BLOODY PRIZE FIGHT .- The "bloods" ut town seem to manifest a strong inination to go in on their muscle. Every ew days we hear rumors of a "mill" bout to come off somewhere between a couple of "the fancy," but we regret to say that all our efforts to gather a few interesting items have thus far proved unuccessful. One moist evening last week, learning that there was to be an exhibition of "the manly art" in the vicinity of the gas works, we wended our way thither, only in time however to see one of the noble heroes, "fresh from the scene of his glory," leaving the grounds in company with a policeman. On Monday evening we heard it whispered that there was to be a "set-to" near the fair grounds; and impelled by a sense of public duty, we alleys-out of due regard for our character and standing in the community—and reached "the field of strife." Oh, if the good wives of Carlisle only knew the names of the individuals we saw dodging around the fence corners and through the corn-fields, there would be many a curfain lecture. It was astonishing th number of gentlemen we met who "just happened to take a walk out that way," and it was yet more assonishing to see their great surprise on learning that there was a prize-fight in prospect. Their astonishment and surprise was so great that it rooted them to the spot, and not one of them was able to get away.

Presently a buggy drove up, and an individual with a black moustache got out. He was surrounded by a bevy of friends, who engaged in a mysteriou conversation for several minutes, after which several of them got into the buggy and drove away. Shortly afterwards they returned and the other aspirant for the honors of the "P. R." arrived accompanied by a few "bottle-holders" and "backers." In the mean time we notic ed Burgess Campbell and several of his police scouting around, and about the time the partice were ready to smash each other's "mugs," they were "nabbed," taken before a magistrate and ound over to keep the peace. So the alcody prize-fight didn't come off, after --and we missed another local.

THE HARVEST HOME. -The inclemency of the weather prevented ourselves as well re many others from participating in the Harvest Home celebration at the Fair Grounds on Saturday. Notwithstanding the heavy rain, quite a number of persons assembled in one of the buildings. Thos. Lee, jr., President of the Agricultural So ciety, presided; and Col. Wm. M. Pen rose, in behalf of the Society, presented a silver pitcher to Judge Watts, in a neat and appropriate speech—alluding to the interest the Judge had taken in the cause of agriculture and to the organization growth and prosperity of the Society under his management. Judge Watts in reply thanked the donors for the handsom present, and gave a number of interesting facts in regard to the proposed experimen tal farms which are to be established under the auspices of the State. There are to be three of these farms, located respectively in the Eastern, the middle and the Western portions of the State, and placed under the charge of scientific and practical farmers. After the speeches, those who were present partook of a collation provided by Major Bretz, when the meet-

METEORIC SHOWER.—The shower of neteors which was expected last year, and which so many were disappointed in not seeing, is said to be coming this year for certain. So many were humbugged before, that people will be a little doubtful this time until they see the meteors.
