finder all these circumstances, I deem it logether proper to give such an outline di t as will not interfere with any Sherman's plans.

SUBSISTENCE. Sherman has been chiefly occupying his time in laying in a full supply of hard bread and beef cattle; and he has with him of the famer sixty days full rations, and severa thousand head of the cattle. For all things the will depend on the country over which he is to pass. His animals can subshich ho is to pass. His animals can sub-ist well. Corn and sweet potatoes are shandant. During the week ending on the 5th last, he gathered in 1,760 wagon loads of corn, 456 loads of sweet potatoes, and a [sw horses, without sending his foraging parties more than thirty miles from Atlanta. He could manage to live for six months without communicating once with the great without communicating once with the cavalry, he North. In reference to his cavalry, he willity to obtain horses feels certain of his ability to obtain horses enough to keep good his original stock; and perhaps he may be consbled to mount some

You have heard a great deal about the proposed destruction of Atlanta, &c. But that is all bosh. Sherman's motto is: "Remove all obstacles 'to 'success': nermit no wanton destruction of flife or property;" and it is upon this that he has recently acted. He has rendered Atlanta untenable; has destroyed such buildings as could have been made valuable to the enemy, but

THE DESTINATION. A portion of the army left Atlanta on the morning of the 9th, and followed the rail-road to Macon, destroying it as it proceeds; the column will take Milledgeville in its way, and it is probable that the cavalry will altempt to release the Union prisoners. The second column started on Saturday norning last, and goes direct to Angusta, he chief-manufacturing point of the Confederacy, and one in which nearly all the pewder used by the Southern army is made. This will be reached in about twelve or fourteen days.

At this point the whole army will concentrate, and then move on one of three points, as Sherman shall deem most proper. These are: Savannah, Charleston or Beau-fort, but I know that if nothing occurs to change his present plans, he will go to Beautort. He believes that Savonnah, with the railroads through Georgia cut, will be perfectly harmeless, and their will be no advantage in holding it. The same may be said of Charleston. Let Sherman advance to Branchville, twenty or thirty miles out and that place is cut off effectually.

To capture either Savannah or Charleslon, fortified as they are, would take time, even though not strongly garrisoned, while the moment the army reaches Beautort, it neets supplies in abundance, and ships to transfer it to any point it may be made

This I know to be his plan at present. However, it may become necessity to make, Agusta a new base, and in that case Saanuah must be captured; but Sherman ow believes that he can as easily mak one i coast, and in the meantim tray all the railroads in Georgia and South Carolina, so effectually as to render them worthless during the war. Unless, therefore, unexpected obstacles are met, he will reach the ocean at Beaufort, in about 35 or 40 days.

He will meet no enemy on the way. The Georgia militia are very harmless, and few in number. There are, at Savannah, about 2,000 troops, beside city militia; and in no other part of Georgia are there any men except cavalry and guerillas, and these ar of numerous.

No force can be spared to meet him Thomas can take care of Hood, and Lee ca do nothing but defend himself against Gra We shall have no further communication from Sherman; we shall soon hear from through rebel sources. A few day vince he telegraphed a "good-bye" to his wife, and told her not to write again till he reached the ocean.
