The Defeat of Gen. McCook.

MASHVILLE, August 4 .- General Stoneman sent a force of envalry, consisting of Long's and Lagrange's Brigades, 3,200 strong, on the 26th ult., under the command of General Edward McCook, to destroy the Macon and Western Railroad.

They had destroyed eighteen miles of the road and started to capture a train of 500 wagons going from Atlanta to Macon, or Columbus. McCook captured this train near Neuman, with 500 men, including 127 offi-cers, and wagons laden with valuable stores, including liquors and valuable papers of Gen. Hood and others.

After possessing themselves of what they wanted, the wagons were burned and Mc-Cook started to return with the prisoners and 3,000 mules, but was overtaken by a rebel force under General Ransom, so large as to completely surround him. A desperate en-Ragement followed, during which many of McCook's men escaped and found their way to Marietta. The number of Federals cap-tured will, it is believed reach 2,000. This disaster is attributed to the troops partaking too freely of the liquors found in the captured

SATURDAY'S BATTLE.

The following, from the New York News, will probably be found a fair description of Rye From, barg:

Three o'clock yesterday morning was the appointed time. At that hour every slovation, every spot that could afford a view of the country of t readiness for the brisk work expected of them. To them had been allotted the task of charging the line, and it was expected that by moving at so early an hour the ending would be completely surprised, and his utter defeat must be thus rendered a matter of certainty. The fort toward which all eyes were expectantly turned was in front of Burnside's nosition. Burnside was to make the surface of the school of said township for the term of surface to make the school of said township for the term of surface was in front of burnside's nosition. Burnside was to order a charge as soon as the explosion should be heard. The Eighteenth corps was on the right, and was to charge simultaneously with the Ninth, and those were to be supported Burnside's position. Burnside was to order by the Second and Fifth.

Three o'clock was the appointed time.—

Grant and Meade were at Butler's headquarters. Everything was so well arranged that tors. Everything was so well arranged that no delay or mistake was anticipated. The fuses were laid. The men were at their post. All looked eagerly, and listened for the ferrible roar that was to shake the earth fuses were laid. The men were at their post. All looked eagerly, and listened for the ferrible rour that was to sluck the earth and send into eternity the guardians of the fort. Something went wrong. The fuse of July 28, 1864. was ignited, but there was dampness some-where, and the fire died out. Half-past three. Fire was again applied, and it again failed. Four. Something else wont wrong. Half past four. All was again in readiness. Day had dawned, and revealed the presence and unusual stir of large bodies of men. The enemy discovered some important movement on foot. Forty-minutes past 4, suddenly the earth was thrown toward the sky, as if by a mighty eruption of neture.— The fort and all it contained were dashed into frigments and llung high in the air. For some morents everything was observed by the great mountains of dust and loosened particles of earth that arose from where a few minutes before the Confederate fort stood, threatening and confronting our men. There were come men, perhans a hundred, within t at the time. These were thrown into the ir with the flying earth. Guns were mounted in the embrasures.— Some say ten, some say sixteen, we are not sure of the numbers. These were also dashed from their places. A cavity, deep and jagged, like the mouth of a crater, yawned when the artillery reared from end to end of the line. It commenced with Butler and Foster, far to the right. The terrible thander of the guns was appalling. The earth grouned and trembled, but still the droudful storm raged on. Then there came a lull.— Burnside was to charge immediately after the explosion, but for some reason his lines vere not ready.

His command consisted of three divisions His command consisted of three divisions One of them was composed exclusively of negroes. Twenty minutes had elapsed before the line was ready. Then they advanced boldly and steadily. The 18th corps was on the right. Warren and Hancock were supporting. They charged the first line, and the Confederates fell back before them.— They always do so. They never hold their first line. They always have a stronger line in reserve. Burnside's men still advanced. they reached the second line and held a oution as the property of John Humer.

Here they were met by a terrible fire.— The enemy's gans commanded every foot of ground. They sent whirlwinds of grape and shrapnell into and through Barnside's ranks. The fire was awful, unparalleled. Every gun was brought into requisition. If Burnside and his supports could press through that concentrated whirlwind of death, the enemy must abandon Petersburg. If the enemy could drive back the advancing column, Petersburg would be saved, and the Lieutent General's great plan defeated. Right ant General's great plan defeated. Right stubbornly the contest went on.

