In response to some citizens who asked the Bovernor for authority to go into the Rebel States to recruit negroes, he said:

"The law of Congress authorizing the State Executives to appoint agents to recruit in the rebellious States, leaves it optional with each Executive to determine what course to adopt. In the exercise of that discretion I have decided not to appoint such agents for the State of New Jersey.
"The Legislature has not entrusted me with modey for the purpose of paying bounties, or defraying the expenses of such agents; and even if I had control of funds for such purposes, I have no power to authorize recruiting outside of the State of New Jersey. uch power, if it resides anywhere, is vested in the Government of the United States .-The General Government has heretofore exereised that power, and I am at a loss to understand why Congress should ask the Executives of the States to recruit outside of their jurisdiction, while within the State limits the whole business of recruiting has been assumed by the General Government.

When I appoint an agent to transact business for the State of New Jersey, I expect to protect him while in the discharge of his duties. I cannot give protection to agents appointed to recruit in rebel States. My letter of authority would not ensure their treatment as prisoners of war."

"I am satisfied that the Union army would to day be stronger, both in numbers and efficiency, if the Government had never recruited in the rebel States. The emancipation proclamation, and the consequent arming of negroes, while adding to the desperation of the enemy, and building up an almost insurmountable barrier to terms of pacification. quenched the spirit of volunteering among the people of the North. Soon after these measures were adopted it was thought necessary to pass a conscription act, although but a few weeks previous to this radical change of policy, the Chairman of the military Committee in the United States Senate advised against the acceptance of volunteers hen flocking by regiments to our standard. The great change wrought by this policy is demonstrated by the present almost unani mous desire of the people to keep out of the nomy, and the running to and fro of nearly the whole population to seize upon any expe dient to avoid personal military service, regarding not the fitness of the substitute, if the certificate of exemption can be procured. So long as the governmental policy disheartens to such an extent, a successful issue cannot be expected. To insure success the people should have heart in the struggle, be willing to de their own fighting, and not place their reliance on a distinct and inferior race. There can never be a sufficient number of negro roops in the army to compensate for the injury done the Union cause by arming them.'

Fatract of a letter written by a soldier in the Army of the Potomac, and one who has always been opposed to the Democratic

"Let the Democratic party be united .-Let the nominee be George B. McClelan, and then will the olive branch of peace bring prospeity and happiness to a now bleeding ourning country. It was George Washington who gave us a country, it may be George B. McDlellan who will save it. Let us all earnestly work for the good cause, knowing that our reward is certain. Then with three cheers for the good Old Union, let us unfurl the Old Democratic Flag to the breeze, let us pledge our lives, our fortunes and our sacred honor in its defence.
