Breckinridge's Warm Recention by the Cuban Authorities.

THE ARGUELLES' CASE AGAIN. Correspondence of the New York World .:

HAVANA, June 17.
General J. C. Breckinridge, accompanied by his aid-de-camp Captain J. Wilson, his faithful war servant Thomas, Colonel Taylor Wood, and two confederate soldiers arrived at Cardenas on the 11th inst., in an open boat of about one ton burthen, from the coast of Florida. This party, after the capture of the president of the late republic, made their way to the St. John's river, where they procured a boat in which they proceeded up that river until they reached a point due west of Indian river, near the head of navigation. At St. John's, Colonel Taylor Wood joined the party, having been captured by the command of General Wilson which cap tured the president of the confederacy by accident, but he made good his escape the same

The small boat was hauled across the country from the St. John's to Indian river, ountry from the Sis own as well an arriver, a distance of twenty-six miles, and launched for the ocean. On reaching a point called Gilbert's bar, near the mouth of the river, the boat was beached, and dragged across a sand-spit sixty yards, and launched in an inlet communicating with the ocean. On this part of the route Indian parties supplied them with scant provisions of "cumty," of which they made bread. For the balance of the voyage they were compelled to live on shell-fish, caught along the shore, and turtle's eggs, of which they also laid in stores for their voyage across the Gulf stream. From the inlet near the mouth of Indian river they coasted south some fifty or sixty miles, when they beached their boat to hunt provisions. At this time a United States gunboat or steam transport running down south between the shore and the Florida reef observed the party, and the commander dis-patched a boat from the vessel to ascertain who they were and what they were doing there. As the boat began to show herself, there was some excitement in camp, and Thomas began to get his weapons ready for use. They were temporarily located on a shell-ridge, between an impenetrable swamp and the waters of the ocean, so that if they Jost their boat they would perish in the awamp. Taylor Wood, with the cool determination of "Rough and Ready," his grandfather, ordered his two men to launch the boat, which was instantly accomplished, and the others having retired under cover of the brush, the two soldiers took to the oars with a will." and pulled for the advancing boat which they met at about one-eighth of a mile from the shore. An officer in the stern seat of the gig, with a revolver in hand, hailed the boat with the usual marine questions. Taylor Wood became immediately the roughest longshore woodsman, wrecker, and fisherman that ever lived in Florida.— His men were paroled soldiers; they had to live somehow; they were hunting wrecks; and until they could find something better, they were subsisting on the rather washy charity of the sea—shell-fish driven on shore and turtles' eggs; they meant to get as far as Indian Key, or possibly Key West; they had a local-boat-load-of-papers, if he wanted to see them." And the ready boys pulled forth their parole documents, which were examined and found correct. "The folks on shore were of the same class; had plenty of papers the same—and were trying to cook dinner, if they could find any eggs or shells; wouldn't the captain like to go along ashore—he would be perfectly velcome to the best thin head and the perfectly velcome to the best to be and the perfectly velcome to the best to be and the perfectly velcome to the best to be and the perfectly velcome to the best to be and the perfectly velcome to the best to be a set of the perfectly velcome to the best to be a set of the perfectly velcome to the perfectly ve the steamer-name not known. The ed and half starved party breathed more freely after the interview, which had been rather tedious while waiting for the result. That evening they left the shore, having on board a few dozen of eggs, cakes of cumty-bread, and a few clams, so small that they might pass for muscles. They reached the Banks in about thirty six hours, having spo-ken one yessel and obtained a supply of fresh water the day following their depart-ure from the Florida coast, and met with no other incident, though terribly perplexed for want of food, until they reached Cardenas on the morning of the 11th—eight days—where they were received by the people and the authorities with great kindness, well fed, well refreshed, and serenaded in the eventage. ing. The ladies wished to entertain them in their hospitable homes, which was, of necessity, declined for the want of suitable rai-ment. The Governor of Cardenas furnished the party with transportation to Havan, where they arrived on the morning of the 12th, accompanied by an adjutent of the Spanish army, and took up their quarters at the Hotel Cubano. The adjutant reported his arrival with his guests to Captain-General Dulce, who instructed him to say to General Breckinridge that he had the "freedom of the city and Cuba, for himself and his friends, as long as they might wish to re-main; and when he was rested from his fa-tigue, and at his own convenience, he would be happy to see him." Those who know the country through the woods from Georgia to St. John's, (the public roads not available for their services, except at night,) and thence by the route they took to the coast, will appreciate the troubles and dangers encountered to get through safely, besides the difficulty of obtaining food and supplies for the six persons. The boat in which the voyage was performed did not admit of more than one sleeper at a time, and the only navigator, Taylor Wood, had to be always on the alert. In a squall at night, he was thrown over by a sea, but hav-ing the halyards in his hands, he managed to get on board again without any one being aware of his brief absence. Before leaving the coast they had religious services, and on reaching Cardenas, before leaving their frail boat, they returned thanks with prayer and praise to the Divine Providence whereby they had been saved.

