The Southern Agriculturist and the Ne

It is manifestly to the agricultural interest of the South to use every means to render the condition of the black man as comfortable and happy as possible. And it is the resort of folly, if not crime, to represent their interests as conflicting, or that the white man at the South seeks to oppress the negro. What, in the condition of the South, would she do without the native labor of the freedman? How could her hand be cultivated without the only class of agricultural laborers within her borders? The white man, the Southern planter and agriculturist, needs labor in order to the efficiently productive cultivation of the soil. And the freedman needs employment. Where are interests more mutually dependent than exist under such a condition of things? Is it not to the interest of such to supply the other with the commodity needed by each?—The white man needs labor, and the black man needs employment. And there is no class in the South, except the class of treedmen who can supply the demand of the agricultural interest—and no other, except the agricultural, which can supply the demand of the freedman, which is employment. Seeing then that it is so manifestly to the interests of each to interchange commodities, how absurd and injurious it is to instil other than the kindchange commodities, how absurd and in-jurious it is to instil other than the kind-est feelings between the two races. The est feelings between the two races. The South is sufficiently wise and awake to her own necessities, to be aware that four million of her laboring population are not to be displaced and supplied with a similar class in a day by an equal influx of emigrants. And although the system of labor now prevalent excludes that absolute control which she has heretofore exceed. ercised over it, still she is sufficiently con-vinced that it is her wisest policy to make the best use of it which its condition allows, and to do all she can to encourage and foster it.—Norfolk Day Book.

Horns vs. no Horns.—Horns vs. no horns is ably handled (in theory) by J. W. C., and were it not that a lengthy experience contradicts that theory, it would be adopted. No horned cows have always (or at least for thirty years) been occupants of the old home farm, from one to half a dozen, sandwiched between uncivilized bovines with heathenish horns civilized bovines with heathenish horns belligerently produding from their frontispiece, yet those meek-looking Galloways, or other tribe, were quite as often the "masters of the situation" as their horned mates. They were noted for their fighting qualities; their purchase was not quite as long, but seemed to be to their advantage nevertheless. In getting throfences they seemed to consider horns as being in the way, judging from their style, when they lost sight of the orderly proprieties. Remembering, however, their excellent qualities at the pail, when we came into possession of a home of our own we bought a no-horned cow and installed her duly in the herd; she flogged the horned sisters duly and properly, and gave more milk than either of them; we were charmed—full pail, running over, a were charmed—Full pall, running over, a prize, surely—but alas! what she lacked in horn she made up in leg. I was kicked ed from the stool and the pail kicked after me. I expostulated gently—she pulled her head from the stanchions and walked out of the stable. Afterwards I stauchioned her at both ends, until her milking qualities attracted a purchaser, when she went to kick in other stables.—Moral.—The law of self-defense planted in human or other natures will always work itself out, "horns or no horns." If the lack of horns really made cattle more peaceable—but that if has not been removed to us—an glad your able correspondent had it removed for him.

EXTERNAL APPLICATION OF CASTOR OIL.—It is said castor oil is much better to soften and redeem old leather, than any other oil known. When bouts and shoes are greased with it, the oil will not at all interfere with the polishing afterwards, as in the case with lard, olive, or any other oil. In Harrisburg, the old leather hose of some of the fire companies were greased with it, and found to become almost as soft and flexible as new leather. Leather belts for transmitting motion in machinery will usually last three or five years, according to the wear and tear they are exposed to; when greased with castor oil they will last ten years or more, as they always remain flexible and do not crack. Besides this advantage, castor prevents slipping, so that a belt three inches wide, impregnated with it, will be equal to a belt four and a half inches wide without castor oil. It is necessary, however, to wait twenty are greased with it, the oil will not at all s necessary, however, to wait twentyfour hours till the oil has from the surface and penetrated the leather, otherwise the freshly greased surface will cause slipping. That rats and other vermin detest anything impregnated with castor oil and will not touch it, is another advantage.—Pittsbury Gazette.

RULES FOR COW MANAGEMENT.—Cows should run dry six weeks before calving—if milked closely toward calving the calves will be poorer.

A cow newly come in should not drink cold water in cold weather, but moderately warm slop. Calves intended for raising should be taken from the cow within a few days, and they will be less liable to suck when they are old. Feed them first on new milk for a while, then skim milk, taking care that all the changes are gradual, by adding only a portion at first.

