have no knowledge, and I do not know what they would consider treason against the government, if you mean past acts. Gen. Lee.—I have no knowledge as to Gen. I.ee.—I have no knowledge as to what their views on that subject in the past are. Q. You understand my question. Suppose a jury was empanneled in your own neighborhood, taken by lot, would it be practicable to convict, for instance, Jefferson Davis for having levied war on the United States, and thus having committed the crime of treason? A. I think it would be very probable that they would not consider he had commited treason. I do not know whether a jury would keep the instructions of the court to convict the offender. Q. They do generally suppose that it was treason against the government, do they? A. I against the government, do they? A. I do not think that they do consider it, so far as I know, they look upon the action of a state in withdrawing from the govern-ment as carrying the individuals in it along with it; that the state was responsible for the act, and not the individual. I am now referring to the past. Q. State, if you please, and if you are disinclined you need not answer the question, what your need not answer the question, what your own personal views on that question were. A. That was my view; that act of Virginia in withdrawing herself from the Union carried me along as a citizen of Virginia, and that her laws and her acts wer binding on me. Q. And that you feel it to be your justification in taking the course you did? A Yos sir. O. I have been told. did? A. Yes, sir. Q. I have been told, General, that you have remarked to some of your friends, in conversation, that you were rather wheedled or cheated in that course by politicians? A. I do not recollect ever making that remark. I do not think I ever made it. Q. Ifthere be any other matter about which you wish to speak, doso freely. A. Only in reference to that last question put to me. I may have said, and I may have believed, that the position of the two sections which they held to each other was brought about by the politicians of the country—that the great masses of the people, if they understood the real question, would have avoided it; but not that I had been individually wheedled by the politicians.— But I did believe, at the time, that it was an unnecessary condition of affairs, and might have been avoided if forbearance and wisdom had been practiced on both General Lee then closed his evidence in stating (in reply to questions) that the people of the South would not like the obosed constitutional amendment: that he was not aware of any cruelties to Federal prisoners at Belle 1sle, though aware that they suffered many privations. He had no control or command whatever over the prisoners' depots, and did not know who commanded at Audersonville until he saw it in the papers.

Other Important Testimony

Gen. Terry and other officers testify that it would be unsafe to freedmen and unionists to remove the troops from Virginia. The change of feeling is described by these vitnesses to be due to President Johnson's liberal policy.

John Minor Botts and Colonel Lewis desiry to the remarkable statement that Mr. Lincoln made a remark to Messrs. Botts and Baldwin, in April, 1861, that he would evacuate Fort Sumter if the Virginia of the Company of the C ginia Convention would adjourn sine die. Mr. Botts was asked by the committee: Are you perfectly sure, according to your best recollection, that Mr. Lincoln told you that he had made that proposition to Mr. Baldwin, to evacuate Fort Sumter on this condition?"

Mr. Botts.-"I know it as well as I know you are standing before me, and that I am answering your question.

Mr. Botts then goes on to say that if Mr. Baldwin had fulfilled his duty the Virginia Convention would have adjourned. and that the ordinance of secession would not have been passed.

ITALIAN WOMEN.

Miss Eaton, a young English lady, is the author of two entertaining volumes, entitled, "Rome in the Nineteenth Century," from which we copy the following meiancholy account of the condition and character of Italian women: Generally speaking, the fair Italians are certainly not women of cultivated minds, to fine accomplishments. They are occupied with pursuits of the most puerile to vanity; they carry their passion for dress to the most ruinous extravagance, and are victims of langor, indolence and canai,— The Neapolitan ladies are more addicted to gambling than the Romans; though there are some here entirely given up to it, and on whose countenances I read, at the nightly fare table, the deadly passion

The Italian ladie- scarcely ever nurse their children, or attend to their education. The boys are instructed at home by some domestic chaplain, or placed in public seminaries. The girls are either brought up at home, where they have no proper governess--and their mothers are seldom qualified, and still more rarely disposed, to fulfil the office - or else they are educated in convents by mans, who are often ignorant, prejudiced, and bigoted, and perhaps less fitted for the important task of forming the female character than any other class of women; they escape from this gloomy prison to the world, without having formed a taste for any rational pursuits or domestic pleasures; are married to some man chosen for them by their parents, and to whom they must consequently be indifferent—and what better can be expected from them?