The negroes were first thrown into confution. They had never before witnessed such a fire. They could not stand against it.—First a dozen men fell back; then a score; gion. I then a hundred; then regiments and brigades. Bravely but vainly did the commanders strive to check it, but all their efforts

The awful storm of destruction still poured down, and spent its rage on the pegro troops. The Confederates saw the beginning of success; they determined to follow it up, and retake the works. They pressed down on the colored troops, and the devastating fire still continued. The confusion became a route, The negroes fled in terror, but the relentless for pursued them. They ran back to their supports—the white troops. An attempt was made to check them, but it failed. The cen-

The supporting lines were disordered by the thousands of colored troops rushing ugainst and breaking through them. Back to the first line—there to stand and try to re-treive the fortunes of the morning. It was yet early—about seven. The fearful fire from more than a hundred guns was still directed against and dashed into our lines. The Confederates pressed on pushing back our line steadily. steadily. The prestige was all on their side. They had repulsed the attack and vigorously followed up their success. Their guns com-manded the whole field. Not one spot was

The white troops pressed to the front, but they could not hold it. By some unliky ac-cident the colored troops got into a spit that promised shelter, but here was concentrated a fire that was more than deadly. It became evident that the line could not be held. The forder was given to fall back, and the troops retired to the shelter of their own works, leaving on the ground about three thousand of their comrada

I have not yet obtaided the particulars of the casualties, but they are known to be very numerous. The above is a moderate estimate. The great plan has been tried, and it did not succeed. The Confederates have had the best of the fight-that must be admitted .-Their loss was comparatively light. The troops fell back to their old position. All is quiet this morning, but we do not know at what moment the storm may burst forth again. The army is not dispirited. Strange that it can sustain every misfortune so stoically.

DESTRABLE PRIVATE RESIDENCE culiarly valuable to the Furmers and Mechanics o the country.

The war in which the nation is engaged against the redical notion is engaged.

The war in which the nation is engaged against armed and infatuated Robels, and the radical policy of the Administration which prolongs it, have so spired to bring together upon one platform all conservative, Union loving and Constitution loving men, of whatever former name and creed. Many of those who, within the limits of the Constitution, fought the battles of the ballot-box under the leadership of these particular streams of other and the states. dership of those patriotic statesmen of other and better days, Henry Clay and Daniel Webster, tobetter days, Henry Clay and Daniel Webster, together with the masses whose principles were those of such patriots as Andrew Jackson and William L. Marcy, Silas Wright and Stephen A, Douglas, now stand shoulder to shoulder upon the same platform and under the same happer. The platform is a plain one. It is to restore the Union, quaintain the Constitution, and enforce the Laws.—
Whitever makes for this end, the exercise of forcor, the policy of conciliation, FHE, WORLD w.
I advocate; whatever makes against 1, THE WORLD will oppose. vill oppose.
It will oppose every enemy to THE UNION

At will oppose every enemy to THE UNION, whether armed in rebellion at the South or insidiously planting the seeds of diamnon and essential disloyalty at the North,

It will oppose every violation of THE CONSTITUTION, which is the only hope and bond of Union, and our only authority for exhorting or compelling the allegiance of the South.

It will oppose every infraction of THE LAW, in high places or in low, by reckless and misguided partizans, or by the Administration which has been their example

Sinart, Judges of the Courts of Oyer and Terminer and Tail Delivery for the trial of all capital and other offenders, in the said county of Comberland, by their precepts to me directed, dated the 11th day of April, 1861, have ordered the Court of Oyer and Terminer and General Jail Delivery to be bolden at Carlislo on the 4th Monday of Augist, 1864, (being the 22d day.) at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to continue one week.

NOTICE is hereby given to the Toroner, Justices of the Piece, will o'clock in the Comberland, that they are by the said precept commanded to be then and there in their proper persons, with their rolls, records, and inquisitions examinations, and all other remembrances, to do those things which to their offices appertain to be done, and all those that are bound by recognizances, to prosecute against the prisoners that are or then shall be in the Jail of said county, are to be their rights, their laws, and their ilborties, their laws, and their freemen shall be roused to the recovery of their rights, their laws, and their liborties, their laws, and their liborties, their laws, and their freemen shall be roused to the recovery of their rights, their liborties, their laws, and their freemen shall be roused to the recovery of their rights, their liborties, their laws, and their laws it appears and expertations, its above recise the Freedom of the Freedom of the Endut.
