Bouth America is about to receive eneduragement by a direct line of mail steamships to the rising Empire of Brazil. The distinguished party of men of science who have recently lest our country to make a scientific exploration of the natural history, and rivers, and mountain ranges of that region, have received from the Emperor that generous welcome which was to have been expected from his constant friendship for the United States, and his well known seal in promoting the advancement of knowledge.

A hope is entertained that our commerwith the rich and populous countries that border the Mediterranean Sea may be largely increased. Nothing will be wanting, on the part of this Government, to extend the protection of our flag over the enterprise of our fellow-citizens. We receive from the Pewers in that region assurances of good will; and it is worthy of note that a special envoy has brought us messages of condolence on the death of our late Chief Magistrate from the Bey of Tunis, whose rule includes few generations and has created an intense, the old dominions of Carthage, on the African

Our domestic contest, now happily ended has left some traces in our relations with one, at least, of the great maritime Powers. The formal accordance of belligerent right to the insurgent States was unprecedented. and has not been justified by theissue. But natural limits the chain of Lakes, the Gulf of in the systems of neutrality pursued by the Mexico, and on the east and west the two Powers which made that concession, there was a marked difference. The materials of Other national Control of the materials of war for the insurgent States were furnished, in a great measure, from the workshops of British subjects and prepared for receiving British armaments, sailed from the ports of Great Britain to make war on American commerce, under the shelter of a commission from the insurgent States.

These ships, having once escaped from British ports, ever afterwards entered them in every part of the world, to refit, and so to renew their depredations. The emsequences of this conduct were most disastrous to the States then in rebellion, increasing their des clation and misery by the prolongation of our civil contest. It had, moreover, the effeet, to a great extent, to drive the American flag from the sea, and to transfer much of our shipping and our commerce to the very Power whose subjects had created the neces sity for such a change. These events took lace before I was called to the administra tion of the Government. The sincere desire for peace by which I am animated led me to approve the proposal, already made, to submit the questions which had thus arisen be tween the two countries to arbitration.

These questions are of such moment that they must have commanded the attention of the great powers, and are so interwoven with as to have insured an impartial decision. I regret to inform you that Great Britain dehand, invited us to the formation of a joint commission to settle mutual claims between cluded. The proposition, in that very un-satisfactory form, has been declined.

The United States did not present the sub ject as an impeachment of the good faith of a Power which was professing the most friendly dispositions, but as involving questions of public law, of which the settlement essential to the peace of nations; and, though pecuniary reparation to their injured portant principles of international law .--The correspondence will be placed before that belongs to the soil."

You.
The ground on which the British Minister rests his justification is, substantially, that the manicipal law of a nation, and the domestic interpretations of that law, are the measure of its duty as a ngutral; and I followed to declare my opinion hafes your content to their love as their own free Conformation.

From the moment of the establishment of our free Constitution, the civilized world has been convulsed by revolutions in the interests of demogracy or of monarchy; but through all those revolutions the United States have wisely and firmly refused to become propagandists of republicanism. It is the only government suited to our condition; but we have never sought to impose it on oth ers; and we have consistently followed the advice of Washington to recommend it only by the careful preservation and prudent use of the blessing. During all the intervening period the policy of European powers and of the United States has, on the whole, been harmonious. Twice, indeed, rumors of the invasion of some parts of America, in the interest of monarchy, have prevailed; twice my prodecessors have had occasion to announce the views of this nation in respect to such interference.

On both occasions the remonstrance of the United States was respected, from a deep conviction, on the part of European governments, that the system of non-interference an I mutual abstinence from propagandism was the true rule for the two hemispheres --Since those times we have advanced in wealth and power: but we retain the same purpose to leave the nations of Europe to choose their own dynastics and form their own systems of government. This consistent moderation may justly demand a corres ponding moderation. We should regard it as a great calamity to ourselves, to the cause of good government, and to the peace of the world, should any European power challenge the American people, as it were, to the de-fense of republicanism against foreign inter-

to protect ourselves against designs inimical to European Powers; and we rely on the wisdom and justice of those Powers to respect its good results, has approved itself to both continents. The garrespondence between the United States and France, in reference to questions which have become subjects of discussion between the two Governments, will, at a proper time, be hild before Congress.

When, on the organization of our Govern ment, under the Constitution, the President of the United States delivered his inaugural address to the two Houses of Congress. Be said to them, and through them to the country and to mankind, that " the preservation of the sacred fire of liberty and the destiny of the republican model of government, are justly considered as deeply, perhaps as finally staked on the experiment intrusted to the American people.

American people.

And the House of Representatives answered Washington by the voice of Madison:

"We adore the invisible hand which has led the American people, through so many diffi-culties, to cherish a conscious responsibility for the destiny of republican liberty." More than seventy-six years have glided away since these words were spoken; the United States have passed through severer trials than were foreseen; and now, at this new epoch in our existence as one nation, with our Union purified by sorrows, and strengthened by conflict, and established by the virtue of the people, the greatness of the occasion in- notions, don't forget the place-2t.

vites us once more to repeat, with solemnity. the pledges of our fathers to hold ourselves answerable before our fellow-men for the success of the republican form of govern-

Experience has proved its sufficiency in seace and in war; it has vindicated its authority through dangers and afflictions, and sudden and terrible emergencies, would have crushed any system that had been less firmly fixed in the heart of the people. At the inauguration of Washington, the foreign relations of the country were few, and its trade was repressed by hostile regulations; now all the civilized nations of the glube welcome our commerce, and their Governments profess towards us amity.

Then our country felt its way hesitatingly along an untried path, with States so little bound together by rapid means of communi-cation as to be hardly known to one another and with historic traditions extending over very few years; now intercourse between the States is swift and intimate; the experience of centuries has been crowded into a indestructible nationality.

Then our jurisdiction did not reach beyond the inconvenient boundaries of the territory which had achieved independence; now, through cessions of lands, first colonized by Spain and France, the country has acquired

Here the human mind goes forth unshackled in the pursuit of science, to collect lew weeks, until we got on our new presses stores of knowledge and acquire an over increasing mastery over the forces of nature. Here the national domain is effered and that our fellow citizens, beyond the occupants of any other part of the earth, constr citizens would have followed incidentally on a decision against Great Britain, such commerciate form of government; and that form ensation was not their primary object .- of gov rament, by the confession of European They had a higher motive, and it was in the atatesmen, "gives a power of which no other interests of peace and justice to establish im form is capable, because it incorporates every man with the State, and arouses everything

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

We lay before our realers, this week, the irst annual message of President Johnson: A press of advertisements compels us to Where in past history does a parallel exist this time. We have simply space to say that the war, under the Constitution, every free since the inaugural address of Mr. Lincoln, no public document was ever more anxiously looked for. The questions with which Mr. Journson has to deal, are even more imporseems to have been distinguished by some find something in the message to praise, while at length.

WHAT CONGRESS IS DOING.

When the people began to call certain members of Congress "radicals," a few years ago, they had no adequate conception of vote for Auditor General: the full meaning of the word. Radicalism is nomething like sin in the heart, it is decidedly progressive, but in the wrong way. The Armstrong present Congress, for instance, is far ahead Beaver of any thing we have had before, in its radi- Bedford cal madness. The Senate is scarcely called Berks to order before Mr. Souner offers a bill " to Bradford guarantee a Republican form of Government Bucks in the District of Columbia"-this means ne- Butler gro suffrage at the Capitol of the Nation.
