Agricultural.

PEACH CULTURE.

In all cases, peach trees should be planted when of one season's growth. The time of planting, whether Fall or Spring, is immaterial. In very severe climates, the Spring would be preferable; but in all the peach-growing belt of the United States, the choice between Fall and Spring planting is of little account. For orchard planting the ground should be marked out in furrows, about eighteen or twenty feet apart, and the trees planted to about the same depth as they stood in the nursery. The side limbs and tops should be cut off, leaving a straight stem of the desired height for forming a head. If the trees are planted in the Fall, this trimming and topping should be deferred till Spring. Low heads are desirable.—When the heads begin to form, proper care should be taken to prune out all unnecessary limbs, leaving three or four limbs in proper position to form the future tree. Shortening in about one-half the growth for the second and third years after planting, and keeping the inside of the tree clear of useless growth, is all that is required in the way of pruning before the trees commence bearing. The borers, which enter the body of the tree at or a little below the ground, should be removed from year to year. Many remedies for their prevention have been recommended, but experience has demonstrated that the best preventive is personal inspection of each tree, and removing with a knife, or other suitable instrument, the borers. Peach trees will succeed in any soil that will grow corn or potatoes, and require about the same cultivation as these crops. No manures are required until the trees have born their first crop. After the first crop, one hundred bushels of wood-ashes, or three hundred pounds of some standard super-phosphate, or four hundred pounds of bone-dust, to the acre, will restore the trees and prepare them for the next year.—Isaac Pullen, in Agricultural Report.

BREEDING YOUNG MARES.—"W. B.," of Nelson County, Virginia, asks: "Does breeding stop the growth of a young mare, that has not attained her full size, or does it materially injure her in any respect?"

The best horse breeders hold, we believe, with few, if any, exceptions, that having a colt not only does not hurt a young mare, but, on the contrary does her good, gives her constitution, bottom, and a vigor of digestive organs, add firmness of muscle, which last her through life with good, careful treatment. Thoroughbred or warm blooded mares that have proper care, gain sufficient maturity 2 to 2½ years, and cold blooded mares 3 to 3½, to take the horse. Of course, the fillies diet should be liberal, and regular, and her grooming thorough. For two growing horses stand at her rack. Thoroughbred horses arrive at maturity fully a year earlier than others. They grow faster, are not injured by breeding considerably earlier, than it would be safe to breed a common mare.

DEEP PLOWING.—"F. W.," a correspondent, in favor of deep plowing to secure good crops, says: Twelve years ago I sold my little farm, and the purchaser failing to pay for it it came back into my own hands some five years since. I found the building in a dilapidated state, the fences mostly used up for fire, the soil much deteriorated, and the place entirely overgrown with witch grass. The man that bought it pursued the skimming method of farming, by plowing only five or six inches deep, which rendered the soil too shoal to produce any remunerative crop without the application of much manure. The skimming manner of culture had, in fact been in operation so long, that the soil was about as incapable of producing a crop of any value as skimmed milk of producing good butter or rich cheese. Deep plowing was substituted for the "skimming" process and the land is now becoming productive again.

A WRINKLE ABOUT THE AGE OF HORSES.—A short time ago we met a gentleman from Illinois, who gave us a piece of information in regard to ascertaining the age of a horse, after he or she has passed the ninth year, which was new to us, and will be, we are sure, to most of our readers. It is this: after the horse is nine years old, a wrinkle comes on the eyelid at the upper corner of the lower lid; and every year thereafter he has one well-defined wrinkle for each year over nine. If, for instance, a horse has three wrinkles, he is twelve; if four, he is thirteen. Add the number of wrinkles to nine, and you will always get it. So says the gentleman; and he is confident it will never fail. As a good many people have horses over nine, it is easily tried. If true the horse dentist must give up his trade.

LICE, from many causes, show themselves, especially among ill-kept stock, more in spring than at any other season. They cannot stand regular carding and brushing, but if very bad, should be treated to an application of alum water, with a good rubbing, and subsequent carding and greasing, on the same day of two or three weeks in succession. Mercural ointment (unguentum), is sure death to the lice, and to the ox too, if too much be used. A lump as big as a hazlenut, rubbed up with a table-spoonful or more of lard is enough for an ox. Rub it in behind the horns and along the spine, then spread it by thoroughly rubbing with straw. Keep the animal from exposure to wet or storms.

