CLOVER BLOSSOMS.

There's a modest little blossom, Blooming closely to the ground, While its wealth of sweetest perfume Thrills through all the air around,

White and pure a field of clover, In the sunny summer day. Brings a calm my spirit over, Sweet as music for away.

In the rich man's terraced garden Many a fair exotic twines; Many a gaily tinted flower Neath the gloss foliage shines. By the poor man's lowly cottage, Violets' sweetest edors yield; Yet I love the air of freedom Blowing from a clover field.

Lilies in the Valley growing. Roses in their blushing pride, These may wreathe their regal beauty, Fitly for the youthful bride. Laurel wreaths may suit the poet, Forest flowers may lure the child. I would only ask the clover, Meek and modest, brave and mild Little cares my hardy flowers. Though the soil be poor and dry Blooming by the dirty wayside, Blessing all who pass thereby. Let me learn the gentle lesson, Even in my lowly way, Working bravely, like the clover, In the sultry summer day.

MANAGEMENT OF BARN-YARD MANURE.— It is very often the case that manure is allowed to accumulate and remain undisturbed in the yard in the summer, after which it is hauled to the field and applied for winter grain. Treated thus, it rots but little, but if forked over, it would decay very rapidly. In some instances, corn stalks, straw, and stable manure are mingled together, by being spres evenly over the entire yard, and are p firmly together by the constant tread of ani Mr. Isaac Peck, an excellent farme of Fairfield Co., Conn., recently related to us his manner of preparing barn yard manure for winter grain. His yard is constructed so that no liquids flow from it, except sometimes during very heavy rains, and this is conduc-ted upon a field, not to the brook or river.— His corn-stalks are fed out in the yard, where the large but become mingled with refuse straw and stable manure.

During the days in summer when laborer cannot work to advantage on the farm, the commence on one side of the yard and fork the manure over, turning it clear to the ground. If there is too much straw or cornstalks in one place, they are scattered over a larger surface, so as to mix different kinds as thoroughly as possible. By forking it over in this manner, the coarse portions will be fined, and sufficiently decayed by autumn to make it possible to spread it evenly, and it will be in a far better condition to benefit wheat, or any other winter grain. Mr. Peck usually applies most of his barn-yard manure to his winter grain, and by this system he is able to raise good crops of wheat where the soil was formerly considered poorly adapted to that kind of grain. We do not commend our friend's way of treating corn-stalks—that is, feeding them out whole on the ground in though sod will do, if it is not too stiff. It should be sown about the 1st of June though it will do as late as July. I last year sowed the 10th of July. The last made the largest growth though it did not mature as well. It is generally sown broad cast though it is best to sow with a wheat drill. Take a drill that with eight tubes will sow four bushels of wheat per acre, fasten up all the tubes but three, sow in rows two feet apart, it will sow just about one bushel of corn per acre which is about right. The advantages of the drill over broad-cast sowing are, it saves two hushel of seed per acre; it puts it all in a proper depth, and it grows better, and then it can be cultivated. When it is up about six inches, run through a small shovel plow and it will dress it all up clean. If such an one is not at hand, take a shovel from a two or three shovel corn-plow and attach it to a single wood-plow; it can be used for both pur-poses and it is better to cut. If it does not grow too large it can be cradled. Cut across the rows and take one row to a clip. If it is very large it will have to be cut with a corncutter, and then it is much better cutting than when sown broad-cast. It should be

A Good Remedy Against Insects.—We found it next to impossible last year to protect the young canteloupe vines against the persistent attacks of the black 'guat and the striped bug. Young radishes planted close around the hill, repeated applications of ashes in the morning when the dew was on, strong aloes water, &c., had little or no effect. Eventually soapsuds was applied, which seemed to do the business, both in driving them away and in keeping them away. It should be applied several times, and always after a rain has washed off the effects of the province of the second transfer of the province o after a rain has washed off the effects of the previous sprinkling. Whale oil soap is the best for this purpose, using about one pound to four gallons of water. The soap can be obtained at the agricultural stores, generally, as well as some of the drug and grocery stores. We see that other remedies are suggested, and among them one in an English journal, that the common elder bush scattered among the vines will keep off all bugs usually infesting them. But we do not believe it. We festing them. But we do not believe it. We have often tried similar appliances and found them all to be worthless. Try the whale oil soapsuds; and if this substance cannot be obtained, use the common soap in the same proportion.—Germantown Telegraph.

BRAN MASHES FOR HORSES.—Many who keep horses give them no change of food. It is hay and oats all the time. Those who pretend to keep fine horses, we will not even suppose make a regular feed of corn. For horses, we know, are fed almost entirely on corn, the West. It moveds for a play to make the control of the west. corn in the West. It mayde for a plow team —but certainly not for fine carriages or buggy horses. But horses, whether fed regularly on corn or cats, should have a bran mash If you corn or oats, should have a bran mash at least once a week—and if twice all the better. It cools the system—it opens the bowels and cleanses and purifies them. It keeps the horse in health. It wards off the cholic and other bowel complaints. There will be fewer horses dying with the botts, cholic and similar diseases, if bran mashes are given weekly.

They are made by heating the water to the tic and similar diseases, it bran mashes are given weekly.

They are made by heating the water to the boiling point, and then pouring it on bran. About six quarts of bran should be used for each horse. A couple quarts of oats may be put with the bran and a little sait, and the boiling water poured over all. When cool, feed to the horse. They should reasonable he feed to the horse.—They should generally be given at night.—Rural World.