Col. Chas: J. Helm, who has always been highly esteemed here for his gentlemanly and social qualities, with the people and the authorities, continues to exercise a pleasant conservative influence for the benefit of many unfortunates who come under official in-terdiction, and are homeless. He presented General Breckinridge to the Captain-General of Cuba at his country seat, on the 14th inst., and the distinguished confederate was received with heart-warm earnestness of mannercourteous and most cordial-the Cantain-General expressing deep sympathy, and regretting that circumstances had rendered it necessary that he should be a guest among strangers for a little while; but he might rest assured that the laws of hospitality should not be violated in Cuba, and that he should not be allowed to feel that he was a stranger in the land; that as long as he desired to avail himself of it, Cuba should be a safe asylum for himself and his friends.-Col. Helm was requested to remember that he was included, of course, as a cherished and most valued friend.

In this connection, General Dulco remarkd, that he had been much misrepresented n one matter, among Northern people, which he had never intended to notice; but as his feelings, his principles, and his conduct might alike be misunderstood in the future it was but just for him to say, that he had never asked of the United States government the delivery of Col. Arguelles in Cuba, nor the delivery of Col. Arguenes in Cuba, not had be by private or any other means, authorized or sought the capture and bringing to Cuba of that person. This leaves that midnight capture and abduction where it because the cubacillatic office. longs, among irresponsible subordinate offi-cials of your government—a voluntary offer-ing, for which compensation was expected, but whether realized or not, I am not posted well enough to tell—their pockets can respond. We have no other news which you will not have received direct from Mexico, Central America and the South American states. Jeffrad is punishing rebelsin Hayti; and the evacuation of St. Domingo by Spanish troops proceeds as rapidly as possible. DANA.

PRESIDENT JOHNSON'S RECONSTRUCTION PO-LICY.—President Johnson is working most assiducusly and successfully in the re-construction of the South, and is bringing back the late rebels to their constitutional allegi-ance. He is working better in the South than in the North in this labor, strange as it may seem. The Southern people are falling into the loyal line with a rapidity and cheer-fulness never known under similar circumstances. The only obstruction to the President's wise and constitutional policy comes from the Jacobin element of the North and his own office-holders. The officials of the Custom House and the Internal Revenue Department are in league with the Jacobin crew to throw obstacles in the President's way and raise a row about negro suffrage.-The return of the Southern people to their allegiance and their former prosperity will be speedy and easy if the office-holders and Ja-cobins put no obstruction in the way of the President's plans, as they seem determined to do.—N. Y. Merall.

1MPORTANT PROCLIMATION. - President Johnson has issued a ploclimation of a most important character. It removes all the restrictions upon foreign and domestic trade with the States east of the Mississipi river, excet as regards articles contraband of war. The effect of this will be to revive commercial intercourse with all the Southern and Southwestern cis-Mississippi States, free from the onorous imports heretofore levied. The heory upon which this action is based, is that the rebellion having ceased, the law of Congress rerulating trade with 'insurrectionary districts," has become de facto inopera

The radicals still continue to "embarrass the Government" by pestering President Johnson with delegations, and extorting speeches from him. It is authoritively staby his friends that vigorous as his constitution is, he cannot hold out a year under the strain to which lie is put by those pestering hordes who seem to be united in a conspiracy to either make him adopt their bloody and plundering creed or to bore him to deatl if he don't.

We learn from Washington that since he caving in of the rebellion, the "reliable gentleman" and the "intelligent contraband" have entered into partnership and gone into the oil business. "Jeff Davis' coachman" will act as the business manager of the new

THE rebellion is now over, and we are again restored to our peaceful avocations, we cannot better mark this era than by making preparations to return to the accustomed FALL EXHIBITION of our Society, and that we may have the most extensive, the best and most interesting that we have ever had, let us begin to prepare for it now. The season is most propitous and promising of fruitful results—and our appetites for the enjoyment of such an exhibition as we will have—have been sharpened by the disappointments of the last three years.

Miss Kate Vanderslice, of Pottsville, savs: "I. was benefitted i... re by using the Phonix Pecteral than any other medicine I ever used."

Elias Oberholtzer, of Lionville, Chester county, was cured of a cough of many years' standing by using the Phonix Pectoral.

Joseph Lukens, of Hall street, Phonixville; certifies that he was cured of a cough of two years

The West Chester Information says: "We have known Dr. Oberholtzer personally a number of years, and it gives us the greatest pleasure to recommend his medicines, inasmuch as the public rarely have the benefit of family medicines prepared by a physician of his acquirements and experience. Dr. Oberboltzer is a member of the Alumni of the Medical Department of the University of Pennsylvania, at which institution he graduated in 1854."
