about six years of age, following around a man, evidently his father, whose appearance indicating him to be a foreigner, probably a German an anal of medium height and respectable dress. The child was unusually fair and fing looking, handsomely featured, with an intelligent expression of countenance; and, from the dress of the foreign curls.

clustering curls.

After walking about the cabin for a time, the muter and son stopped within a few feet of where we were seated and began preparations for going to bed. I watched him. The father adjusted and arranged the bed the child was to occupy, which was an upper borth, while the little follow was undwasted himself. father and son stopped within a few feet of where follow was undressing himself. Having finished this, his father tied a handkerchief around his head to protect his curls, which looked as if the sunlight from his young heart always rested there. This done, I looked for him to seek his resting place; but instead of this, he quietly kneeled lown upon the floor, put his little hands together so beautifully, child-like and simple, resting his arms on the lower berth, against which he knelt, he begin his vespar prayer.

The father sat down by his side, and waited the conclusion. It was for a child, a long prayor, but little understood. I could hear the mur muring of his sweet voice, but could not distin guish the words he spoke. There were mer ound him -Christian men retiring to rest with out prayer: or if praying at all a kind of ment; desire for protection, without sufficient courage or piety to kneel down in a steamboat's cabin and before strangers, acknowledge the goodness of God, or ask his protecting love.

A beautiful sight it was, that a prayer in the midst of the busy, thought ess throng, he, alone, of this worldly multitude, draws night to Heaven. I thank the parental love that taught him to whisper his evening prayer, whether Catholic o Protestant, whether far off or nigh. I could scarce refrain from weeping then, nor can I now as I see again that sweet child; in the crowded tumult of a steamboat's cabin, bending in devo-tion before his Maker.

But a little while before, I sawa crowd of admiring listeners gathering about a company of Italian singers in the upper saloon—a moth r and her two sons, with voice and harp and vio-ling but no one cared for the child at prayer. When the little boy had finished his evening prayer, he arese and kissed his father most af-fectionately, who put him into his berth to rest fectionately, who put him into his berth to rest for the night. I felt a strong desire to speak to them; but deferred it till morning. When morning came, the confusion of landing provented me from seeing them again. But, if I ever meet that boy again in his happy youth, in his anxious manhood, a his declining years, I'll thank him for the influence and example of that night's devotion, and bless the name of the mother that thank him. ther that taught him.

Questions Fairly Put and Squarely Answered. The idea has been industriously, proclaimed by the Black Republic as and others, that inassume as the Lecompton Constitution makes NECESSITY OF EXERCISE. - Most of the current The body must undergo a certain amount of fatigue to preserve the muscles and organs in pro-per vigor. "When exercise is neglected," says summer cassimeres, cottonades, silk undershirts, per vigor. "When exercise is neglected," says the Laws of Henlth, "the blood gathers too much about the central region; and the oppression about the heart, difficulty of breathing lowness of spirits, anxiety and heaviness, nu-merous aches and stitches, are evidences of this stagnation. People are afraid to take exercise auso they fancy they want breath and feel ak. But the very effort would free the heart weak. But the very effort would free the heart from this burden, by urging the blood forward to the extremities; it would ease the breathing by liberating the lungs from the same superabundance; it would make the frame feel active and light, as the effect of equalized circulation bundance; it would make the frame feel active and light, as the effect of equalized circulation and free action." A brisk walk in the open air, daily, is worth a whole shopful of nostrums.
