Harvesting Timothy Seed.

S. Edwards Todd gives his methods of harvesting this crop in the Country Gentleman of the 4th instant. He says:

I have been accustomed to practice several different ways of gathering timothy seed, being influenced by circumstances. If the timothy was very tall, not too heavy we cut it with a grain-cradle, cutting it as high as practicable, after which it was raked and bound, and set up in long shocks, and al lowed to cure about three or four days-ac cording to the state of the weather—when it was hauled to the barn. The stubble was then cut close to the ground for hay. Sometimes when the bottom of the grass was not very thick, we cut it with a machine close to the ground, and left it in small geavels for a day or two, if the weather was favorable for making hay, when we would turn them over, and stir them up a little, and then bind them and as they were cured they were hauled to the barn, and not put into a large solid mow, but spread over a large surface, so as not to injure the vitality of the seed.

Another way, which has been my most uniform practice, is, to mow the grass with a scythe, as soon as the seed is ripe enough to cut, and allow it to remain about one day in the swath, just as it was moved; and the next day, if the swaths were rather thick and heavy, we would turn them upside down, by running a long fork handle, or a smooth light pole, under the swath near the tops of the grass, and turn it over bodily. Should there he some very thick and green bunches in some places, they should be stirred up, so that the would dry out in a day or so if the weather were favorable. As soon as it is cured, we would bind in small bundles, and shock it and allow it to cure for several days.

when it may be stacked or put in the barn. Most farmers allow their seed to remain too long in the field after it is cut. The seed is very small when compared with ker nels of cereal grains, and consequently does not require as long time to cure. As soon as the straw is well cured, there will be no fears about the seed.

Preparation of Bones for Usc.

The best and cheapest method of preparing bones for manure is, first, to boil them in strong ley a few hours, to extract from them the animal matter, or what would be more convenient, perhaps, break them as fine as convenient, and put them in a tub of ley to remain there during pleasure, until the ani-mal matter is all extracted and incorporated with the ley. The mineral part of the bones will now be found very friable and easily pulverized. They should be rinsed clean, pulverized and part in another than the clean of the should be received and part in another than the clean of th verized, and put in another tub or trough Apply to them some diluted sulphuric acid the proportion of one of acid to five o water. Stir them frequently, and in a shor time they will be entirely decomposed and fitted for use. These two masses, being equally rich in the elements of fertility, the one of ammonia and the other of phosphorus, are equally valuable as fertilizers, and adapted to any and every variety of soil that may be deficient in these elements, and equally necessary for the healthful maturity of every growing plant, whether of grain, grasses, or roots. I now advise a mixture of these two masses with the general compost, to secure a masses with the general compost, to secure a general diffusion of them upon the different fields to be manured. My reason for the general diffusion of these masses upon the different fields is, first, every plant needs them. Secondly, the farmer's resources, in this line, will be mainly within himself.—

This will be true of those that live at a distance of the second of the se tance from villages and cities. Their resources must be small. Thirdly, the elements of the bone, both animal and mineral; were taken from the different fields, and should therefore, be returned to the same fields. To keep up the fertility of each field, it is necessary to return to it annually the same ele ments that are taken away. The farmer may secure a larger crop of any kind, on any field, by robbing other fields of the same elements of fertility to enrich that one. But such a policy would not only be bad, but ruinous, if pursued.—Country Gentleman.

Wonderful Calculation.

A writer thus undertake to convey some idea of the greatness of the population of China; "The mind cannot grasp the import of so yast a number. Four hundred millions? What does it mean? Count it. Night and day, without rest, or food, or sleep, you conday, without rest, or lood, or sleep, you continue the weary work; yet e even days have passed before you count the first million, and more than as many years before the end of tedious task can be reached." But the cir-cuit of the world itself affords no standing room. The poorest man may, in his cottage, bid defiance to all the forces of the crown.
