AGRICULTURAL INVENTIONS.

The following remarks on agricultural implements are taken from the Introductory Report of Patents for 1803:

Much attention has been given in this class Much attention has been given in this class to machines for sowing wheat, eats, etc., which are attached to the body of the operator, worked by a crank, and distributing the seed broadcast by centrifugal force. Next in number and importance are cultivators, which appear to have assumed almost every conceiable form and style. The most noticeable feature in connection with them is the making of them tall and so constructing the frame that they may readily pass over corn from that they may readily pass over corn from four to six feet high, and in so arranging and pivoting the chares that they may be readily controlled in their movements, and enable the operator to adapt their movements to the irregularity of the plants in the row. This feature, as might be expected, emanates from the West, where the hoe is but little used in the culture of this plant.

Machines for thrashing and cleaning grain have received a large snare of attention, and have been rendered so complete that the grain is now thrashed, cleaned, measured, and bagged, and the straw stacked, at one Taxix will leave as follows: have received a large share of attention, and heave Greeneastle operation. Improvements have also been made in the machines by which the dust is taken up and conveyed away, and also by which the bands are cut and the sheaves fed into the thrasher. Connected with these is a class of machines of recent origin, by which clover is thrashed, separated from the straw, hulled, and cleaned, at one operation. Considerable improvements have also been made in a large number of miscellaneous implements connected with agriculture, such as manure distributors, fruit-gatherers, cowmilkers, field-rollers, cattle and sheep racks, farm and fruit ladders, egg-hatching machines, and machines for manufacturing cigars and tobacco in its varieties, potato dig gers, straw and vegetable cutters, stone-gath-orers, bog-cutters for smoothing rough mead ow land and adapting it to the use of the mower, boxes and baskets for packing and conveying fruit to market, etc., etc. Indeed throughout this entire class there appears to be an increased activity in the effort to substitute labor-saving machinery for manual labor, and judging from appearances with most beneficial results.

The number of harvesting machines manufactured during the year, as learned from reliable sources, is upward of 40,000, while the numbers in process of manufacture, required for the harvest of 1804, is estimated at over 90,000 machines.

JOBS FOR LEISURE HOURS .- Which may be performed without intertering at all with ploughing, planting, and other field labor, i. they are only thought of in time ;

Pruning fruit trees is too often greatly ne glected. Let this be attended to when it is oo wet to plough or plant, or to make fences. For such work one needs a small, sharp axe, a saw, and a good knife. A large pocket-knife will subserve a good purpose; but, in the absence of a good knife, I take an old file and get a good blacksmith to make a pruning-koife—which he will do for ten cents—with the blade shaped like the blade of a grain-sickle or a grass-hook. If the blade be four or five in hes long, after it is curved, it will be long enough. Pruning saws, which are fastened on the end of a fork handle or pole, and used by the operator while standing on the ground, are sometimes preferable to any other tools for pruning fruit trees .-They may be obtained at most hardware They may be obtained at most hardware storage. After a tree has been pruned, cover the wourds with rosin and tallow, of equal parts, melted together in a small kettle, and Wool Plaids.

Plaid Poplins, parts, melted together in a small kettle, and applied with a paint brush.

Collect sawdust, chip manure, and scraping of yards, and spread them around fruit trees, for the purpose of keeping the soil loose and prompting the healthy growth of young trees, With a broad hoe scrape the odies of fruit trees, and if the bark is already smooth tie a raw on the end of a stick, for a large swab, and apply thin soft-soap to the bodies and limbs, for six or eight feet above the ground.

In lo calities where the borer is accustomed scrape off all the outside or dead bark, for six or eight feet high, and smear the bodies of the trees with pitch and tallow, applied with a whitewash brush. If the pitch and tallow be heated too hot, it will spoil the brush by burning the heir — Ohio France. to work in the yellows boust, shave off and scrape off all the outside or dead bark, for brush by burning the hair .- Ohio Farmer.

WHY CATTLE REQUIRE SALT .- It has been questioned by many agricultural writers, whether stock actually require salt, either alone or in connection with their food; whether it is really one of the necessaries of life or simply a luxury, to be used or let alone as convenience may require. Prof. Johnson, a Scotch writer, referring to the subject, says: We know why the animal craves salt, and We know why the animal craves sait, and why it ultimately falls into disease if salt is for a time withheld. Upwards of half the saline matter of the blood (57 per cent) consists of common salt; and as this is partly the skin and saids and collarens caps, a fine assortment of handkerchiefs, umbrellas, a large assortment of handkerchiefs, umbrellas, a large assortment of the kidneys, the necessity of continued supplies of it to the body becomes sufficiently obvious. The bile also contains soda as a special and indispensable constituent, and so do all the cartilages of the body. Therefore, if the supply of salt be stinted, neither will the bile be able properly to assist the digestion, nor the cartilages be built up again as tion, nor the cartilages be built up again as they naturally waste. And when we consider it to be a fact that without salt man would miserably perish; as, among horrible punishments, entailing certain death, that of feeding culprits on saltless food is said to have ing culprits on saltless food is said to have prevailed in barbarous times, we may become partially convinced at least of the necessity of feeding salt to our stock-that it is one of the necessaries as well as one of the luxuries of life for man and beast; and it should be profusely provided at short intervals, in proper places, if it cannot be kept by them continually, so that each and every animal may satisfy the demands of his nature .-Then it shall not be said of us that while our pudding is always well seasoned and salted, our stock are allowed to suffer for want of the same ingredient, which is as truly necessary for their food as for ours.

I. W. Sanborn, Genesec Farmer. GREEN PICKLES-The following is a capital and simple experiment to detect the copper in greened pickles. It may be conducted thus: Cut a greened pickle into small pieces, Nuts, Coal Oil, Alcohol, Stationary, Patent Medicine, and put them into a glass of rain water, addicines, and all other articlosconnected with our line. and put them into a glass of rain water, adding ten to fourteen drops of sulpric acid; put he bright blade of a knife or any bright steel druggist. surface in the liquid for twenty four hours, and if the pickle contains copper it will be found upon the steel blade, as though it had been coated by the galvanic process. All pickles greened in brass or copper kettles show this result. The green color comes from a large assortment of verdigris, which is a deadly poison; the quantity usually taken with pickles does not often kill, but it probuces disease. Why are they Japan. colored? only to please the eye, and make Putty, them represent green oucumbers. A poison- Litharage, ous pickle may be eaten upon a full stomach, it never should be upon an empty one.—

Tt should be known that a small quan-cans and tubs, at the Hardware Store tity of vinegar will generally destroy imme-diately any insect that may find its way into each; and a little salid oil will kill any insect that may enter the ear.

Tanner's bark is said to be a good thing for surrounding strawberries when fruiting. It is also a preservative against l April 27, 1868.
