Agricultural.

KEEPING POTATOES. Owing to the fact that potatoes generally command a better price in the spring than in the fall, many of our farmers would prefer keeping them until then, but for the trouble of keeping them. The main danger is of their rotting; but, if kept dry, this is not chargeable to their keeping, for the rot is in them when they leave the patch. Some take great pre-caution to prevent them from freezing and these precautions are too often the cause of their destruction. In this, as in many of their destruction. In this, as in many other farming operations, we should endeavor to follow nature as much aspossible. I have often plowed up potatoes, in the spring, which have remained in the ground, all winter, with but two or three inches of earth on top of them and yet they were as good as when fresh dug.— I will hazard the assertion that freezing will not injure potatoes, or any other root of fruit; it is the thawing which does the damage, and not the freezing as is generally supposed. Nor will gradual thawing hurt them; it is only when the thawing is too sudden that they are injured. If we take two frozen potatoes, apples, or we take two frozen potatoes, apples, or other fruit, and place one under the warm other fruit, and place one under the warm stove, and the other in water a little below the freezing point, we will find that the former will be spoiled, while the latter is not at all injured, because with it thawing is done gradually. Potatoes may be heaped up in the patch, and covered with two or three inches of dirt, well packed down, and they will keep, in spite of a dozen freezings and thawings, if kept dry. If kept in the cellar, they should be in a tight box, with a lid, so that they may always be in the dark, to prevent sprouting; for if they once begin to sprout the starch which gives them their mealiness is changed into other compounds more favorable to the vegetation of the sprouts. If, while thep otatoes are in the cellar, they shouldfreeze, do not wait for them to thaw, but cover them with straw, old cloths, sawdust or them with straw, old cloths, sawdust or shavings, and let them thaw very gradu-ally, and they will come out good. This will apply to turnips or any other root, as well as to apples and other fruits. The main thing is to keep them dry, and, if buried, to provide drains to carry away the water from the heap.—Correspondent Germantown Telegruph.

GARGET.—This disease, as it is generally known, occurs most frequently after cattle are turned out to pasture in the spring. Without stopping to describe the spring. Without stopping to describe the symptoms at length, we will merely say that it manifests itself in inflammation of the bag and bloody milk. Among the remedies most employed are garget root and saltpetre. Others have recommended the use of iodide potassium. The salts have the effect of increasing the action of the kidneys and may serve to refund the the kidneys, and may serve to retard the action of the milk glands, and thus relieve the inflamed condition of the parts affected. We are more inclined to the use of warm formentations than to cold baths, unless the bag is very hot and not hard But we have tried a different course for two years past, from all others recommended. When a cow comes home affected with garget, we have her carefully milked and then put her into the cow house where she can lie on a warm bed, and feed her on dry hay and allow her to go out to pasture but a short time the next day. In this way we have cured the difficulty this way we have cured the difficulty more rapidly than by any other method, and without the use of internal remedies or external applications at all. Even in this mode of treatment, we would not, in all cases, discard the use of apropriate medicines. During the past week we have cured a cow in two days that seemed to be very violently attacked from lying out over night on the cold ground.—

Main Farmer

VENTILATE THE CATTLE STABLES. Basement stables are too often deficient in ventilation. When, the weather is cold the farmer is induced to shut tight all the doors and windows, with the idea that thereby he makes the cattle most comfortable. If the stable is tight and filled with stock, he makes a groat mis-take in thus shutting off the supply of fresh air. Open the doors of such tight, crowded stables in the morning, and you can scarcely bear to enter them. A dense cloud of warm vapor rushes out into the frosty air. It the weather is extremly cold there is half an inch of frozen vapor on the inside of the window panes. The smell of the often breathed air is intoler-

But it is warm in the stable. The catthe have not suffered from cold. True, but they will suffer. Turn them out into the yard, and see how they will shiver in the cold air. It is like taking a man from a vapor bath, with the pores of his skin open with the heat, and his gar-ments wet with perspiration, and putting him into the cold. The cattle are dull in action, their eyes are heavy, and their hair stauding. They have rested badly. hair stauding. They have rested badly. They will never do well until you ventilate their stable. Give them plenty of fresh air. It costs nothing. Then, with good bed and fresh feed, you will not come to the conclusion that basement stables are unhealthy, or that your cattle do just as well, perhaps better, when wintered out of doors. # Eneat New Yorker.