Hearty enters are desirable for cows, and may usually be selected while calves. A dainty calf will be a dainty cow.

Heifers dried up too carly after calving, will always run dry about the same time in after years—therefore be careful to milk closely the first year, until about six weeks before calving. Spring cows should come in while they are yet fed on bay, and before they are turned to grass, which will be more likely to prevent caked bag and milk fever.

How to Raise Early Potatoes.—A correspondent of the Germantown Telegraph thus gives his method of raising early potatoes: "I thoroughly plough the ground as early as the spring will permit, put it in a nice condition, and strike out the rows the same as corn, three feet apart and shallow. Then drop the seed about fifteen inches apart and cover with a hoe; about one inch deep is sufficient to keep out frost, and the heat of the sun on the surface soon sprouts the potatoes. I generally grow Buckeyes for early potatoes. There may be earlier varieties, but not so good. Last season I used them continually from the 8th of Jane, and that was before there was any potatoes in the market, except a few from Norfolk. I don't want any long manure about my potatoes; would sooner have none. This plan of raising potatoes is equally good for the late ones, on stiff or wet lands." HOW TO RAISE EARLY POTATOES .- A cor-

PROPAGATION FROM ROOTS.—Root plants are freely grown from small pieces of roots cut from the parent plant. Very few amateurs are aware how easily they may increase their stocks of raspberries, blackberries, or seedling pears, apples, quinces, etc., by simple pieces of the roots. Early in the spring scrape the earth away carefully from around the tree or plant that you wish to propagate; then, with a sharp knife, cut from the roots pieces from an inch to three inches long; take then to a piece of well prepared ground, raked smooth on top; lay them on it, at distances of three to six inches apart; cover with an inch deep of clean sand, and then about two inches of peat muck, or light rotton leaf mold.—Nearly every piece or root will grow, and in the fall present you good strong plants. PROPAGATION FROM ROOTS .- Root

SAVE THE WASTE BONES.—There is in SAVE THE WASTE BONES.—There is in almost every family a daily waste of bones, that if saved and applied to the roots of the pear tree and grape vines in the garden, would supply yearly sufficient manure for one hundred plants.

We have seen the roots of a pear tree turn a two-thirds radius of the circle to embrace and feed upon a few bones that were buried on one side of the tree.—Hoare, in his "Treatise on the Vine," gives an account of the roots of the vines passing through dry clay to reach a bone, giving out no lateral or dibrous root until it reached the bone, but when there, sent out numerous fibers, perfectly embracing and covering it.

iy improper to answerthe puroposes for which they are recommended.

A judicious and really useful composition, free from these objections, has therefore long been desired by many gentlemen who have valuable horses, and are unwilling to trust them to the care of designing and protended Farriers. Their wishes are at length fully gratified by Dr. Heale being provailed upon to allow this valuable Embrocation (which has proved so efficacious to the various diseases) to be prepared and brought out to the public.

This Embrocation was extensively used by the Government during the war.

Mair Renewer. PHOTOGRAPH ONE DESIGNATION

TTS EFFECT IS MIRACULOUS.

The old, the young, the middle aged unite to praise HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER

It is an entirely new scientific discovery, combining many of the most powerful and restorative again in the vegetable kingdom.

We have such confidence in its merity and are so sure it will do all we claim for it, that we offer $1,000 Reward If the Sicilian Hair Renewer does not give sat-isfaction in all cases when used in strict accord-since with our instructions.

HALL'S Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer has proved itself to be the most perfect preparation for the Hair ever offered to the public. It is a vegetable compound, and contains no It is not a Dye, it strikes at the Roots and fills the glands with new life and coloring matter. IT WILL RESTORE GRAY HAIR TO

ITS ORIGINAL COLOR. It will keep the Hair from falling out, It cleanses the Scalp, and makes the Hale SOFT, LUSTROUS, AND SILKEN, IT IS A SPLENDID HAIR-DRESSING! No person, old or young, should fail to use it. It is recommended and used by the FIRST MED. ICAL AUTHORITY. Ask for Hall's Vegetable Signal Hair Renewer, and take no other.

The Proprietors offer the Sicilian Hair Re-newer to the public, entirely confident that it will bring back the hair to its original color, promote its growth, and in nearly all cases when it has fallen off will restore it unless the person is very aged.
