THE BREEZE IN THE CHURCH.

Twas a sunny day, and the morning psalm We sang in the church togother ; We felt in our hearts the joy and calm Of the caim and joyous weather.

The slow, the sweet, and sacred strain, Through every bosom stealing," Check'd every thought that was light and vai And waked each holy feeling.

We knew by its sunny gleam how clear Was the blue sky smiling o'er us, And in every pause of the hymn could hear The wild bird's happy chorus.

And lo! from the haunts by cave or rill With a sunden start awaking, A breeze came fluttering down the hill, Its fragrant pinions shaking.

Through the open windows it bent its way, And down the chancel's centre, Like a privileged thing that at will migh stray, And in holy places cuter.

From niche to niche, from nook to nook, With a lightsome rustle flying, It lifted the leaves of the Holy Book, On the alter cushion lying.

It fann'd the old clerk's hoary hair, And the children's bright young faces ; Then vanish'd, none knew how or where, Leaving its pleasant traces.

It left sweet thoughts of summer hours Spent on the quiet mountains ; And the church seemed full of the scent of

And the trickling fall of fountains.

The image of scenes so still and fair With our music sweetly blended, While it seemed their whispered hymn too

In the praise that to heaven ascended.

And a purer passion was borne above, In a louder anthem swelling, In a louder anthem sweining, As we bow'd to the visible spirit of love,

On those calm summits delling. A Scene from Real Life.

There is many a_life scene more touching, more worthy of immortality than the deeds of conquerors or the heroes of history. The fol- having been selected with great care, he is sat lowing from the St. Louis Republican, is one:
