DRESDEN, June 11, 1865.

J. LAWRENCE GETZ, Esq.
Yestorday afternoon we arrived at this city from Vienna, by way of Prague.—after we had attended to our official business in Vienna, we went to see some of the objects of interest, in company with our friend Otto Maas, who is here in business at present, and preaching progress to the Austrians .-As regards the erection of splendid buildings and the arrangement of magnificent parks, this nation is not behind any one. Three years ago the city authorities had a park laid out that contains several acres of ground and through which flows the Vienna creek; I never saw anything superior to it. One-half of this park is set apart for the children, who congregate here by thousands and engage in their plays. The other portion is for the enjoyment of grown persons, and this part shows strikingly what the industry of man can accomplish in a short time. Alongside the most beautiful flower beds, where the rarest plants of the known world are collected, you find here, artificially transplant ed, the largest trees, affording a most delightful shade quaintance I chanced to make, and who had of Mr. Liebenfrost. These are five cellars in one part of the town, each one of which is more than 150 feet long and 18 feet wide; and they contain 12,000 casks of wine; while in another part of the city, there is a cellar with several thousand casks of the most ex-cellent wine. I bought seven different spe-cimens, ranging from 1811 to 1862, which in this country are only drank by the Monarchs. I mentioned to the proprietor that we, too, had monarchs in America; that is to say, that all of us were kings and empe ting cur public servants to attend to the mat ters of government for us, who are turned out of power as soon as they mismanage things. The good man couldn't help but

We left Vienna in the evening train, and by midnight we passed through Brunn. It being moonlight, I could see the town along the railroad very distinctly, with its splendid buildings and beautiful parks. This is the capital of the province of Moravia. We pas-sed a number of smaller villages and towns, that are situated in a very fertile agricultural region. Vineyards, however, are not to be found here. As we approached Brussau and Lotsdorf, day began to break. We pass ed Wildenschwert and came through Pordubitz, and then to Prague, the capitol of the province of Boltemia. The railroad passing here along a high ridge, we could see the town and its streets very distinctly, and especially the large sugar factories, where sugar is made of the beet-root. These beetots are cultivated here in large quantities, and the sugar made of them is a very fine article. Baron V. F. von Riese-Stallberg, Cab-inet-Minister of the emperor of Austria, and milian, of Mexico; he apprehended, that some personal danger might befall him. We explained to him the peculiarities and principles of our government; that we never seek any quarrels; yet if the people of Mexico did; not desire a monarchy, it was a question for them to decide and not for us; and that it our returned soldiers concluded to emigrate to Mexico, we could hardly prevent it: Similar questions were put to us by dozens of noblemen. Austria seems to be considerably alarmed. The Baron invited me, in case I should return to Vienna, not to forget to call upon him. He gave me his card. I I have already quite a collection of such cards of noblemen, and could almost make the tour through Europe in the capacity of a Diplomast. The Baron also promised to send a bottle of cabinet-wine to our hotel in Paris.

2,500 tons beet-sugar will this year be exported from Austria to other countries. The grain fields from Vienna until about 50 miles this side of Prague, are very fine; but from that point to the state line of Saxony, everything, was very dry. To-day it began to rain, which will remedy this ovil to some extent investigations are much tent, ipassing its grain ripens here much later than with us. From Prague we travelled through the land of the prunes, the apples and the cherries. Thousands of boxes

there is no fine here upon such nests, as we have it in some of the States. The farmers, however, seem to guard their own interests better than with us. As a preventive, you see thousands of trees having a piece of coarse cloth, 4 to 5 inches wide, tied around them and covered with black pitch, so that rio caterpillar can pass it. How nitch would like toost with us, to employ small boys of 12 to 15 years, to cut away and burn all the nests to be found. If this has been attended to one year, it will be very easy the next. How The country from Prague to Dresden is > ANOTHER INDIAN BUTCHERY. Another White Party Assaulted and Killed.

Through the politeness of Mr. Hutchinson, clerk of the steamer Yellowstone, we were furnished the following particulars of the murder of ten men, by the Indians, on the Upper Mississippi:

The North Pegans, South Pegans and Bloods constitute the Blackfeet nation. The Bloods, the smallest tribe, number about three hundred and fifty warriors. The difficulty originating with the Bloods last winter, by some whites killing two of the tribe who had stolen horses. On Monday, May 23d, a party of five Bloods were at Fort Benton, South Pegan camp, when a white man recognized one or more of them as parties who had stolen horses from him the past winter. At night the camp was surrounded, three killed and one wounded; the other escaped. This is one version. The other is, that the whites, in a drunken frolic, attacked the Indians, killing some of them and throwing their bodies into the river. This is probably true.

The Indian that escaped, is supposed to and eighty warriors, known to be between Sun River and Fort Benton. On the afternoon of the 25th of May, a party of ten rien left the mouth of the Marias, crossing the country, not more than three miles, for the purpose of rafting logs down to build a waretrain with us from Vienna.
