

AMERICAN VOLUNTEER.

JOHN B. BRATTON, Editor & Proprietor.

CARLISLE, PA., MAY 18, 1865.

ABRAHAM LAMBERTON, Esq.

Our readers will have noticed in reading the proceedings of the Democratic County Convention for this county...

By the proceedings of the Democratic Convention of this county, on Monday last...

THE WEATHER.—After the soaking rains of last week, the weather has again become mild and genial...

LAGER SALE OF DRY GOODS.—Attention is directed to the advertisement of Mr. Jacob Reuber, administrator of the estate of W. A. Catwary...

AGRICULTURAL EXHIBITION.—By an advertisement in another column, it will be noticed that the Cumberland County Agricultural Society...

"WHEN JOHN COMES MARCHING HOME."—In a few weeks the battle-worn veterans of Meade's and Sherman's armies will be mustered out of the service...

GRAND FAIR.—The Fair of the "Empire Hook and Ladder Company" opened with a flourish on last Saturday night...

The Harrisburg Union of Monday contains this item in its account of the proceedings before the Mayor's Court:

Wm. Kramer, arrested upon charge of false pretense in Cumberland county, forged a check upon Geo. O'Donnell, of Mechanicsburg...

THE JEWS of this country have shown a full share of patriotism since the war began. From Ohio 12,000 have gone to fight for the Union flag...

"INDIGNATION" MEETINGS.

We notice that a certain class of Jacobin leaders in a number of the cities and towns of the Southern border States are holding meetings every few evenings...

According to the compromise agreed upon between Grant and Lee, and Sherman and Johnston, previous to the capitulation of the rebel army...

There is a secret in these "indignation" meetings which some people do not think of. Many valuable properties in Baltimore, Washington, and other border towns...

Large Sale of Dry Goods.—Attention is directed to the advertisement of Mr. Jacob Reuber, administrator of the estate of W. A. Catwary, deceased, of Harrisburg.

AGRICULTURAL EXHIBITION.—By an advertisement in another column, it will be noticed that the Cumberland County Agricultural Society purpose holding their annual Fall Exhibition this year.

"WHEN JOHN COMES MARCHING HOME."—In a few weeks the battle-worn veterans of Meade's and Sherman's armies will be mustered out of the service, and return to their homes to enjoy once more the blessings of peace.

GRAND FAIR.—The Fair of the "Empire Hook and Ladder Company" opened with a flourish on last Saturday night, in Rheem's Hall, and has been visited nightly by immense crowds.

The Harrisburg Union of Monday contains this item in its account of the proceedings before the Mayor's Court: Wm. Kramer, arrested upon charge of false pretense in Cumberland county, forged a check upon Geo. O'Donnell, of Mechanicsburg...

THE JEWS of this country have shown a full share of patriotism since the war began. From Ohio 12,000 have gone to fight for the Union flag; from New York, 10,000; from Illinois, 5,000; from Michigan and Wisconsin, 3,000; and from other States enough to make 40,000.

SHAD IN THE JUNIATA.—The Junia Democrat says: "Large numbers of shad are now captured in the Juniata below the Millers town dam. They are very fine. A party from this place visited that locality on Monday the 8th inst., and returned in the evening laden with the finny apoll. It is a great pity that the late floods did not sweep them from Huntington to tide water...

Meeting of the Anti-Slavery Society.

INFAMOUS ASSAULTS UPON GENERAL SHERMAN.

SENATOR WILSON ENDORSES THE SLANDER.

No Negro Pews! No Negro Cars!

THE NEGRO TO WALK ARM-IN-ARM WITH WHITE WOMEN UNJOINED.

This is to be the Next Grand Issue at the Polls.

The American Anti-Slavery Society—an organization which, ten years ago was denounced by the unanimous voice of both the Democratic and Whig parties as a traitorous, villainous, disunion center—held its last anniversary meeting in New York last week.

There is a secret in these "indignation" meetings which some people do not think of. Many valuable properties in Baltimore, Washington, and other border towns, belonging to men who fought in the rebel armies, are now occupied by a set of political scoundrels...

From the speeches delivered previous to the vote, we take the following extracts. It will be seen that the gallant SHERMAN (the man who ended the war before the shoddy tricks were being tried), as one of the speakers remarked:

Rev. Mr. Backland, of Salem, Mass., rose to address the meeting. He said—I have the society will not be disbanded, for its labors are not ended. We have much yet to do. You have not yet restored liberty to the colored race. A man is not just a slave to the extent of the right of the negro; but if you should will him to be free, Mr. Phillips made a speech a year ago, in which he said their full rights were to be restored to the negro by the right of citizenship.

Rev. Mr. Backland, of Salem, Mass., rose to address the meeting. He said—I have the society will not be disbanded, for its labors are not ended. We have much yet to do. You have not yet restored liberty to the colored race. A man is not just a slave to the extent of the right of the negro; but if you should will him to be free, Mr. Phillips made a speech a year ago, in which he said their full rights were to be restored to the negro by the right of citizenship.

Rev. Mr. Backland, of Salem, Mass., rose to address the meeting. He said—I have the society will not be disbanded, for its labors are not ended. We have much yet to do. You have not yet restored liberty to the colored race. A man is not just a slave to the extent of the right of the negro; but if you should will him to be free, Mr. Phillips made a speech a year ago, in which he said their full rights were to be restored to the negro by the right of citizenship.

Several persons here rose to speak—the voices of Miss Mary Grew and Mrs. Eater, rather elderly sisters, being heard above the rest. Both women were out of their minds, and in a loud voice they were raised from all parts of the house, and they were unable to do so.

to Rhode Island, with others, for the sole purpose of warring with that hateful, odious word, while, in the consideration of the statutes of other States. We succeeded in that object, and we endeavored, with success, to bar none from the same rights to that end. That was good work then, and it is good work now. We succeed in that regard that we have...