FARM PROVERBS.—A correspondent of the American Agriculturist writes: 1. Use dilligence, industry, and proper improvement of time, to make farming pay. 2. Choose a farm with a soil either naturally dry or drained, not too level nor yet too steep, well fenced in proper sized fields, not too large. 3. Good, snug buildings, with dry, if not clean, yards and cellas, especially barn and stabling. 4. Economy in accumulating, saving, and properly using all measures and fertilizers possible, no matter how rich your land may be naturally. 5. Good and tolerable fast team, better smart than large. 6. Your farming implements well made, of good material, not too heavy. 7. Have work done in season. 8. Always sow good clean seed. 9. Do not harvest before your crop is fit to harvest. 10.—Don't keep more live stock on your farm than you can keep well. 11. House all things as much as possible—animals, untensils, and crops. 12. Sell when you can get a fair price, and do not store for rats and speculators.

ADVANTAGES OF DRAINING.—At a recent meeting of the Michigan State Agricultural Society the committee on Land Draining made a very interesting report in favor of this mode of preparing land for cropping. The following paragraph is especially worthy of consideration.—Thus:—"It is worthy of note that the early frosts of the past season, which proved so destructive generally, did not materially affect vegetation in lay drained lands, while it was the most destructive in other lands adjacent. This fact alone would seem to be sufficient to arrest the attention of farmers, and offers additional inducements to further investigation upon this subject."

MANURING WHEAT.—S. A. Simmons writes to the Rural New Yorker, that he tried different modes of manuring wheat, including on the sod in spring before breaking up, turning it under at the last plowing before sowing; top-dressing after plowing but before seeding, and top-dressing early in winter when the ground is frozen. He finds manuring on the sod in spring to be best. This result appears to confirm the practice often urged of top-dressing sod in autumn for corn, and owes its efficacy probably to the perfect manner in which the manure is diffused among the roots of the grass.

HIRED LABOR.—If a farmer does not hire any labor now, let it be his aim to employ as many men as he profitably can, and make arrangements to do so as soon as he can. Hired men are often very disagreeable associates, and the worst companions for one's children, but this need not be; lookout at once for good, steady, moral men, and sacrifice the profits of the farm rather than have a vicious, bad fellow about, though his work be never so needed. If we do our part to make the men comfortable and do them good, few will ill reward it.

A LECTURE TO YOUNG MEN.—Just published, in a sealed envelope. Price 6 cents. A Lecture on the nature, treatment and radical cure of Spermatorhœa, or Seminal weakness, nervous debility and impediments to Marriage generally. Nervousness, Consumption, Epilepsy and fits; Mental and Physical Incapacity resulting from Self Abuse, &c. By Robert J. Culverwell, M. D., author of the "Green Book," &c.

The world renowned author, in this admirable Lecture, clearly proves, from his own experience, that the awful consequences of self-Abuse may be effectually cured without Medicine, and without dangerous surgical operations, bougies instruments, rings, or cordials, pointing out a mode of cure at once certain and effectual, by which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically. This Lecture will prove a boon to thousands. Sent under seal to any address, in a plain, sealed envelope, on receipt of six cents or two postage stamps. A MAN OF A THOUSAND—A Consumptive Cured.—Dr. R. JAMES, a returned physician of great eminence, discovered, while in the East Indies, a certain cure for Consumption, Asthma, Bronchitis, Coughs, Colds, and General Debility. The remedy was discovered by him when his only child, a daughter, was given up to die. His child was cured, and is now alive and well. Desirous of benefiting his fellow mortals, he will send to those who wish it the recipe, containing full directions for making and successfully using this remedy, free, on receipt of their names, with two stamps to pay expenses. There is not a single symptom of Consumption that it does not at once take hold of and dissipate. Night sweats, peevishness, irritation of the nerves, failure of memory, difficult expectoration, sharp pains in the lungs, sore throat, chilly sensations, nausea at the Stomach, inaction of the bowels, wasting away of the muscles.
