this world before we are fit to enjoy a millenium. The task of dispelling popular whimsies and popular superstitions alone, seems as difficult as to tunnel Gibraltor with a boiled carrot or to cross the Atlantic in a pewter bread tray.

Hover's Liquid Hair Dye.

THIS Hair Dye needs only a trial to satisfy all of its perfection as a Dye, and the following testimonial from that eminent Analytic Chemist, Professor Booth, of the U. S. Mint, will only confirm what thousands have previously borne testimony to.

Laboratory for Practical Chemistry,
St. Stephen's Place,
Phila. Feb. 17, 1857.

"Being well acquainted with the substances composing Hover's Liquid Hair Dye, I am satisfied that by following the simple direction given for its use, it will not injure the hair or skin, but will give a natural and durable color to the hair.

JAMES C. BOOTH, Analytic Chemist."

☞ Hover's Writing Inks, including Hover's Fluid, and Hover's Indelible Inks, are too well known and introduced to require any additional testimony of their character. The sales have been increasing since their first introduction, giving evidence that the articles truly possess that intrinsic merit claimed at first for them by the manufacturer.

Orders addressed to the manufactory, No. 416 Race street above Fourth, (old No. 144,) Philadelphia, will receive prompt attention by

JOSEPH E. HOVER, Manufacturer.

What's the matter now? each passer does say,
'Twas very dull here the other day;
There was nothing stirring, nothing doing,
I'm sure there must be something brewing;
But here comes "Weller," I'll ask him what's the matter.

(And by the way, he is coming faster.)

Good morning, Weller, anything wrong?
What's the cause of all this throng?
Why, did you not hear? if not its very queer;
That the "Bainbridge's" have opened here
A Shoe store of the right kind,
To suit the foot and please the mind.
They sell so CHEAP if you have the CASH,
That I'm afraid that they will smash;
And that's not all for I do know,
That they do sell a little below
The regular prices, and then you'll find
They have good shoes of every kind.
So tell all your friends you chance to meet,
Of "Bainbridge's!" Store in Hanover street,
Right opposite Bentz & Bro. Dry-goods store,
You'll find H. D. Weller in the store.
Call in and look and you will see,
We speak the truth, yes-sir'ee.

Hardware Hardware

JOHN P. LYNE & SON, have just received their Fall stock of Hardware, which is unusually large, and in connection with their former heavy stock makes it one of the largest and most varied assortments ever offered to the public. They have everything that the Farmer, the Builder, the Mechanic, or the public may want in their line, and which they are selling at the very lowest prices. They solicit a call from the public before making their purchases, as they are confident they can offer such inducements to the buyer that will fully reward him for his trouble.

Feeling thankful to the generous public for their former very liberal patronage, a continuation of the same is solicited, at our old stand in North Hanover street, Carlisle.

$5000 Reward—Great Race.

THE great race between the Clothing Stores of Carlisle, resulted in the complete triumph of the new store of ARNOLD & SON, in the store room lately occupied by Wise & Campbell, corner of North Hanover and Louther sts. It is now conceded by all and every one that they stand pre-eminent among the clothing dealers in Carlisle, having succeeded in convincing their friends, that they can sell Clothing made and got up, according to the latest styles, from 20 to 25 per cent. cheaper than any other house is possibly able to furnish them. They have now on hand a large and splendid assortment of

Ready-made Clothing,

Furnishing Goods, Cloths, Cassimeres and Vestings. Also, Hats and Caps, and every thing in their line for Men and Boys. Their materials were selected with the greatest care, purchased at the lowest cash prices, and at such houses only who never deal in anything like auction trash. Their friends may therefore rest assured that articles purchased of them will and must give satisfaction. Clothing made at the shortest notice in the most fashionable style, having for that purpose secured the services of an experienced Cutter, and laid in a splendid assortment of Cloths, Cassimeres, Vestings, &c., which for beauty and durability cannot be surpassed. To the citizens of the surrounding country we would say, give us a fair trial. All we ask is a fair look at our stock and we will not fail to convince you that our Clothing is better made, of better materials, better trimmed, cut with more taste, and last though not least, cheaper than you have ever bought elsewhere. Also, a large lot of Trunks, Carpet Bags, Umbrellas, &c.

All hail creation far and near,
Of ARNOLD's Store you shall hear;
Let pealing drums and cannon's roar
Proclaim the news from shore to shore;
Great bargains sure, are on the wing,
Rare wonders then we now will sing:
At first we'll speak of CLOTHING rare,
Such trophies, sure will make you stare,
Of broad and narrow cloth so cheap
We'll take a moment's time to speak.
Delighted too you can't but be
With prices and their quality;
Dress and Sack Coats—aye, Vestings too,
What bargains now, for all of you!
The Gents will our compliments receive,
And call they must the wonders to believe.
In Pants we have all kinds of styles,
One dollar and upwards, piles on piles.
In Summer Goods—for soon 'twill come—
We'll give you bargains all for cash.
Frocks and Over-coats so very fine,
Great wonders you shall see in every line,
Hosiery, Suspenders, Under-shirts for all,
All kinds of Gloves to please all who call.
But we cannot stop to enumerate,
We have bargains both good and great.
Our stock too in the Furnishing line
Is plentiful, cheap and fine.
