

Democrats Organize!
The nomination of Gen. Henry D. Foster, of Westernland, for Governor, by the Reading Convention, has occasioned the most unbounded satisfaction among the Democracy of Pennsylvania. It has been received everywhere with demonstration of joy and pleasure. No political event ever occurred in this Commonwealth which gave rise to the same degree of enthusiasm, as the unanimous nomination of our gallant champion. It has closed every division in our ranks, and it has made our party a unit in the Old Keystone. Our friends must not imagine, however, that the struggle will be a long and arduous one. Terror stricken though the Opposition may be on account of the action of the late Democratic Convention, they will nevertheless contest every inch of ground. We must meet them with thoroughness and organized forces. Let the good work be commenced at once. In every ward, borough, and township, let the Democracy be organized and disciplined. This will insure a victory, such as never before resulted from a political contest in Pennsylvania.

Employment.—It is dangerous for a man of superior ability to find himself thrown upon the world without some regular employment. The restlessness inherent in genius, and the impetuosity of its impulses, often lead to accidents. Moral integrity sometimes falls a prey to the want of a fixed pursuit, and the man who receives his direction in active life from the fortuitous impulse of chance, will be very apt to receive his principles likewise from chance.

Genius, under such guidance, attains its noble ends, but resembles rather a copious spring overflowing in fallen aqueduct, where the waters continually escape through the frequent crevices, and waste themselves ineffectually on their passage. The law of nature is here, as elsewhere, binding, and no powerful results ever ensue from trival exercise of high endowments.

The finest man, when thus destitute of a fixed purpose, passes away without leaving permanent traces of his existence—losing its being, by turning aside from its course, it becomes as harmless and inefficient as the lightning, which, if itself irresistible, will be rendered powerless by a slight conductor.

Prudential Robbery.—Prudence! But what is prudence? Not meaning to do to possess a negatively disposition. To be prudent is not to save every thing you can for your own and others' use a pin and a penny, a crust of bread and a potato, a scrap of paper and an inch of cloth. This disposition is far removed from prudence, and is a virtue which should be suppressed. It is painful to witness the waste in some families. Large pieces of bread are suffered to mould, and are then given to the hogs; potatoes become sour and are useless, and the leavings of a good meal to-day are thrown away to-morrow. With such people it is waste, waste, waste, and nothing but waste. Wood is lavishly thrown upon the fire, chairs and tables are broken, and from the garret to the cellar the house looks as if some bolt of lightning had been wandering about.

We love economical people—we do sincerely—and never had reason to complain of their meanness. Everything about their dwellings looks neat and tidy, and you can sit down to a meal, you can eat comfortably without thinking of the peck of dirt—Mrs. Gage.

Thrifts.—There are three things that never become truly—the money of the bankrupt, the butcher's horse, and a woman's tongue.

Three things not easily done—to ally thirst with fire, to dry wet with water, to please all with everything that is good.

Three things to be avoided as their better—dirty water to extinguish fire, a homely wife to a blind man, and a wooden sword to a coward.

Three warnings from the grave—thou knowest what I was, thou knowest what I am, remember what thou art to be.

Three things of short continuance—a lady's love, a chip fire, and a brook's flood.

Three things that ought never be absent from home—the cat, chimney, and housewife.

Three things to be avoided as their devil—the walk of a thief, and the voice of a devil.

Three things that is unwise to boast of—the flavor of thy ale, the beauty of thy wife, and the contents of thy purse.

A Beautiful Extract.—Beautiful is old age, beautiful as the slow drooping of mellow autumn, or a rich glorious summer. In the old man, nature has fulfilled her designs; she loads him with the fruits of a well spent life; and surrounded by his children, she bestows her softest away to the grave, to which he is followed by blessings. God forbid that we should not call it beautiful. There is another life, hard, rough and thorny, trodden with bleeding feet, and with a battle which no peace follows this side of the grave; which the grave gapes to finish before the victory is won; and strange that it should be this is the highest life of man. Gaze upon the great names of history; there is none whose life has been other than this.

Try what you can make of the broken fragments of time. Clean up its gold—those raspings and parings of precious duration, those hours of days and moments of days which so many sweep out into the waste of existence. Perhaps, if you be a miser of moments, if you be frugal and hoard up odd minutes and half-hours and unexpected holidays, your careful gleanings may eke out a long and useful life, and you may die a last richer in existence than multitudes whose time is all their own.

Drink for Young Calves.—When the calves have learned to drink, prepare the following broth for them:

"Take a large pot and fill it with hay and water, then boil it until the strength is out, strain off this broth, and to six quarts of it add one pint of milk—this is sufficient for one calf. As they begin to grow the milk should be increased. This food is not only cheaper, but far better than milk, or any other drink, because it makes them strong, healthy and elastic.

Pure Love is $100,000.—At Livingston's Manor, N. Y., recently, an old gentleman of 75 years, named Lerow, married a young and beautiful damsel of 18 summers, named McIsland, residing near Hudson. The old gentleman's consideration is pure love and devotion; the young lady's was the settlement upon her of $100,000 in her own right by the happy groom. This is midsummer sliding into the lap of winter in a verity. The blind old's wings were slightly tipped with gold, this time, we take it.

Effects of Grief.—A fellow, living on the shore of the Ohio river, near, Indiana, having recently lost his wife, crossed in a boat to the Kentucky side, visited a graveyard there, and stole a tombstone, which he placed over the remains of his better half.

A Negro being caught stealing from a henroost, excused himself by saying, "Dat he only come dar to see if do chickens sleep wid dar eyes open."

Pompey said he once worked for a man who raised wages so high that he could not reach them once in two years.

"Never saw such stirring times," as the spoon said to the sauceman.

The great rock upon which all our fortunes rise, is "Rock the cradle."
