[From the St. Louis Democrat of the 8th.] The Killing of Jenkins, of Lawrence, by Gen. Lane.

The fact that Gaius Jenkins, of Lawrence was killed by James II. Lane, on Friday last, has already been reported by the telegraph.
The particulars of the horrible affair, as we learn from a gentleman who left the Territory on Saturday morning, are as follows: There was a dispute between Lane and Jenkins concerning a valuable land claim, lying in close proximity to Lawrence. This dispute the private relations of the parties. Some weeks ago Lane's family arrived in Kansas, and Lane took them upon the contested claim, without having a legal title to the same—the suit concerning the title being still before the proper tribunal. This action on the part of Lane cxcited Jenkins, but nothing passed between them till Friday; the 4th inst. On this day Jenkins informed Lane that he intended drawing som water from the well, on the claim. Lane told him to refrain, but Jenkins paid no attention to the caution, and made his appearance near the claim during the day. He was provided with a gun and an axe, and was accompanied by three companions. As he approached he fastencd. As he stepped forward, Lane appeared in front of the house armed with a load ed shot-gun. Jenkins gave a look of defiance at his enemy, and in the next moment fell to the earth, a corpse, having received an immense charge of buckshot in his breast.

As Jenkins fell, one of his friends fired three times at Gen. Lane, one ball missing him, the o her grazing his forehead, and the third burying, itself in the calf of his leg, bringing him to feeder for the weather than the weather that the weather than the weather that we were the weather than the weather that we were the weather than the weather that we were the weather th the ground. It was a harrowing spectacle. The body of Mr. Jenkins was soon removed and Laue taken into custody. Mrs. Jenkins is nearly crazed at the fearful intelligence of the death of her husband. She is lying in a dangerous condition. Jenkins bore an excellent character, and his loss will be deeply regret-

It is proper to state that Gen. Lane claims that he was fully justified in shooting down his adjutant general—for, strange as it may seem, such Jenkins was—and asserts that he can establish his justification before the courts of his country.
The feeling against Lane was general through-the teering agents bane was general through out the Territory.

Last reports indicate that there was some talk of lynching Lane, but it is hardly probable that this will be done. Lane is at present in close custody, and his trial will come off at

FULLER PÄRTICULARS. The Evening Bulletin publishes a letter, dated Lawrence, June 3d, giving the following

General Lane stated the facts of the case to be in substance as follows: "There has been some dispute as to the right he has to take water from the well, and as he abused my wife in this connection I decided to nail the gate leading to his premises, and also to put a lock on the well. This morning he sent me word by a young man, saying he should come this noon and take some water, and should not be fright-ened out of it. I replied, tell Jenkins for God's sake not to come, that I do not intrude on his premises, not even to visit the grave of my daughter, back of his house, and that I cannot have him intrude here-te'l him I beg him not to come. Immediately after dinner I looked out and saw Col. Jenkins beating down the gun, (the distance being about 100 feet.) I re turned and met them a short distance from the fence, approaching the well I ordered them to s op, which was disregarded. I then said, do sop, which was disregarded. I then said, do not advance a single step at the risk of your lives! (or something to this effect.) They continued to move forward; Colonel Jenkins swung his axe in a menacing manner, and his men presenting their pisto's. I again begged them not to move another step; but 'twas of no avail, and feeling my life in jeopardy. I put my guin to my shoulder and fired. (The distance was about twelve feet, and Col. Jenkins fell on his face and expired immediately.) One of his men then discharged a pistol at mer, the distance was only six or eight feet, and as I looked into was only six or eight feet, and as I looked into out floods. the pisiol, I suddenly moved my head. At this moment he fired, the ball striking my hair beside my forehead. I then received a ball in my leg, and being unarmed I retreated to my

L. after dinner, and did not know but 'twould be an ugly one. Col. Jenkins' friends do not deny that his workmen who accompanied him were all armed, and sate that Col. J. put his rifle beside the fence, and took the axe to cut down the gate, and after accomplishing this object, he laid it down beside the fence. This statement differs from Gen. Lane's, Mrs.

it in his hand until he was shot. Mrs. Lane the wife of Gen. Lane) gave me the following particulars: "When we moved to this house a few weeks ago, we found it exceedingly dirty and required a great deal of water to cleanse it, consquently the water in the well was very low and dirty. Col. Jenkins' men frequently came for water; we spoke to them about the condition of it, and urged them not to get any more of it; they disregarded this and the water was still unsettled, so my husband decided to lock the well. Col. Jenkins came soon after, and the well. Col. Jenkins came soon after, and fact. with an axe commenced breaking it open. I told him I thought it very ungentlemanly in him to do so against my desire. I then took hold of the axe and said, if you insist on doing it you must get another axe. I also added that my husband would soon return, and that he ought to desist until he came. He then went to a neighbor's house and got an axe, but desided to the transition of the manning a young to a neighbor's house and get an axe, but decided not to use it. This morning a young man came and told my husband that Colonel Jenkins infended to come during the evening, and was determined to have some water: My husband told him to go back and beseech Col. J. not to do it. I said to my husband that Col. J. would probably shoot him if he resisted, and that he ought to send for assistance. He and that he ought to send for assistance. He replied, no, I will risk myself. I then said, let replied, no. I will risk myself. I then said, let me go after your pistols, you certainly will be in danger without them. He compelled me to remain, and said he had a single barrelled shot gun in case of emergency. After dinner I saw Col. J. chopping down the gate, with three armed men. My husband went to him unarmed, and asked him to desist. Col. J. had succeeded in gaining an entrance and was an extended and gaining an entrance and was an extended in gaining an entrance and was an extended. ceeded in gaining an entrance, and was approaching my husband with an uplifted axe. supposed he would kill my husband, and I hurried into the house so as not to witness it.

(It was at this time that Gen. L. returned to the house, got the gun, and shot him.)

Gen. Lane and the men under Col Jenkins have been duly arrested, and an impartial trial will doubtless be had. Gen. L. is in consider erable pain, the ball not having been extracted. Both were brave men and jealous of their honor, and each determined not to succomb. This and not the water, I believe, was the cause of the fatal collision. The house in which Gen. Lane lives was built by a man by the name of Chapman, who, Col. Jenkins says, was his agent. The digging of the well was paid for y Jenkins, and not to have the use of it-exascrated him. Gen. Lane maintains that iought all, the land and improvement, of Mr. Salar of fair and good Red perated him. Gen. Lane maintains that he Chapman, three years ago. Various other things in addition to this make it a very knotty Mrs. Jenkins has often remarked to her husband that the claim would cost him his life. The above I believe to be an impartial statement of this unfortunate affair.
