General Lane in Missouri.

SPEECH OF GENERAL JOE LANE, OF OREGON. We lay before our readers the able and in teresting speech of Gen. Lane, Senator from the new State of Oregon, delivered in the U. S. Senate, on the 19th ult., in reply to the remarks of Senators Pugh from Ohio, and Brown of Mississippi. The speech is not long, but there is more sound sense in it than any ech we have ever read. It is constitution al from beginning to end, and it is neither the Douglas doctrine nor the Southern extremist ctrine, but it is between the two, and both national, conservative and constitutional We have never read anything that suits us better for Democratic doctrine, or that em-better for Democratic doctrine, or that em-bodies our views so clearly. Senator Lane, by this speech, will stand a better chance for the Presidency than any man we know of. At the conclusion of the speech of the Hon. Joseph Lane, a brother Senator rose and paid him the following compliment. He said:—

"Mr. President, I rise to express the deep gratification I feel at having listened to the speech of the Senator from Oregon. There is in it more of conservatism, more of genuine nationality, more of that broad sentiment which covers this whole country, than in any speech which I have heard pronounced in the Senate during the present session, and I perhaps should not be extravagant if I said more than I have heard during half a dozen ses-

The pith of the remarks thus eulogized are has no power over the question of slavery; that they cannot, under the Constitution, establish it in a Territory or prohibit it; and that a Legislative Assembly in a Territory, conving its property. deriving its powers from Congress, cannot do what Congress itself cannot do." There cannot be a more equitable and just method of settling this question than by adhering to this construction of the powers of the government under the Constitution. There is no possibility of invading the rights of the States North or South under such an interpretation.

The Senator from Oregon lays a manly grasp upon the Constitution, and urges that equal rights of the States be maintained inviolate: for one section cannot with prope respect for its own interests, inflict a wrong on another section, no sooner than it would willing to submit to injustice attempted to be imposed upon themselves. He sees clea ly, as every true patriot must see, that "the principles of justice and equality must prevail in this country, or there can be no Union. We cannot do better than quote his own language, where he says: "I do not see how any man who loves the Union and the Consti tution can discriminate between the sections of this country, and pretend to say that the ommon Territory of all shall be given exclusively to free labor or to slave labor.

The citizens of the States have equal rights in the Territory while it remains in a rritorial condition; and when the people who inhabit come to form a State constitu tion, then it is their right to prohibit slavery or to establish it as they see fit, and they have a right to be admitted into the Union as they shall decide." He is not willing to proscribe Democrats who differ with him in opinion on this Territorial question. He says in regard to this, speaking of Senators Douglas and Pugh: "They are both good Democrats—upon all essential questions, this only excepted .-They will both labor to prevent the elec a sectional man to the Presidency, and will, I have no doubt, do all in their power to secure the election of the nominee of the Charleston

"Both love the Union; they stand upon th principle of right as they understand it, but I must differ from them as to the power of the people in a Territory, while in a Territoria ondition; but as I said before, they will, I have no doubt, labor faithfully with the De racy to secure the election of the nominee of the Charleston Convention.'

Whilst Wise, Dickinson and Douglas have certainly great hold upon the popular senti-ment, the Charleston Convention may likely find it prudent to look in the far distant Northwest and nominate Hon. Joseph Lane, of Oregon, for the Presidency.—Macon Legion Bloomington, Mo., Jan. 14, 1860.

A Queen can Never go Shopping.

jesty when she knows the fact, that, according to royal etiquette, a queen cannot speak to a tradesman. A late work says: "Victoria has been seen standing not a yard away from one, addressing all her inquiries to an equerry, who repeated them to the tradesman, and again repeated to her majesty all his answers.'
And the writer gives the additional information that she must die of thirst rather than pour out a glass of water for herself. When on a visit to the royal family of France, at Eu, the Queen of Belgium had been told that her Majesty of England took, every morning at ten o'clock, a glass of iced water. Accordingly, on the day of her arrival, a servant duly made his appearance at the appointed hour, bearing on a silver salver a carrife and two glasses, which he tendered to the sovereign, who declined the refreshments with a wave of the hand. The Belgian Queen seeing this whispered to her son, who was present, to pour out a glass of water and offer it to the Queen; this being done, was graciously accepted, the fact being that etiquette would not allow her Majesty to pour out the water for herself when a servant was present."

THE OLD LADY AND "HER INTEREST."-The Old Lady and "Her Interest."—A reperable woman who is the owner of three shares in one of the banks in this city has so long received a semi-annual dividend of five per cent, that she was of the opinion that she per cent. The light produce and state of the period was entitled to $15 every six months, and she was always prompt to visit the institution for what she called "her interest." The last dividend was only four per cent, and when the labdy called she was raid $12. After signing LYKEN'S VALLEY, was always prompt to visit the institution for what she called "her interest." The last dividend was only four per cent., and when the lady called she was paid $12. After signing the divident book she counted the bills and told the clerk he had made a mistake, as "he interest" was $15 every six months and she Had been paid that sum as long as she could remember. Explanations were in vain; the old stockholder insisted that "her interest" was $30'a year; she knew nothing and cared nothing about "dividends and all that"—she wanted "her interest." The busy clerks were too much engaged to listen to the remonstran ces of the owner of the three shares, and sh called for the President, who, she averred, knew all about her rights. Upon being told that the person she named was no longer at the head of the institution, she replied, "That accounts for it all; the new set don't know how much my interest is. I will go and see She called upon our esteemed and liberal fellow citizen at his house and stated her case in most earnest tones.
