cusi. The present is announced as the year for the return of the seventeen year loca as some alarm is felt in regard to the advent and purposes of these creatures, we have re-ferred to Dr. Jaeger's work on American in-sects for the recorded knowledge in regard to them. Dr. Jaeger believes that the term of life of this locust is not extended to seventeen years, but that it is limited to two years. Dr. Harris, a distinguished entomologist, decides in favor of the longer term, and says that Professor Agassiz, and other scientific men from Europe, who originally inclined to the "short term," now adopt the popular belief.

We will leave the entomologists to adjust their differences, and will describe the habits of the Cicada. The Cicada now commencing its piping in New Jersey and on Staten Is land, is not the locust of Scripture. The biblical locust, the plague of the East, is an oriental relative of our grasshopper, and the farming community in some sections of our are well aware of the desolating appetite of the grasshopper, when this tribe accumulates in large numbers, and goes forth with insatiable may to blast and devour every thing in their path, or "hop." Our red-eyed Cicada is a creature of an altogether different temperament, and may be thus described:

temperament, and may be thus described:

Its eyes are red, the head and chest black, and the abdomen black, and divided by orange-colored rings. It has an inflated snoutvery short setaceous (bristly) antennæ, four membraneous wings, and six feet. The musical organs are beautiful shell-formed membraneous was a writer under the bases. branes spread over a cavity under the breast, on each side. The ovipositor is a long, sharp instrument in three parts, with saw-teeth on the sides. By this instrument it digs into small limbs, and deposits its eggs in about a week after leaving the ground.

He has no mouth, and therefore cannot eat In his brief piping career, which lasts only two months, he sucks dew from the leaves, and does no harm to vegetation, except occa-sionally injuring twigs by the perforations of his ovipositor. Says Dr. Jaeger, he is "a harmless, lovely creature, and has been celebrated for his song from the most ancient times." His voice was charming to the Greeks, for it gave life to the solitude of the shady groves and academic walks, and gave assurance to the hearer that it was a perfect ly happy being. The Greeks caged it, and called it the "Sweet Prophet of the Summer," the "Love of the Muses," and by other tonder appellations: In Southern Europe Cicators and Summer, "Southern Europe Cicators and Summer Europe Cicators das are always found. They live upon the olive and the ash. From the latter, when pierced by their stings, there exudes a liquid, which when dry is called "manna." The female Cicada is dumb. As old Anaxagoras said's

"Happy the Cicadus' lives,... Since they all have voiceless wives."

goras as a "brute" for uttering such "horrid" language, he was nevertheless a kind man.— On his death-bed, when asked how he wished to be commemorated, he said, "Let the boys play on the anniversary of my death." The Cicada deposits its eggs in the twigs of trees and bushes. It soon after dies, falls the ground and dries up, if not eaten by hirds or animals. The eggs are white, oval, hatch in six weeks, the larvæ fall to the earth each having a mouth and six legs, retreat be-low the surface; and there lie, feeding feebly upon roots, and awaiting their resurrection. When this period comes, they emerge from the ground, climb a tree or fence, pass through a series of fits and spasms, break their shells and appear as callow Cicadas, ready for their sixty days career, and to fulfil their destiny

Such are the short and simple annals of the

Some thirty years ago there lived in the city of London, an opulent Jewish banker of the name of R. As rich men usually have, the subject of the present sketch had a beautiful daughter rejoicing in the scriptural name of Sarah. As Sarah reached the age of womanhood, her beauty, coupled with her fathman wealth, drew to her feet many suitors.
Only one, however, could gain the prize; and that was H., the son of a rich Polish nobleGENTLEMEN: Your note of the 15th inst., has been man. But when did the "course of true-love run smooth?" H. and his father became mixed up in one of the many revolutions that curred in Poland, their estates were confiscated; and they were obliged to flee for their lives. With the flight of H.'s riches, R. discovered that his intended son-in-law would not do, and so told the young people. The lovers separated with vows of eternal constancy, H. emigrated to this country, and Sarah remaining in London. But as the copy-book says, "out of sight of mind," and so in this case. The sea had rolled between the lovers for about a year, when a rich suitor paid his addresses to Sarah, who accepted and married him. H. was almost distracted when he heard the news, but reflection coming to his aid, he consoled himself by also marrying. Years passed on; the husband of Sarah died last year, leaving her a widow, penniless, and with eleven children. In the meantime the wife of H. died, leaving him eight children. When H. heard of the abject condition of his first love all his old affections returned. He pictared his Sarah poor, and with a large family dependent upon her, which resulted in his nding for her and her children. After mutual reiterations of unchanged affections, the marriage day was fixed, and on Sunday last the parties were married by a Jewish minis-ter. They numbered one hundred and four years between them—the lady being fifty years of age, with traces of her former great beauty still existing, and the husband being fifty-four years old. The newly married couple have a grown up family of nineteen clive branches to twine around their domestic

A popular preacher tells a good story as a hit at those kind of Christians who are too indolent to pursue the duties required of them by the faith. He says that one pious gentleman composed a very fervent prayer to the Almighty, wrote it out legibly, affixed the manuscript to the bed post, then, on cold mights, he merely pointed to the "document," and said:

"Oh, Lord! those are my sentiments!" blew out the light, and nestled among the DEATH OF A DESPERADO.—Robert H. Last Sunday night a week, Bowers met Thomas Paine, a brother of the girthe had treated so infamously, and a fight at once began, during which Bowers was stabbed, and died the following evening from the wound. FOR Statesmen, Judges, Clergymen, Ladies and Gentlemen, in all parts of the world testify to the efficacy of Prof. O. J. Wood's Hair Restorative, and gentlemen of the Press are unanimous ble for you to doubt:

47 Wall Street, New York, Dec. 20th, 1858.
GENTLEMEN: Your note of the 15th inst., has been received, saying that you heard that I had been benefited by the use of Wood's Hair Restorative, and requesting my certificate of the fact if I had no objection to give it.

I award it to you cheerfully, because I think it due. My age is about 50 years; the color of my hair auburn, and inclined to curl. Some five or six years since it began to turn gray, and the scalp on the crown of my head to lose its sensibility and dandruff to form upon it. Each of these disageabilities increased with time, and about four months since a fourth was added to them, by hair falling off the top of my head and threatening to make me bald.

In this unpleasant predicament, I was induced to try Wood's Hair Restorative, mainly to arrest the falling off of my hair, for I had really no expectation that gray hair could ever be restored to its original color except from dyes. I was, however, greatly surprised to find after the use of two bottles only, that not only the falling off was arrested, but the color was restored to the gray hairs and sensibility to the scalp, and dandruff ceased to form on my head, very much to the gratification of my wife, at whose solicitation I was induced to try it.

For this, among the many obligations I owe to be ready a strengtly recompany and all heabands who

For this, among the many obligations I owe to hor sex, I strongly recommend all husbands who value the admiration of their wives to profit by my example, and use it if growing gray or getting bald. Very respectfully, BEN.A. LAVENDER.

To O. J. Wood & Co., 444 Broadway, New York.

Siamaston, Ala., July 20th, 1850.

To Prof. O. J. Wood: Dear Sir: Your "Hair Restorative" has done my hair so much good since I commenced the use of it, that I wish to make known to the PUBLIC of its effects on the hair known to the PUBLIC of its effects on the hair, which are great. A man or woman may be nearly deprived of hair, and by a resort to your "Hair Restorative," the hair will return more beautiful than