MULES AND HORSE TEAMS, -There are a good many good things about mule teams, but you can't trust them, With steady work, if not abused, and with enough to cat they will do more work than most horses. No teams we ever saw will do more work than those little Kan-uck stallions, which twenty years ago were much more common than they are now. They would weigh about 800 to 1000 pounds apiece when fat, were as spry as cats, tough as knots, afraid of nothing, and reliable. As a general thing, too, they knew more than their drivers, about many things. All the horses we use for farm work are mares or geldings, and they are therefore more liable to disease, need more care, will not stand so hard work, have less pluck, are more apt to shy, etc. In all these particulars a horse is burt by gelding—but it does a mule good. Mules will bear a certain kind of abuse better than horses. They are very knowing, and teachable if they must learn, not naturally docile like a good horse. They was easily a constant of the make good farm teams, but are better adapted to the climate of the Southern States than to ours.

FARMING TOOLS,-There is a plough in the snow, and the horse-rake is up in the middle of the field. Neglect left them there when he went off fishing instead of finishing his work. Neglect will always be a shiftless, thriftless fellow. Bring them in and see if they want repairing. Yes, a tooth is gone, and a handle of the plow is split. Well, look about and examine the tools, and place those that want repairing in the shop. The first stormy day that comes they must be repaired, and so of all other tools that need mending, devote the stormy days to them till all are in order and ready for use. Every farmer should have such tools as are necessary to do the ordinary repairs of his farming tools. If he has not got such, let him get them forthwith. It will be money in his pocket.

INCHES IN A BUSHEL.-The standard UNCHES UN A BUSHEL—I me standard bushels of the United States contains 2150.4 cubic inches. The "Imperial bushel" is about 68 cubic inches larger, being 2218.192 cubic inches. Any box or measure, the contents of which are equal to 2150.4 cubic inches, will hold a bushel of grain. In measuring fruit, vegetables, coal and other similar substances, one-fifth must be added. In other words, a peck measure five times even full makes one bushel. The usual practice is to "heap the measure." In order to get on the fifth peck, measures must be heaped as long as what is to be measured will lie

MEDICAL PROPERTIES AND USES.

Buchu leaves are gently stimulant, with a peculiar tendency to the Urinary Organs, producing diuresis, and like other similar medicines, exciting diaphoresis, when circumstances favor this mode of action.

They are given in complaints of the Urinary Organs, such as Gravel, Chronic Caturrh of the Bladder Morbid Irritation of the Bladder and Urethra, Disease of the Prostrate, and Retention or Incontinuance of Urine, from a loss of tone in the parts concerned in its evacuation. The renerly has also been recommended in Dyspepsia, Chronic Rheumatism, Cutaneous Affections, and Dropsy. Dropsy.

Helmbold's Extract Buchu is used by person's from the ages of 43 to 25, and from 35 to 55 or in the decline or change of life; after confinement or Labor Pains; Bed-wetting in children.

Dr. Keyser is a Physician of over thirty years' experience, and a graduate of the Jefferson Medical College and of the University of Medleine and Surgery of Philadelphia.

Dear Sic.—In regard to the question asked me as to my opinion about Bucha, I would say that I have used and sold the article in various forms for the past thirty years. I do not think there is any formor preparation of it I have not used or known to be used, in the various diseases where such medicate agent would be indicated. You are aware as well as myself, that it has been extensively employed in the various diseases of the bladder and kidneys, and the reputation it has accquired in my judgment is warranted by the facts. accquired in my judgment is warranted by the facts.

I have seen and used; as before stated, every form of Buchu-the powdered leaves, the simple decoction, tineture, fluid extracts,—and I am not cognizant of any preparation of that plant at all equal to yours. Twelve years' experience ought, I think, to give me the right to judge of its merits, and without prejudice or partiality, I give yours precedence over all others. I do not value a thing according to its bulk, if I did other Buchus would out do yours, but I hold to the doetrine that bulk and quantity do not make up value—if they did a copper cent would be worth more than a gold dollar.

I value your Buchu for its effect on patients. I have ever seen cured with it, more diseases of the bladder and kidneys than I have ever seen cured with my other Buchu, or my other, proprietory compound of whatever
