From the American Agricu REARING AND FATTENING HOGS.

BY GATES HENRY, SCHUTLKILL CO., PA. The hog is well known all over the world and is confined to no one part in particular. It belongs to the same class of animals as the elephant and rhinoceros, the thick skinned, or Pachydermata. The utility of the hog is in a great measure owing to its very remarkable fecundity, reroducing at one year old, and bearing from eight to ten young at a time (sometimes oven ore), and that twice a year. Some man-offigures has estimated the product of a single sow, with only six young at a time, in ten generations, to be about 6,500,000.

The hog was the animal which the Ancients sacrificed to the goddess of the harvest, Ceres. It has been estimated that there are raised in the United States, yearly, about forty millions of hogs, which at $7 per head amounting to the immense sum of $280,000,000; if, then the log could be so improved as to raise his value one dollar a head, an immense amount of money would accrue to the interest of the farmer. As you say in your prospectus that JRON-100 tons of Iron-Hammered and farmer. As you say in your prospectus that you wish a farmer's experience with raising ranted to be of the best quality, with a large as the hog, killing, curing, etc., in preference to his acquired knowledge of the brute, I will be candid enough to acknowledge that I do not know the breed of my own swine. They are only of moderate length, with broad square shoulders and hams, short legs and great depth, medium sized heads and straigh

Hardly a day passes that we do not hear the remark, "as dirty as a hog." This, I consider, a vilification of the animal when Frankhin's colored servant said was the " only gentleman in England," from the fact that he was the only animal in that country that did not work; I believe that the filthy habits of the hog are in a very great measure owing to his domestication, for in this state he is cribbed up in a small pen, and is fed upon the offal of everything—upon the most disgusting food —and is considered as much an instrument for converting filth into compost, as a source of wholesome and palatable food. He has the propensity of wallowing in the mire com mon to all animals of his order, but generally for the purpose of ridding himself of vermin, and of protecting his thinly covered skin from hippopotamus. No animal displays the changes arising from domestication more than the hog, which may be observed by contrasting the long legged, wild and savage boar, with the short-shanked, docile, fat and plump Pennsylvania hog, which with difficulty walks rapidly across the confines of his narrow pen. Breeding and Rearing.

In selecting my breeding hogs, I always pick out the best shaped, most thriving boar pig to keep over for a breeder. For a sow I select a healthy shoat, well shaped, but thin and lank, in preference to a fat and sleek one; my reasons for this are, that the lean sow will produce more pigs, and raise them better, than one in high order—the sleek one converts all her food into fat and flesh for her own sides and back, while in the lean one it is converted into food for the young .-This rule is applicable to all animals. A cow that shows every rib when in milk, will bring forth larger and better calves, and give more and better milk, than the one which always looks fat enough for slaughter. My experience fully sustains my theory.

My mode of raising hogs which are intended to be kept over, is to have them pigged about the latter part of August or first of September, and after allowing them to run with the sow from four to six weeks, confine them in a separate pen. When first taken from the sow they should be fed from six to eight times a day, or else they will fall off in flesh, and it will take them weeks to recruit. Their usual allowance, at first should be about a pint of milk to each pig, and in order to facili ne to them, the mil barrel should be kept standing very near the pen, from which it can be dipped with a pail with very little trouble, being replenished night and morning with fresh skimmed milk from the dairy. The quantity for each pig should be gradually increased each day according to the growth of the pigs, until they have attained the age of three or four months when a regular allowance should be made them; and the number of times feeding may be diminished. At this time in the pig's life a little grain fed night and morning, will not be thrown away on him; a little oats or rye if the pig is in a healthy condition, followed by about a pint of corn, which may be sub-sequently increased to a quart. This addition of grain will tell amazingly in the growth of the animal, as well as have a tendency to keep him in such a condition, that when "fattening time" arrives he will be ready for the knife much sooner than the hog fed only on slops without the daily quota of corn to say nothing of the saving of a good deal more corn than has been used up to this time in the feeding. The milk from the dairy, when weakened by the slops from the kitchen, should occasionally through the week be enriched by the addition of rye bran:

Sty and Bedding. There is no greater mistake made by farmers than allowing swine to run out of the pen. To say nothing of the immense destruction they are liable to do, they so completely run themselves down that it takes almost double the amount of feeding to get them in condition for butchering.

The pen in which hogs are kept-should consist of two apartments—a covered one and an uncovered one. An excellent manner in which to construct a pig-sty, is to erect a two story frame building, having a part of the under story boarded off for a place in which story frame building, having a part of the under story boarded off for a place in which to keep the slop barrel, reserving the rest for a dry pen for the hogs, and have a pen constructed outside, and communicating with this covered one. The feeding trough should be in the outside pen. In this manner if the worrenared to get un Clathing in the most feeding. be in the outside pen. In the upper part of this pen should be kept lithiness, Shades and Blinds of all kinds. 1,000 lbs. Carpet chain; Feathers; Cotton Batting; ter for the bedding for the hogs; or a part of it may be partitioned off for a hennery.

I have adopted what I consider a very good as well as economical plan of getting the upper part of my hog building filled with good littering material. It is this: When haul-ing in my cornfodder I cut off about two feet of the hard, dry buts, which the cattle cannot eat, and have them bound into small bumbles and stowed them away in the upper portion of the hog house, to be used as required .-These corn buts when thrown into the outside pen are so torn and trampled up that they are pen are so torn and trampled up that they are converted into good, lasting manure, which has not its superior on the farm, and which would be almost entirely lost if fed to the cattle in the golds extracted in the golds of the cattle in cattle in the gelds, etc.

Fattening.

When fattening time comes, I generally commence by feeding the "nubbins," and after two or three weeks, follow them up with shelled corn. This I always feed boiled, shelled corn. This I always feed boiled, boiling in the morning what is required during the day, and at night what is necessary for the morning. Feeding thus, brings my work nearly all in daylight. In this way I can make my hogs fat enough for all practical purposes, by feeding them from ten to fifteen and twenty bushels of corn, each, and a leaver Hats, are unsurpassed for lightness, durable land the statement of the statement in the country.
