A STORY OF THE BATTLE FIELD. A French veteran, with one arm, was scated before the door of his neat cottage on a pleasant evening in July.
He was surrounded by several village lads, who with one vice entreated him to commence his promised story. The old man took his pipe from his mouth, wiped his lips with the back of his remaining hand, and began In my time, boys, Frenchman would have secrned to fight with Frenchmen in the streets as they do now. No, no; when we fought it was for the glory of France and against her enemies. My story begins with the 9th of November, 1812, a short time after the battles of Wiazina.

We were beating a retreat, not before the Russians, for they kept a respectable distance from our cantoninents, but before the biting cold of their detestable country, more terrible to us than the Russians, Austrians and Bavarians all put together. For the last few days our officers had been telling us that we were approaching Smolenska, where we would be certain of finding food, fire and shoes; but in the meantime we were perishing in the ice, and perpetually harrassed by bands of Cossack riders.

We had marched about six hours without pausing to take breath, for we knew repose was certain death. A bitter wind hurled snow flakes in our faces, and now and then we stumbled over the corpses of our frozen comrades. No singing or talking! Even the grumblers ceased to complain, and that was a bad sign.

I walked behind my captain; he was short man, strongly built, rugged and severe but brave and true as his own sword blade. We called him Captain Positive, for when he once said a thing, so it was—no appeal; he never changed his mind. He had been wounded at Wiszina, and his usually red face was now quite pale, while the pieces of an old white handkerchief which he had wrapped around his leg were soaked with blood. eaw him first move slowly, then stagger like a solid block.

Parbleu! Captain," said I, bending over him, "you can't lie there."
"You see that I can, because I do," re plied he, pointing to his limbs. "Captain," said I, "you mustn't die aged to place him on his feet. He leaned on and raising him in my arms I manme and tried to walk, but in vain : he fell once more, dragging me with him, ...

"John," said he, "tis all over now. Just leave me here and join your column as quickly as you can. One word before you go. At Vereppe, near Grenoble, lives a good woman, eighty four years old, my—mother. Go to her, embrace her, and tell her that—tell her what you like, but give her this purse and my cross. That's

"Is that all, Captain?"

"I said so. Good bye; and haste:"
Boys, I don't know it was, but I felt two tears freezing on my checks. "No Captain," cried I, "I won't leave you either, you shall come with me, or I will stay with you.

"I forbid you staying." "Captain, you might as well forbid a woman's talking."
"If I escape I will punish you severely."

"You may place me under arrest then but just now you must let me dons I please.' "You are an insolent fellow."

"Very likely, Captain, bat you must come He bit his lips with anger, but said no more. I raised him and placed his body across my shoulder like a sack. You may casily imagine that while bearing such a bur-den I could not move as fast as my comrades. Indeed, I soon lost sight of their columns, and could perceive nothing but the white, silent plain around me.

I moved on and presently there appeared a band of Cosssacks gallopping toward me, their lances in rest and shouting their fiendish war cry.

The captain was by this time in a state of it might, and not to abandon him. I laid him on the ground, covered with snow, and then crept under a heap of my dead comrades, having however, my eyes at liberty. Soon the Cossacks reached us and began striking their lances right and left, while the horse trampled the bodies. Presently one of these rude beasts placed his foot my left arm and crushed it to pieces. Boys, I did not say a word; I did not move, save to thrust my right hand into my mouth to keep down the cry of torture, and in a few minutes the Cossacks disappeared. When the last of them had ridden off, I crept out and managed to disinter the captain. He showed few signs of life; nevertheless I contrived with one hand to drag him toward a rock which offered a sort of shelter.

and then lay down next to him, wrapping my capote around him.