He believed that the deed had not arrived when they should be done. That was the case when there were no negro pews, no negro cars, and no distinctions on account of complexion, color or race. They should not even cease their labors till black men who choose to arm-in-arm with the white men should be hoisted on account of prejudice!

There is a curious old document in existence, known as the Constitution of the United States, which formerly had the force and effect of law in the large portion of our country not specially dominated by the Slave Power.

There is a curious old document in existence, known as the Constitution of the United States, which formerly had the force and effect of law in the large portion of our country not specially dominated by the Slave Power.

There is a curious old document in existence, known as the Constitution of the United States, which formerly had the force and effect of law in the large portion of our country not specially dominated by the Slave Power.

There is a curious old document in existence, known as the Constitution of the United States, which formerly had the force and effect of law in the large portion of our country not specially dominated by the Slave Power.

There is a curious old document in existence, known as the Constitution of the United States, which formerly had the force and effect of law in the large portion of our country not specially dominated by the Slave Power.

THE CONSTITUTION.

The Administration journals are reviewing their recollection that such an instrument of writing as the Constitution of the United States is still extant. A very short time ago, did a Democratic press venture to remind them in power that such was the fact—that it was the supreme law of the land, which they were sworn to obey—that a state of war could not abrogate it—and that all violations of its provisions were acts of usurpation just as revolutionary in their spirit and tendency as rebellion itself—

He believed that the deed had not arrived when they should be done. That was the case when there were no negro pews, no negro cars, and no distinctions on account of complexion, color or race. They should not even cease their labors till black men who choose to arm-in-arm with the white men should be hoisted on account of prejudice!

There is a curious old document in existence, known as the Constitution of the United States, which formerly had the force and effect of law in the large portion of our country not specially dominated by the Slave Power.

There is a curious old document in existence, known as the Constitution of the United States, which formerly had the force and effect of law in the large portion of our country not specially dominated by the Slave Power.

There is a curious old document in existence, known as the Constitution of the United States, which formerly had the force and effect of law in the large portion of our country not specially dominated by the Slave Power.

There is a curious old document in existence, known as the Constitution of the United States, which formerly had the force and effect of law in the large portion of our country not specially dominated by the Slave Power.

THE NATIONAL LINE OF PLEASURE STEAMERS.

We clip from the Baltimore Clipper, of the 9th, the following articles on what it terms a new order of nobility. The Clipper is a staunch Republican paper. It says:

What if the Government has been paying prices for steamers, ranging from one thousand per day down, numbers of these have been taken by all grades of officials of the Government? We are accordingly informed that "Order of Nobility" of every grade—Yes, whilst noble regiments of the rank and file, the brave defenders of the country, the limbers and sallow unwarlike to their patriotic hearts have been crowded into single transports...

Now we saw the other day an account of a new movement on the line of this same public abuse—that another craft was being specially fitted up, as a pleasure craft for the President. We trust he will unhesitatingly frown down such a movement, and by so doing, will save to our country the honor of the President and those who assume these unusual privileges are not sufficient to give them a little relaxation at their own expense, let Congress increase them, unless the rights of justice, of Republican equality, let these inviolable distinctions, these costly privileges wrecked from the nation's distresses, be at once forever abolished.

There is a curious old document in existence, known as the Constitution of the United States, which formerly had the force and effect of law in the large portion of our country not specially dominated by the Slave Power.

There is a curious old document in existence, known as the Constitution of the United States, which formerly had the force and effect of law in the large portion of our country not specially dominated by the Slave Power.

There is a curious old document in existence, known as the Constitution of the United States, which formerly had the force and effect of law in the large portion of our country not specially dominated by the Slave Power.

There is a curious old document in existence, known as the Constitution of the United States, which formerly had the force and effect of law in the large portion of our country not specially dominated by the Slave Power.

There is a curious old document in existence, known as the Constitution of the United States, which formerly had the force and effect of law in the large portion of our country not specially dominated by the Slave Power.

INTERVIEW WITH GENERAL GRANT.

Mr. Forney writes to the Philadelphia Press from Washington, April 30, and describes an interview between General Grant and himself, the day previous. Forney says:

Yesterday morning Gen. Grant returned from Raleigh and laid the result of his conference before the President. As I had never before had the honor of an introduction to or conversation with General Grant, I embraced the opportunity of being presented to him last evening, in company with two gentlemen, one of them I think I introduced. He was in his room when we arrived, and waited till he came from the War Department. I confess, when the door was opened, and a gentleman about the size of Governor Andross, of Massachusetts, first quietly looked in, and then as quietly entered, smiling the stamp of a cigar, I was a good deal surprised. We were accordingly introduced.

There is a curious old document in existence, known as the Constitution of the United States, which formerly had the force and effect of law in the large portion of our country not specially dominated by the Slave Power.

There is a curious old document in existence, known as the Constitution of the United States, which formerly had the force and effect of law in the large portion of our country not specially dominated by the Slave Power.

There is a curious old document in existence, known as the Constitution of the United States, which formerly had the force and effect of law in the large portion of our country not specially dominated by the Slave Power.

There is a curious old document in existence, known as the Constitution of the United States, which formerly had the force and effect of law in the large portion of our country not specially dominated by the Slave Power.

There is a curious old document in existence, known as the Constitution of the United States, which formerly had the force and effect of law in the large portion of our country not specially dominated by the Slave Power.

There is a curious old document in existence, known as the Constitution of the United States, which formerly had the force and effect of law in the large portion of our country not specially dominated by the Slave Power.