There was much superstition in the Scotch way of celebrating Halloween, but it seems much more sensible and civ- ilized than the methods now in vogue amongst the younger fry. INDIAN SUMMER.—We have a stranger visiting us this fall—one of the old abori- ginees—and he is welcomed by all olass- es. We have not seen him for years, which makes his visit all the more pleas- ant. We take him by the hand as an old and almost forgotten friend. The In- diang have faded away like the vapor of the morning, before the steadily advanc- ing tide of civilization's find yet the "In- dian Summer" occasionally visits us—the same as if this great, broad land were yet the hunting ground of the Red-man who once roamed over its boundless prairles, climbed its steep mountains, floated his light cance on the bosom of its rolling ri- vers, or on the clear blue and sparkling surface of its lakes; or snared the speck- led trout in the tumbling rills which fiashed like gems along the hill-side. It came to us during the past, fornight, just in the same mysterilors way it did hin- dreds of years ago. There is the same hazy, smoky atmosphere—the 's same warm, idle, listless, we had almost gaid sensual breath of Southern zephyrs—as was feit in the days when the Indians sallied forth in quest of food for the long wintor months, and the squawe gathered in the Indian corn. Little children of to-day, enticed by the warm and delicious	part in it. LIME YOUR LANDS.—The extent to which farm land may be improved is on- ly realized by a few farmers, and they make fortunes. The improvement made upon land by a few bushels of lime, if properly inderstood by owners generally, would induce them to see to it that their fields never lack for an article so easily procured. The very first crop will pay for the cost of the lime, and it will not wear out for years., Much of the land in this county is suffering for the want of lime, and owners ought to supply the want; It is the duty f the wealthy who own lands to improve them all they are susceptible of, in order to give employment to those too poor to own lands, as well as to in- crease their own wealth. In some local- ities there is an excuse for not liming lands in the scarcity of limestone; but in a county which abounds in lime, as this one does, there is no excuse at all, and nobody ought to need one. WHEAT CROP.—Although the yield of wheat during the present season has been large, the quantity on hand was so sniall at the time the new crop was harvested it is generally conceded we shall have little more than sufficient to supply home consumption. It is not probable, there- fore, that the decline in price will be as grert as was at first supposed, from the fact that in the calculation the limited supply on hand was not taken into the account. There was much superstition in the Scotch way of celebrating Halloween, but it seems much note sensible and civ- ilized than the methods now in vogue amongst the younger fry. INDIAN SUMMER.—We have a stranger visiting us this fall—one of the old abori- ginees—and he is welcomed by all olass- es. We have not seen him for years, which makes his visit all the more pleas- ant. We take him by the hand as an old and almost forgotten friend. The In- dians have faded away like, the vapor of the morning, before the steadily advanc- ing tide of civilization's faid yet the "In- dian Summer" occasionally visits us—the same as if this great, broad land were yet the hunting ground of the Red-man who once roamed over its boundless prairles, climbed its steep mountains, floated his light cance on the bosom of its rolling ri- vers, or on the clear blue and sparkling surface of the likes; or snared the speck- led trout in the tumbling rills which finshed like gems along the hill-side. I the came to us during the past formight; just in the same mysterious way it did hun- dreds of years ago. There is the same hazy, smoky atmosphere—the' same warm, idle, listless, we had almost gaid sensual breath of Southern zephyrs—as was felt in the days when the Indians sallied forth in quest of food for the long winter months, and the squaws gathered in the Indian corn. Little children of to-day, enticed by the warm and delicious air, 'engage in out-door 'sports,' just as the little '' papooses'' who kicked up their heels, shot their tiny arrows, or wandered through the warm and delicious air, 'engage in out-door 'sports,' just as the little '' papooses'' who kicked up their heels, shot their tiny arrows, or	part in it. LIME YOUR LANDS.—The extent to which farm land may be improved is on- ly realized by a few farmers, and they make fortunes. The improvement made upon land by a few bushels of lime, if properly inderstood by owners generally, would induce them to see to it that their fields never lack for an article so easily procured. The very first crop will payfor the cost of the lime, and it will not wear out for years., Much of the land in this county is suffering for the want of lime, and owners ought to supply the want; It is the duty f the wealthy who own lands to improve them all they are susceptible of, in order to give employment to those too poor to own lands, as well as to in- crease their own wealth. In some local- ities there is an excuse for not liming lands in the scarcity of limestone ; but in a county which abounds in lime, as this one does, there is no excuse at all, and nobody ought to need one. WHEAT CROP.—Although the yield of wheat during the present season has been large, the quantity on hand was so small at the time the new crop, was harvested it is generally conceded we shall have little more than sufficient to supply homic consumption. It is not probable, there- fore, that the decline in price will be as grert as was at first supposed, from the fact that in the calculation the limited supply on hand was not taken into the account. FIRE.-On last. Sunday morning the . . . Engine House at the ore bank near the South Mountain, was consumed by fire. Slight damage was done to the ore washer. The principle loss to Messrs. Rich-ards & Martin, will be the delay in making the necessary repairs. We presume with this issue, the washer will be in operation and the usual amount of ore delivered for shipment.-Shippensburg News. Democrat.

HEAVY DAMAGES .- The case of Jacob R. Goodman' vs. the Pennsylvania railroad company was tried in the Lancaster county court last week. The plaintiff was driving home from Lancaster with his wife, and while crossing the Pennsylvania rail-road, where it intersects the Colebrook, road, his, yehicle was struck by the fast line west, his wife thrown out and so much injured that she died a few hours afterward, while he himself was considerably hurt. Suit was brought to recover damages for the killing of, his wife. Forty-seven witnesses were examined. The jury found for the plaintiff in the sum of nine thousand one hundred and fifty dollars. PREDICTIONS ABOUT THE WINTER .- We see it generally stated that European meteorologists are predicting an early and hard winter this year, for the reason that the birds of passage have begun their migration southward at least a month earlier than usual. Storks, wild ducks, and other birds are reported to be pass ing southwards over France' and Belgium vere winter, have, from time to time, been noted in our own country, and we are inclined to attach more importance deserve.