Night was closing in, and the snow continued to fall. The last of the rear guard had Full and Second Mourning Prints, ling disappeared, and the only sounds that broke the stillness were the whistling of distant bullets and the nearer howling of the wolves, which were devouring the dead God knows what things we were passing in my boson that night, which I thought was my last on earth. But I remembered the prayer my mother had taught me long when I was a child by her side, and kneeling down I said it fervently. Boys, it did me good, and always remember that sincere prayer will do you good, I felt wonderfully calm when I resumed my place by the captain. But time passed on, and I was becoming quite benumed, when I saw a party of French officers ap-proaching. Before I had time to address them, the formost, a low-sized man, dressed in fur pellisse, stepped toward me saying : "What are you doing here? Why did you stay behind your regiment?" For two good reasons," said I, pointing first to the captain and then to my bleeding

'The man speaks the truth, sir," said one of the followers. "I saw him marching behind the column carrying the officer on his back." The Emperor—for, hoys, it was he -gave me one of those looks which only himself or an Alpine Eagle could give, and said :

"Tis well; you have done well." Then opening his pellisse, he took the cross which decorated his inside coat and gave it to me.
"Devonst," said the Emperor, addressing the gentlemen who had spoken, "cause the man and captain to be placed in the ammunition wagon. Adieu!" and waving his hand toward me he passed on.

rest for fifteen days as a punishment for breach of discipline. The circumstance reached Napoleon's ears, and, laughing heartily, he not only released me, but promoted me to be a sergeant. As to the decoration, here is the ribbon, boys. I wear that in my button hole, but the cross near my heart. And unbutning his coat, the veteran showed his young friends the precious relic, enveloped in a little band suspended around

STÖCK, which cannot be surpassed, bave the patronage of the public. R. SHOWER. Carlisle, April 12, 1861. CARLISLE FOUNDRY, Farming Implement Depote GARDNER & CO. now manufacture and keep constantly FOR SALE, at their extensive Steam Works on East Main st., Carlisle, a large assortment of Agricultural Implements, of well known and approved usefulness to Farmers, among which they would call especial attention to WILLOUGHBY'S CELEBRATED Patent Gum Spring Grain Drill, which has taken over fifty first class premiums at State and County Fairs. To the farmers of Cumberland, York and Perry counties we need not speak in detail of the merits of this drill, as scores of them are now in use on the best farms in these counties.

Its reputation is established as the most complete grain drill now manufactured in the United States.

It sows Wheat, Rye, Oats Barley and Grass, evenly and creular, without burneling the seed. The and regular, without bunching the seed. The gum springs pass the drill over stumps and stones, without breaking pins or the drill. For even and regular sowing, the Willoughby Gum Spring Drill is unequalled by any other. We also manufacture and sell the following articles, which we can recommend to farmers as reliable implements of established character:

character : Morrison's Patent Corn Planter, Lash's Patent Straw and Fodder Cutter, Bridendolf's Patent Corn Sheller, Johnston's Cast Iron Hoys' Trough, Harn's Patent Cider Mill. Also, Three and Four Horse Powers and Threshother articles for farmers too numerous to mention.

Also, Egg Coal Stoves and ten plate Wood Stoves, with an immense variety of other castings for house keepers and others. We have also an attractive variety of patterns for IRON RAILINGS, and Cometery enclosures, to which we would call STEAM ENGINES AND MILL GEARING. To this department of our business we give particular attention. Our already extensive stock of patterns for paper, flour and saw mill gearing, is constantly increasing. Mill owners and millwrights will be furnished with a printed catalogue of our various mill patterns on application. Our machineshop comprises all the various tools for turning, planing and finishing shatting and casting, by good and careful machinists.

ing Machines, Cast Iron Field Rollers, Plough Castings of various patterns, Corn Crushers, and other articles for farmers too numerous to mention.

STATIONARY STEAM ENGINES, of every desirable capacity, from 10 to 25 horse power, built in the best style and on accommodating terms. Engines built at our establishment may be seen in successful operation at many of the largest distilleries and tanuncries in Carlisle, and Cumb'd, Perry and Dauphin cos., to the owners of which we confidently refer for information as to their efficiency. Persons wanting Steam Engines are carnestly requested to call and examine before contracting elsewhere.

lsowhere. DOOR AND SASH FACTORY. Connected with our establishment is a steam Sast, and Door Manufactory which is now in complete order for the manufacture of overy description of
