when ripe, a pale scarlet.

The bush is very productive. Every branch is loaded with berries, which grow two in a place, on the opposite side of each other, and about an incli and a half apart. When ripe the skin bursts open and the grain of coffee falls on the ground; but a more general way is to spread something under the bush and shake the coffee down. After the outer skin is taken off, there remains a kind of husk over each kernel which is broken off (after being well dried in the sun) by heavy rollers. The coffee after this, needs winnowing, in order to be treed from the broken particles of the bush. It has been said by some writers that one bush with another will not average more than a pound of coffee.

Black pepper is also raised to some extent on the Island of Java, but Sumatra, which lies just across the Straits, is by fur the most celebrated for this commodity. Her pepper is the finest and most abundant of any one country in the world. Black pepper grows on a vine very much like our currants. There is this difference however; the current has each its own distinct stem, but the pepper has not; every grain grows hard unto one common stem, just as each grain of Indian corn does on the cob. The color of the pepper, when first ripe, is almost a bright red, and changes to the dead black by being ex posed to the sun.

The white pepper is nothing more than the common black, with the outer skin taken off. It is first soaked until this skin bursts open, which is then rubbed off, and the grain dried. The white is not considered so pungent as the black; though it is nicer and more expensive, as more labor is necessary in order to prepare it.

Testing the Quality of Milk.

A simple and reliable method of ascertain ing the amount of butter in milk would be of great service. Many lactometers have been invented, but upon trial have proved unreliable. M. Marchard has lately devised a method which will determine the amount tube, closed at one end, and of about half an inch in diameter, add an equal volume of other (having previously rendered the milk cher (naving previously rendered the milk slightly alkaline by the addition of a tew drop, of a solution of caustic soda or potash.) The same volume of alcohol as that of the ether employed is then added, the proper quantities of milk, ether and alcohol to be used being indicated by these made as the constant. used being indicated by three marks on the tube. After each addition to the milk, the tube is to be well shaken for a few moments during which time it is to be firmly closed with the thumb of the hand holding it. The alcohol having been added, and the contents of the tube finally well shaken, it is then only necessary to immerse the tube for a few minutes in a ressel of warm water (the temperature of which is about 100° F.), when an mixture in which is about 100° F.), when an city layer will form on the surface of the mixture in the tube, and its thickness will be in direct proportion to the richness of the milk in butter. By having a graduated sliding scale, whose divisons bear a certain relation to the volume of milk employed, and this latter to a pint or const. this latter to a pint or quart, the amount of botter in either quantity of milk can be dicine or unpleasant and dangerous diseases.

Pig Protectors.

The following method of preventing sows from lying on their young has been given in the Ohio Farmer:

"One of the troubles in a pignursery is the expr laying of the juvenile swine by a careless maternal hog. It is not at all agree-able to the proprietor of such stock, when he has progressed so far as to count his chickens after they are hatched, on visiting hi pig-nursery in the morning, where he had left, the night before, a dozen of the cunning to rest, or give sustemance to her little folks, there will be a space between her and the sides of the pen, which she can not occupy, and into which the pigs can retreat in case of a pressure. Sows over-lay pigs from their backs, not from the side where the pigs get their dinner, and by this contrivance the pigs are shelved away from harm, and the mamma may roll about upon her bed with impunity whereas, if she could press her broad to the wall, there would be a smart chance for a pig-funeral, and many of the hopeful flock would never arrive to the years of discre-

BEST METHOD OF PREPARING COFFEE. Put the quantity of coffee necessary into as much water as will be needed and let it soak over night. This extracts all the flavor, and it will not require to boil but a few moments; and great care should be taken on this point, as the aroma escapes very rapidly while it is boiling. It will not do, however, to let it only simmer, as the essence will not be fully extracted.

WHITE CAKE .- One-half cup of butter; one-half cup of cream; two cups of sugar; three cups or flour, and the whites only of Your eggs. Flavor with fresh lemon juice. for it, and avoid imposition and exposure.
