The following, which we clip from " Life II ustrated," is so good and true that we wish to commend it to everybody, and especially t those who write, speak or otherwise attempt to instruct mankind. Let them after their best thought without circumlocution: The practical man is the one, of all others, who knows just what to say and do, and who says and does it. He always comes to the point, regardless of rules or forms. He sees just how to suit the word to the action, and the action to the word; and the right word and the right action come and produce their effect.

While others hesitate he strikes; and the work is done before they have decided how they would do it. He is always doing, but does only what needs to be done: he is always learning, but learns only what he can use. His world is real, and not a soft bed for ease or

If he makes speeches he tells people what they ought to know; if books, he fills their with useful facts or practical truths; if he be a worker, he makes things for service and not for show He is no machine, but a live man with per ception and force neculiarly his own; and he has an inherent energy of character which brings everything around to his way.

He is never at a loss, but everywhere takes his place, and so well does he act his part that all men acknowledge that he was made for it. He has that clear perception, and that prompt, steady and determined purpose which produce

His will cannot be balked; for he has only to see that a thing must be done, and his only con-cern then is, how; it never occurs to him that

His ends are real, and the means he uses pro cisely adapted to promote them; so that he cer-tainly secures and actually enjoys the object for which he labors. He takes hold of life with a firm grasp, and wrests from it the good which he finds in it. He does not whine because he is not better off, but sets about making himself He does not envy those who are higher, so. He does not envy those who are much but climbs above them if his place is there.

It is his ambition to accomplish a positive and proper result, and not to make a show; so that pretensions is his especial dislike. He thinks more of the thing done than of the thing known; more of the power than the name to do. He talks because he has something to say, and not for the sake of talking, and lives for a purpose, and not because he does not happen to die.He is no foot-ball of men or circumstances, but himself plays with vigor and wins the game of life.

He consults utility in all things. Money to use, a house to live in, land to till, clothes to wear, victuals to eat, a horse and wagon for riding and for carrying things—nothing for the mere sake of having it, or of letting other people know that he has it. He will do the proper thing if it be agreeable, or if it be not. He judges men by the force

AN AWEWARD MISTAKE AT A WEDDING .-- A thew days ago a couple residing in the neighborhood of Bridestown, Devon, went to the parish church to be married. The bridegroom, instead of taking his intended bride at the church decreased accompanies has taken as the church as door and accompanying her to the altar, walk-ed thither with the bride's sister, who was one of the bride's maids. The bride appeared to have thought that her intended husband had changed his mind at the last moment, and she retired into a pew, in a very dejected state of mind. The ceremony proceeded, and it was mind. The ceremony proceeded, and it was not until the elergyman came to the important question, "Wilt thou have this woman to be thy wedded wife?" that the bridegroom was conscious of his mistake. He then looked round the church with astonishment, and exclaimed, "This is the wrong maid, sir!" The right maid was soon found; the ceremony was again commenced, and the right man—much to the satisfaction together with an innumerable variety of articles elegantly finished and at low rates. Mr. Joseph E. Hoover—A trial of your Liquid Hair Dye will convince the most skeptical, that it is a safe, elegant, and efficacious preparation. Unlike many others, it has in several instances proved serviceable in the cure of some cutane-cus cruptions on the head, and I have no hesitation in commending it to those requiring such an application. Very respectfully. J. F. X. McCLOSKEY, M. D.
