Consider all things well, Thou'lt see that of every pleasure Sweet kissing doth bear the bett.

Maxims of Washington.

The following maxims of Washington ought to be published in every newspaper in the land once a year:

Use no reproachful language against any one—neither curses or revilings.

Be not too hasty to believe flying reports to the disparagement of any one. In your apparel be modest, and endeavor to accommodate nature rather than procure admi-

Associate yourself only with men of good quality, if you esteem your reputation, for it is better to be alone than in bad company.

Let your conversation be without malice or mendable spirit; and in all cases of passion, admit reason to govern.

Use not base and frivolous things agains grown and learned men; nor very difficult questions and subjects among the ignorant, nor things to be believed.

Speak not of doleful things in the time o mirth, nor at the table; nor of melancholy things, as death or wound, and if others men tion them, change, if you can, the discourse. Break not a jest when hone take pleasure in mirth. Laugh not loud, nor at all without occasion. Deride no man's misfortune, though there seems to be some cause. Speak not injurious words, either in jest or in carnest. Scoll at no one though you may get Be not forward, but friendly and courteous the first to salute, hear and answer-and be not pensive when it is time to converse. Keep to the fashions of your equal, such as

Go not thither, when you know not whether you shall be welcome or not.

Reprehend not the imperfections of others for that belongs to parents, masters and supe Speak not in an unknown tongue in compa ny, but in your own language; and that as those of quality do, and not as the vulgar.--

Sublime matters treat seriously.

Think before you speak; pronounce not imperfectly, nor bring out your words too hastily, but orderly and distinct.

SENTIMENT OF THREE PLANTING.

As to the poetry-there is in the planting of trees, the reviewer says:

" Any father will recognize it as a beautifu and easy way of commenorating the birth of children in his household. The members of a college class, revisiting the place of their early instruction, will see in the tree which they left their on their parting day a permanent memorial of their former union. Travel strengthens the force of this reason. When we discover how wide, and high; and sacred are the memorial of the me ries which are kept on earth by means of these signs, when we have visited the church-yard at Stoke, with its rugged yew tress, where Gray lies buried, or the Burnham beeches where he used to ramble; when we have looked where he used to ramble; when we have looked upon the oak a Penhurst which marks the birth-time of Philip Sidney, or that hige tree a grafton, where nearly four centuries ago. Edward Plantagenet first met the Lady Elizabeth Woodville; when we have rested under Milton's mulberry, in Christs Church Gar. 'Milton's mulberry' in Christs Church Garden, and remembered Warton under the "Avon willows: when we have walked in that square of the silent Ceriosa, where the spray of the fountain still moistens the great cypress which Michael Angelo planted, or have lingered by that blasted (runk beneath whose shelter, when its boughs were green, poor Tasso was wont to look down over the eternal city; and to dream and sigh his life away; when we have found everywhere the most famous sites and events, in the history of war, and genius, and religion, from the massacre at Clisson to the victory a Marathon-from the spot in Cambridge where Washington met the American army, to the spot in Bristol where Augustine held conference with the Euglish bishops; or that most ancient place of meeting on the plains of Mamre, which holds the tradition of Abraham and the angels -scenes of faith, and valor, and romance, fixed and perpetuated by these lords of the forest—we come to understand better this sen linental reason, which some esteem so lightly.
This sort of association, indeed, cannot generally be planned and provided for. The association comes by chance, and no man can say, when he plants a tree, that it is destined hereafter to be joined in memory with any green thing. Yet many a man, in his old age. feels a deeper attachment to the home where he has always dwelt; because it is overhung by the boughs of the tree which as a sapling, he put there in his boyhood. The house has gone to decay, it may be, and he must build a better, but the trees make the place so dear to him that he cannot let it pass from his posses sion, and his children will keep it because their father strees are there .-- North American Re

WEBSTER ON ORIGIN.-It is only shallow minded pretenders who make distinguished origin a matter of personal merit, or obscure origin a matter of personal reproach. A man who be ben'n in a log cabin, raised among the snow drifts of New Hampshire, at a period so early that when the smoke first rose from its rude chimney and curled over the frozen hills, there was no similar evidence of a white man's habitation between it and the settlements on the rivers of Canada. Its remains still exist. make it an annual visit. I carry my children to it to teach them the hardships endured by the generation before them. I love to dwell on the tender recollections, the kindered ties, the early affections and the narration of incidents which mingle with all I know of this primitive family abode. I weep to think that none of those who inhabited it are now among the living; and if ever I fail in affectionate veneration for him who raised it, and defended it against savage violence and destruction, cherished all the approbation of all who have seen them, to domestic comforts beneath its roof, and thro' the fire and blood of seven-years revolutionary war, shrunk from no toil, no sacrifice to serve his country, and to raise his children to a con-
