Hints on Preserving Small Fruits I send for trial by the "Telegraph," housekeepers, who I presume all read this department, the following receipts, if they have them not already in use.— But there are always some—young house-keepers—to whom they may be of some little velves.

little value. It is generally known, that boiling fruit a long time, and skimming it well without the sugar, and without a cover to the prethe sugar, and without a cover to the pre-serving pan, is a very economical and ex-cellent way—economical, because the bulk of the scum rises from the fruit, and not the sugar, if the latter is good; and boil-ing it without a cover, allows the evapo-ration of all the watery particles there-from; the preserves keep firm, and well-flavored. The proportions are, three-quarters of a pound of sugar to a pound of fruit. Jam, made in this way, of currants, strawberries, raspberries or gooseberries, strawberries, raspberries or gooseberries, is excellent.

Currant Jelly.—With three parts of fine, red, currants, mix one of white currants putthem into a clean preserving-pan, and stir them gently over a clear fire until the Juice flows from them freely; then turn them into a fine hair sive, and let them drain well, but without pressure. Pass the juice through a folded muslin, or for a quarter of an hour; add for each pound, eight ounces of sugar coarsely powdered; stir this to it, off the fire, until it is dissolved; give the jelly eight minutes more of quick boiling, and pour it out. It will be firm and of excellent color and flavor. Be sure to stim off the color and flavor. Be sure to skim off the scum as it rises, both before and after the sugar is put in, or the preserve will not be clear. Juice of red currants, three pounds; juice of white currants, one pound; sugar, two pounds; eight minutes.
An excellent jelly may be made with equal parts of the juice of red and white currants, and raspberries, with the same proportion of sugar and degree of boiling as mentioned in the foregoing recipe.

Black Currant Jelly.—To each pound of picked fruit, allow one gill of watter; set them on the fire in the preserving-pan to scald, but do not let them boil; bruise them well with a silver fork, or wooder them with a silver fork, or wooden beater, take them off and squeeze them through a hair sieve; and to every pint of juice allow a pound of loaf or raw su-gar; boil it ten minutes.

Currant Jam.—Let the fruit be very ripe; pick it clean from the stalks; bruise it, and to every pound put three-quarters of a pound of leaf sugar; stir well, and boil half an hour, then add the sugar; boil and skim. boil and skim.

Currants Preserved.—Take ripe currants, free from stems, weigh them, and take the same weight of sugar; put a tea-the the same weight of sugar; put a teacup of sugar to each pound of it; then boil the syrup until it is hot and clear; turn it over the fruit; let it remain one night; then set it over the fire, and boil gently until they are cooked and clear; take them out of the jars or pots with the skimmer; boil the syrup until rich and thick; then pour it over the fruit. Currants may be preserved with ten pounds. rants may be preserved with ten pounds of fruit to seven of sugar. Take the stems from seven pounds of currants, and crush and press the juice from the remaining three pounds; put them into hot syrup and boil until thick and rich; put it into pots or jars and the next day secure as directed.

PHŒBE.

Our Recipe for Making Currant Wine.— We believe that we have as good currant wine as is made by the generality of peo-ple—some think it un-excelled. We confess we never drank better. The process of making is simple, but none of its requirements should be departed from. It

First, crush the currants effectually, First, crush the currants effectually, then place them in a strong bag, and press the juice out, by whatever means will effect it best; then, to each quart of juice add three pounds of double-refined sugar, and as much water as will make one gallon. Good brown sugar will answer, but not so well in retaining the fine flavor of the wine, though it will give it more body.

To make a ten gallon keg of wine, it will require ten quarts of currant juice, and thirty pounds of sugar; filled up with water. Be sure that the sugar is well dissolved, by rolling over or shaking the cask; but we prefer mixing all together before putting into the cask, in an open vessel, in which it should remain forty-sight hours, and frequently skimmed. eight hours, and frequently skimmed.— Fermentation will begin in one or two Fermentation will begin in one or two days, the bung being removed, and will continue some two or three weeks. After it has entirely censed fermenting, rack off carefully, then scald out the barrel, return the wine to cask, tightly bung up, and leave undisturbed for six months before using, when, if preferred, it can be bottled. It requires no clearing substance or spirituous liquor of any kind; as it is much better without either.

The keg, cask, or whatever vessel it may be in, should be full, and as fermentation is going on, and the extraneous substances thrown out of the bung, the vessel should be kept full by adding sufficient may be in the control of the bung, the vessel should be kept full by adding sufficient may be in the control of the bung, the vessel should be kept full by adding sufficient may be in the control of the bung, the vessel should be kept full by adding sufficient may be in the control of the bung, the vessel should be kept full by adding sufficient may be in the control of the bung, the vessel should be kept full by adding sufficient may be in the control of the bung, the vessel should be kept full by adding sufficient may be in the control of the bung.

"When a tree is attacked by the genuine disease, it first ripens its fruit, some weeks disease, it first ripens its fruit, some weeks prematurely, with dark discolorations of the flesh, and an insiped flavor. Very small wiry shoots spring out of the larger branches, the whole assumes a yellow and sickly appearance, and the tree scarcely ever survives the second year. The poison is conveyed to a healthy tree by pruning it with a knife previously used on a diseased one, and is conveyed by the pollen, as effected trees poison the nearest branches of those surrounding it. I never known trees affected by this disease, even in its incipient stages, that escaped by any managemant."

To BUTTER MAKERS.—As this is the To BUTTER MAKERS.—As this is the season of the year when those engaged in the dairy business are much troubled by a small fly (well known to housekeepers) getting in their milk and cream. I offer the following in the control of the getting in their milk and cream. I offer the following simple and efficacious remedy for the removal of the annoyance. Take the leaves of the elder bush, (very common in most localities,) and hang them in several places about your milk room or vault, renewing them as they become old and wilted. You will find yourself rid of a disagreeable vexation, at but small expense of time and trouble. Try it!

by any managemant."

BLACK KNOT ON THE PLUM.—A correspondent of the "Boston Cultivator" states that he has been very successful in removing or preventing the black knot, by burying iron turnings in the earth and then promptly cutting off whatever of the black knot may appear. He thinks that driving nails in the ground beneath the tree will answer the same purpose as the iron turnings. This is probably a remedy.

WASH FOR BODIES OF FRUIT TREES. Wash for Bodies of Fruit Trees.—One ounce of copperas to eight or ten gallons of water forms a good wash, and is advised for trial as preventive against blight. One pound of bleachers' soda and one gallon of water forms a wash that cleans off all insects, and leaves the trees with fresh, young looking healthy bark.—Horticulturist.

BUDDING .- Now is the time for budding; and it can be continued to the last week in July. Cherries and Peaches grow much readier by budding than grafting. Pears can also be budded, but for these we prefer the ordinary mode of graft-
