 which is called grease or yolk. This prewhich is called grease or yold. This pre-vents the felting of the wool, and its get-ting dry and breaking; it prevents also the noth attacking the fleece, and may have other uses, but a maximum good cf-fect is attained with a comparatively small portion of yolk. It seems to us that the greatest quantity really needed, can-not be more than twice the weight of the wool. Yet many will wring locks of fleece, and exhibit with great glee the drops of ail which exude from them, and actually claim it as a great merit. The production of 10, 15, or 20 pounds of this greasy soap, (which is not uncommon,) containing as it does about 33 per cent of potash, is a serious tax upon the vital powers of the sheep; it is moreover use-less, a tax upon the land, and an unnec-essary weight to transport to market.— Hence we condemn cocessively greasy CALL THIS WAY CABINET MAKING, CABINET MAKING, in all its various branches, carried on, and Bes-reaus, Secretaries, Work-stands, Parlor War Tables, Dining and Bredtinst Tables, Was stands of all kinds, Forene Bedstends, light ad low posts: Jenny Lind and Cottage Bedteeds Chairs of all kinds, Looking Glasses, and al other articles usually manufactured in this file workmen are men of experience, bis ma-terial the bost, and his work made in the late ity style, and all under his own supervision. Why not then breed out the horns? It may be easily done. Years ago an American sheep fancier ably advocated smooth, no-horned Merinos, and actually bred thema. And we must record our hope and anticipation that before long we shall have a breed of hardy, good-bodied, short-legged, smooth, fine-wool sheep, peculiarly. American in commonsense fitness for their uses. We were very much gratified to observe that the judges at the late New York State Fair at Saratoga awarded a first prize to a Vermont Merino ram nearly hornless-having a single horn not bigger than one's finger. A Vermont breeder of fame, not less than Mr. Hammond's, shook his head and said: "That never could have happened in Addison County." We hope it may some day. Mr. Hammond and the other sheep breeders of Vermont, who have made such improvements upon the original Spanish sheep, have certainly gained a much better form for their sheep. They are less leggy, their bodies are more com-pact and deeper, they are heavier fleeced, and there is more wool in the fleece. The wool besides grows all over the sheep, overing the legs and the bare spots which used to be on the bellies, and, though not so fine, it is of greater length. We give a fine portrait of one of these sheep, win-ner of one of the first prizes at the New England and Vermont Fair, on our first page. It exhibits well the striking pe-culiarities of the breed. It is claimed by the breeders, who appear to set a high value on wrinkles and grease, that these are marks of vigor of constitution and ability to transmit their good qualities to the progeny. This we are not inclined to dispute, put would like to have the proof.
