GOING HOME WITH A GIRE.

"Jeems," of the Baldwinville (N. Y.) Gazette, thus decribes an event in the life of a country boy:

We were between sixteen and seventeen years of age when the event about to be related transpired, and as a decription of our personal appearance at that time is absolutely essential to the point of our story. we will give it as concisely as the subject will allow. In reference then, to that period, to say that we were green in the usual acceptation of the term, would give the reader but a poor idea of the figure we displayed. Rather imagine a tall, lean, cadaverous, swarty looking chap, with legs like a pair of tongs, a countenance about as expressive as a plate of Dutch cheese a mouth that came very near making an island of the head above it, a face covered with furze that looked very much like the down on a newly hatched gosling, with a gait that would lead the beholder to conclude that we designed to travel down both sides of the street at the same time, and you have a correct daguerreotype of Jeems in the 17th year of his age. One dark, gloomy night in the month of December, we chanced to be at a "spelling school" not a thousand miles from Baldwinscheap.

ville, where our eyes fell on a "fairy form" that immediately set our susceptible heart in a blaze. She was sixteen, or thereabouts, with bright. cycs, cherry lips, and red cheeks, while theanburn ringlets clustered in a wealth of profusion around her beautiful head, and her person, to our ravished imagination, was more perfect in form and outline, than the most faultless statue ever chiseled by the sculptor's art. As we gazed, our feelings, which never before had aspired girlward, were fully aroused, and we dermined to go home with her that night or perish in the attempt. As soon, therefore, as shool was dismissed, and our "lady love sunably bonneted and cloaked, we approached it offer our services as contemplated, and we then learned an important lesson, viz : the difference between resolving and doing. As we neared her, we were seized with a partial blindnessred, blue, green and yellow lights flashed upon dies' and Childrens'. Furs, wi our vision, and appeared and disappeared like dispose of at very low prices. witches in a phantasmagoria-our knees smote together like Belshazzar's when he discovered the hand writing on the wall, while our heart thumped with apparently as much force as i it were driving two penny nails into our ribs.-

We, in the meantime, managed to mumble over something known to the Recording Angel, but certainly not to us, at the same time poking out our elbow as nearly at right angles with our body as our physical conformation would

The night air blow keenly which served in some sort to revive us and as our senses returned what were our emotions on finding the cherished object of our first love, clinging to our arm with all the tenacity a drownding man is said to clutch at a straw! Talk of Elysium, or sliding down greased rainbows, or feeding on flutes, what are sich "philinks" in compar ison to those mighty ones that swelled our bosom nigh to the bursting of our waistcoat but-tons! Our happiness was sublime, sublimity ublimely sublimated, and every person who has ever felt the divine throbbing of a fledged love principle, fully understands the world o bliss couched in the 4th 5th 6th and 7th words at the commencement of this sentence. Well, we passed on pleasantly towards our Sally's home, talking of "love and, dove, and dart and part." until so courageous had we be come, that we actually proposed to "zo in and sit awhile," to which our Dulcinea very graciously assented. Alas, for us ! how were we to be reminded that the "course o true love never did run smooth." Sally had a brother of some ten summer who accompanied us along the way, and who was in wonderful high spirits at the idea of his sister's having a beau, and he would walk around us frequently, giggling in the height of his glee, and cycing us as closely as if ourself and Sally were the world renowned Siamese twins; and he was taking his first look. Bill, by the way, was a stubbed, chuckle head boy Dry Goods ever brought to Carlisle. Their whose habilments would have made the fortune

"wal I declare ! I didn't think the sap-head knew enough !"

Going to General Smash.

The extravagance of what are known as fashionable people in New York, is extraordinary. To support it they must all be in a possession of incomes averaging from 30 to 40 thousand dollars each. Of course this is out of the question, and hence, upper-tendom in Gotham is rapidly rushing to desperate bankruptcy. Hear what a correspondent of one of our papers, who dates, from New York, says : "This is a fast age. We not only live fast, travel fast and die fast, but we are fast buyers. In the way of extravagance no former age ever excelled us. This not only proves that the country is running largely to wealth, but also ginger bread and tinsel. There are dwelling houses in this city which cost $200,000. To keep such a house in servants, butchers, balls. parties and bassoons, runs away with $30,000 goods in common use. more. Everybody seems bent upon making the utmost "splurge" and rushing to "highfalutin' and gold edged spittoons. A lady, the other day, paid $400 for a handkrichtef. A shawl worth $1500 is quite a ''common occurrence" in this metropolis. Portmonnaics, set undersolds with pearls and diamonds and costing from $75 to $300, have just been introduced by a Paris importer. Fans worth $60 may be found at Stewart's by the dozen. If this fact don't prove that we live in a fast age--that we are ing business on a high pressure principle-I don't know what would.

A woman has no natural grace more bewitching than a sweet laugh. It leaps from her heart in a clear sparkling rill, and the heart that hears it feels bathed in the exhilarating spring. It turns the prose of our life into po-etry. It flings showers of sunshine over the darksome wood in which we are travelling ; it touches with light even our sleep, which is more the image of death, but is consumed with dreams that are the shadows of immortality.

17 Voltaire was in the habit of keeping a Book in which he placed the seals of all h s correspondents, and underneath each wrote the ad- | kinds of Cloth and Glazed Caps. from 25 cents dress of the person who is happened to be. If he received a letter, he would examine and ascertain from whence it came, by referring to his Book ; and if from a quarter he did not like, he placed it in another envelope, and returned it, unopened, to the writer.

I A man named William Daily, of Detroit, Michigan, charged with robbery, was, on Sat-urday night last, on board a train of cars on the Great Western Railroad, and sceing two officers pass into the cars where he was, while the train was in motion, jumped from the car and was instantly killed.

Brown had been in love with a young lady, and asked permission to call her by the name of some animal, which request was granted. on condition that she should have the same night deer. (dear.") "Good night, boar, (bore.") said she. Brown has since quit the company of young ladies.
