With their tails they then beat down round the nest the dense grass and reeds five feet high, to prevent the approach of unseen

The female watches her eggs until they are all hatched by the heat of the sun, and then takes her brood under her own care, defending them and providing for their subsistence. Dr. Lutzenburg, of New Orleans, told me that he Lutzenburg, of New Orleans, told me that he once packed up one of these nests, with the eggs, in a box for the museum of St. Peters-uting, but was recommended before he closed it to see that there was no danger of the eggs being hatched on the coyago. On opening one, a young aligator walked out, and soon followed be the peter should a hundred which he field in the rest, about a hundred, which he fed in his house, where they went up and down stairs, whining and barking like young puppies.-Lyell, the Geologist.

Cutting Down.

A late excellent Governor of this State used to tell a story of a famous sportsman, who not only made long shots in the field, but likewise at the board. In a word, he was fond of dealing somewhat in the marvelous while recount ing his exploits. Being aware that he carried this practice to a rather unwarrantable length missioned his favorable colored servant. Pete, to give him a hint when he found him the truth too much.

One day, dining in company with sundry other gentlemen, he told some prodigiously large stories; and, among the rest, of a fox he had killed which had a tail twenty feet long. Honest Pete thought this was quite too extravagant ; and as he stood behind his master's chair, he gave him a nudge. "Twenty, did I say? perhaps I'm a little too fast-but it was all of fifteen."

Pete gave him a second nudge. "Eh ! let me see. 'Twas ten at least.' A third nudge.

"Twas every inch of five." A fourth nudge.

"Twas three any how." A fifth nudge.

The sportsman took all these hints in good part until he received the last; when, thinking his story was cut down quite enough he turned suddenly to his servant, and exclaimed : "Why, hang it, Pete, won't you let my fox have any tail?"

Number of Stars.

Within the last two centuries, the telescope has revealed countless millions of stars. re and more astonishingly numerous the further the space it penetrated. Every increase in the dimensions and power of instruments, which successful improvements in optical science have attained, has brought into view multitudes in-numerable of objects invisible before, so that, the number of stars may be really infinite. Those rendered visible—for instance by the great power of Lord Rosse's telescope—are at such an inconceivable distance, that their than at any other house in the country. APRIL APPOINTMENTS.

DR. HARDMAN, Physician for disease of the Lungs, (formerly Physician to Cincin-nati Marine Hospital.) will be in attendance at his rooms as follows : Carlisle, (Mansion House,) Thursday, Apri

Shippensburg, (Union House,) Friday, April

Dr. Hardman treats Consumption, Bronchitis. Asthma, Larryngittis, and all diseases of the throat and lungs by medical Inhalation, lately used in the Bromton Hospital, London. The great point in the treatment of all human mala-dies is to get at the disease in the direct manto enumerate his

ner. All medicines are estimated by their ac-tion upon the organ requiring relief. This is the important fact upon which Inhalation is based. If the stomach is diseased we take medicine directly into the stomach. If the lungs are diseased, breathe or inhale medicated va. pors directly into the lungs. Medicines are the antidotes to disease and should be applied to the very seat of disease. Inhalation is the apation of this principle to the treatment of the lungs, for it gives us direct access to those intricate air cells and tubes which lie out of reach of every other means of administering nedicines. The reason that Consumption, and other diseases of the lungs have heretofore re sisted all treatment has been been because they had never been approached in a direct manner by medicine. They were intended to act upon the lungs and yet were applied to the stomach. Their action was intended to be local, and yet they were so administered that they should ac constitutionally, expending immediate and prin-cipat action upon the unoffending stomach, whilst the foul ulcers within the lungs were unmolested. Inhalation brings the molicine in direct contact with the disease, without the disanvantage of any violent action. Its applica-tion is so simple that it can be employed by the youngest infant or feeblest invalid. It does not derange the stomach, or interfere in the least dogree with the strength, comfort, or business of the patient, Other diseases treated .- In relation to the following discases either when complicated with jung affections or existing alone, I also invite the borough. Also,