The exclusion of young unmarried wo men from society in this country, deprives at of one of its greatest charms. I am rea-ty, indeed, to own that too many young hadies, just comeout, weigh at times somewhat heavily on a party in our own country; but conceive what a blank the absence of the whole would make, and you will better understand the variety, and interest, and animation they give to it.

Though the fair sex in this country are generally extremely ignorant, there are certainly many learned women in Italy; so learned, that here, where there is no literary Salie law, the chairs in the university have often, both in past and present times, been filled by female professors. Signora Tambroni, late Professor of Greek in the University of Bologna, only died within these few mouths, though she retired from her situation a few years ago; not was she less remarkable for her piety and excellence than for her uncome

THE GREAT RULE OF CONDUCT.—The rule of conduct followed by Lord Erskine —a man of sterling independence of principle and scrupulous adherence to truth, are worthy of being engraved on every young man's heart. "It was a first communication of the standard control of the standard service of the young man's heart. "It was a first command and counsel of my earliest youth," mand and counsel of my earliest youth," he said, "always to do what my conscience told me to be a duty, and to leave the consequence to God. I shall carry with me the memory, and, I trust, the practice of this parental lesson, to the grave. I have hitherto followed it, and I have no reason to complain that my obedience to it has been a temporal societies. I have found been a temporal sacrifice. I have found it, on the contrary, the road to prosperity and wealth, and I shall point out the same path to my children for their pursuit."— And there can be no doubt, after all, that the only safe rule of conduct is to follow implicitly the guidance of an enlightened

res A London paper gives the following account of a new kind of cloth manufactured from pine leaves: "There are two establishments near Breslau, in one of which pine leaves are converted into weak with the other for investigation." wool, while in the other for invalids, the water used in the manufacture of pine water used in the manufacture of pine wool are employed as curative agent.—
The process for converting the pine needles into wool was discovered by Mr. Pannewitz. In the hospitals and penitentiaries and barracks of Vienna and Breslau, blankets made from that material are now exclusively used. One of their chief advantages is that no kind of vermin will lodge in them. The material is also used for stuffing, closely resembling horse hair and is only one-third its cost."

Domestic Habits of Our Ancestors Erasmus, who visited England in the early part of the sixteenth century, gives a curious description of an English inte-rior of the better class. The furniture was rough; the walls unplastered, but some-times wainscorted or hung with tapestry; and the floors covered with rushes, which were not changed for months. The dogs and cats had free access to the eatingrooms, and fragments of meat and bones were thrown to them, which they devour ed among the rushes, leaving what they could not eat to rot there, with the draining of beer-vessels, and all manner of unmentionable abominations. There was nothing like a reducement or electrons in nothing like refinement or elegance in the luxury of the higher ranks; the in-dulgences which their wealth permitted consisted of rough and wasteful profusion Salt beef and strong ale constituted the principal part of Queen Elizabeth's breakfast, and similar refreshments were served to her in bed for supper. At a series of entertainments given in York by the nobility in 1660, where each exhausted his invention to outdo the others, it was universally admitted that Lord Goring won the palm for the magnificence of his fancy. The description of this supper will give us a good idea of what was at that time thought magnificent; it consisted of four huge brawny pigs, piping hot, bitted and harnessed with ropes of sausages to a huge pudding in a bag, which served for a chariot.—The Silent Revolution.

JAPANESE USES OF THE FAN.-Neither men nor women wear hats, except as a protection against the rain; the fan is deemed a sufficient guard from the sun; and perhaps nothing will more strike the newly-arrived European than this fan, which he will see in the hand or the girdle of every human being. Soldiers and priests are no more to be seen without their fans than fine ladies who make of heirs the use to which fans are put in other countries. Amongst the men of Japan, it serves a great variety of purposes; visiters receive the dainties offered them upon their fans; the beggar imploring for charity, holds out his fan for the alms his prayers may have obtained. The fan serves the dandy in lieu of a whalebone switch ; the pedagogue instead of a ferule for the offending school-boy's knuckles; and, not to dwell too long upon the subject, a fan presented on a peculiar kind of salver to a high born criminal, is said to be the form of announcing his death doom; his head is struck off at the same moment that he stretches it towards the fan-

A FAST HORSE.—Dave C----is one of those characters that are to be found in almost every place. He is always driving a horse that he imagines is fast, and put-ting on even more style than the speed of the horse will warrant.

As he was driving into town recently, he overtook "Uncle Ike," who was well known as a dry joker, and who resolved to "take a little of the conceit out of him," if opportunity offered. As Uncle Ike was afoot, Dave stopped his horse and asked him to ride.

"No," replied Uncle Ike, "much obliged to you, but I guess not,"
"You had better do so," said Dave, eyeing his fast horse with much complacency. "I am going straight into the place, and will take you right through."
"Well," responded Uncle Ike, as he commenced to climb in, "I don't care if I do, as I have plenty of time, and am not in much of a hurry to get there!"

The horse went ahead, but Uncle 1ke never again received an invitation to ride

Congress at Prayers,-People who gaze upon the proceedings of the National House of Representatives at Washington from the galleries, are often astonished at the way in which the members conduct the way in which the members conduct themselves when at prayers. At noon the speaker's hammer falls and the Chaplain rises to supplicate a blessing. Now, the theory of legislation is that all the members rise for the same purpose; but in practice it is quite different. A recent observer, who took notice of the matter, says he counted fifteen of the members who stood up, of whom twelve assumed a devotional artitude. Upon gazing more devotional artitude. devotional attitude. Upon gazing more closely, however, he found that eight of them were reading newspapers that were lying on their desks. Twenty-one others were lounging about, seventeen were busy at writing, and three groups whom the fall of the hammer found in conversation, were very soon again engaged in earnest colloquy. This does not speak well for

XEW SKIRT FOR 1865-6. THE GREAT INVESTION OF THE AGE IN HOOP SKIRTS.

J. W. BRADLEY'S New Patent Duplex of two Elliptic of double Spring Skirt.

This Invention consists of Duplex of two Elliptic Pure Refined Steel Springs, ingeniously braided tightly and firmly together, edge to edge, making the toughest, most flexible, ensitie and durable Spring ever used. They seldom bend or break, like the Single Springs, and consequently preserve their perfect and beautiful Shape more than twice as long as any Single Spring Skirt that ever Has or Can be made.

The wonderful flexibility and great comfort and pleasure to any Lady wearing the Duplex Elliptic Skirit will be experienced particularly in all crowded Assemblies, Openas, Carranges, Radronal Cars, Church Pews, Arm Chairs, for Fromenade and House Press, as the Skirit can be folded when in use to occupy a small place as orsily and conveniently as a Silk or Muslim Press. A Lady having Enjoyed the pleasure, Comfort and Great Convenience of wearing the Duplex Elliptic Steel Spring Skirt for a single day will Never atterwards willingly dispense with their use. For children, Misses and Young Ladies they are superior to all others.

The Hoops are covered with 2 ply double twisted thread and will wear twice as long as the Single Steel Hoop skirts. The three bottom rods on every Skirt are also bomble Steel, and Iwies, or double covered to prevent the covering from wearing off the rods when dragging down stairs, stone steps, etc., etc., which they are constantly subject to when in use.

All are made of the new and elegant Corded Tapes, and are the best quality in every part, giving to the wearer the most graceful and perfect Shape possible, and are unquestionably the lightest, most desirable, comfortable and economical Skirt ever nade.

MR. H. T. HELMBOLD:

Dear Sir.—In regard to the question asked me as to my opinion about Buche. I would say that I have used and sold the article in various forms for the past thirty years. I do not think there is any form or preparation of it I have not used or known to be used, in the various diseases where such medicate agent would be indicated. You are aware as well as myself, that it has been extensively employed in the various diseases of the bladder and kidneys, and the reputation it has accquired in my judgment is warranted by the facts.

I have seen and used; as before stated, every Thave seen and used: as before stated, every form of Buchu—the powdered leaves, the simple decoction, theture, fluid extracts,—and I am not cognizant of any preparation of that plant at all equal to yours. Twelve years' experience ought, I think, to give me the right to judge of its merits, and without prejudice or partiality, I give yours precedence over all others. I do not value a thing according to its bulk, if I did other Buchus would out do yours, but I hold to the doctrine that bulk and quantity do not make up value—if they did a copper cent would be worth more than a gold dollar,

I value your buchu for its effect on patients. I have cured with it, more diseases of the bladder and kidneys than I have ever seen cured with my other Buchu, or any other proprietory compound of whatever name.

Respectfully, yours &c., G. H. KEYSER, M. D. 140 Wood Street, Pittsburgh Pa.
