

"DROWNING HIS CATS AT BALDWIN."

When the Whig party, in 1852, became unpopular with the people, its adherents attempted to practice a ruse by which they hoped to save it from destruction and to provide themselves with Government pickings.

They had the old strategy of the party—put their heads together, and concluded to repudiate and drop the representative men of their party who had been spoken of as candidates for the Presidency, and to nominate a military chieftain, whose political opinions were unknown.

They were not to be diverted from their purpose—the nomination of the military party—by the military popularity of Gen. Scott or by anything else. They declared that the man who accepted a nomination from that party should not have their support, and must "go under."

It was not the man they looked at, but the principles of the party he represented by accepting the nomination. Gen. Scott's perfect military record, and entire ignorance of the workings of our Government—could not read "the signs of the times," and he felt confident of success, for he knew that men of all parties admired his military character.

But, the poor old General did not know the people; he was the most egregiously deceived man that ever appeared to a high position. Of the thirty States which then voted, Franklin Pierce carried it only seven, and Gen. Scott three. It was a Waterloo defeat to the old hero, and at the same time a most withering rebuke to the political trimmers who had made him the Whig candidate.

What has become of "Gen." Phil Sheridan? We have not heard of him since the elections. We hope no harm has overtaken the ex-satrap, for we desire to see him engaged by the Democratic Committee to travel next fall.

FORNEY ON "INGRATITUDE."

If there be any trait in a man's character that deserves to be despised and loathed, it is the trait of ingratitude. The man who forgets his benefactor, carries in his bosom a colossal heart.

When we have a man like Forney, who has been the poison-sting of ingratitude on more than one occasion. This, however, is the experience of nearly all editors, and we feel no desire just now to moralize on the subject.

We are free to confess these are serious charges, and with the loathing we feel for the man guilty of the sin of ingratitude, we have, at first glimpse and at first impulse, almost yielded to the conclusion that he is a traitor.

But, in coming to this man Forney, who writes long homilies on "Ingratitude," we have not betrayed every political friend he ever had. Ingratitude, indeed! Why, Mr. Forney has been the most unfeeling, the most unscrupulous ingrate in America.

It will not do for Forney then to talk about the ingratitude of other men. On that subject his lips should be forever sealed, for of all men we ever knew John W. Forney is most culpable as an ingrate.

It takes four columns of a newspaper to contain the names of Philadelphia men made fortunes out of the late war.

"POSTPONED AS A MATTER OF POLICY."

A late letter to Forney's Press, dated Nashville, Tenn., says this: "The State Teachers' Association met at the Nashville Convention last week."

It seems that the question of uniting the white and colored schools at Nashville—that is compelling white children to sit side by side and mingle with little lousy negroes—was only postponed because some of the "most influential of the Northern teachers opposed it as a matter of policy."

Well, well. The people next fall will decide the Negro party not merely out of policy, but as a matter of justice to every white man, woman and child in our land.

Under that law a greedy negro can take the side of a white man, and get a seat in any car that pleased, and a wide stride towards negro-equality.

At the re-assembling of the Rump, on Thursday last, the eight so-called members from Tennessee, who had been voted for by Brownlow's negroes alone, approached the speaker's chair to be sworn in.

The negro party is splitting into pieces. Greeley says the negro must be made in all respects the equal of the white man.

THE FORT DELAWARE FRAUD.

The certificates, orders, &c., in relation to the Fort Delaware fraud, prepared by the Republicans at the late elections in this State, have been published, and prove it to have been of a most disgraceful character, worthy of the party in whose interest it was consummated.

Under that law a greedy negro can take the side of a white man, and get a seat in any car that pleased, and a wide stride towards negro-equality. It is not a matter of policy, but as a matter of justice to every white man, woman and child in our land.

At the re-assembling of the Rump, on Thursday last, the eight so-called members from Tennessee, who had been voted for by Brownlow's negroes alone, approached the speaker's chair to be sworn in.

At the re-assembling of the Rump, on Thursday last, the eight so-called members from Tennessee, who had been voted for by Brownlow's negroes alone, approached the speaker's chair to be sworn in.

At the re-assembling of the Rump, on Thursday last, the eight so-called members from Tennessee, who had been voted for by Brownlow's negroes alone, approached the speaker's chair to be sworn in.

At the re-assembling of the Rump, on Thursday last, the eight so-called members from Tennessee, who had been voted for by Brownlow's negroes alone, approached the speaker's chair to be sworn in.

WENDELL PHILLIPS'S VIEW OF THE MEXICAN QUESTION.

Ben. Wade's Personality—His View of the Mexican Question.

Wade's Personality—His View of the Mexican Question. "I asked Mr. Wade if he had ever conversed with General Grant on political topics. I have never done so," said he, but I never could bring him out.

At the Lancaster Teachers' Institute, last week, a political feud, styling himself Rev. W. V. Gotwald, declared in a stump speech that "to-day in the District of Columbia, rebels are disfranchised and loyal colored men are enfranchised."

At the Lancaster Teachers' Institute, last week, a political feud, styling himself Rev. W. V. Gotwald, declared in a stump speech that "to-day in the District of Columbia, rebels are disfranchised and loyal colored men are enfranchised."

At the Lancaster Teachers' Institute, last week, a political feud, styling himself Rev. W. V. Gotwald, declared in a stump speech that "to-day in the District of Columbia, rebels are disfranchised and loyal colored men are enfranchised."

At the Lancaster Teachers' Institute, last week, a political feud, styling himself Rev. W. V. Gotwald, declared in a stump speech that "to-day in the District of Columbia, rebels are disfranchised and loyal colored men are enfranchised."

WENDELL PHILLIPS'S VIEW OF THE MEXICAN QUESTION.

Ben. Wade's Personality—His View of the Mexican Question.

Wade's Personality—His View of the Mexican Question. "I asked Mr. Wade if he had ever conversed with General Grant on political topics. I have never done so," said he, but I never could bring him out.

At the Lancaster Teachers' Institute, last week, a political feud, styling himself Rev. W. V. Gotwald, declared in a stump speech that "to-day in the District of Columbia, rebels are disfranchised and loyal colored men are enfranchised."

At the Lancaster Teachers' Institute, last week, a political feud, styling himself Rev. W. V. Gotwald, declared in a stump speech that "to-day in the District of Columbia, rebels are disfranchised and loyal colored men are enfranchised."

At the Lancaster Teachers' Institute, last week, a political feud, styling himself Rev. W. V. Gotwald, declared in a stump speech that "to-day in the District of Columbia, rebels are disfranchised and loyal colored men are enfranchised."

At the Lancaster Teachers' Institute, last week, a political feud, styling himself Rev. W. V. Gotwald, declared in a stump speech that "to-day in the District of Columbia, rebels are disfranchised and loyal colored men are enfranchised."

THE TENNESSEE MEMBERS.

At the re-assembling of the Rump, on Thursday last, the eight so-called members from Tennessee, who had been voted for by Brownlow's negroes alone, approached the speaker's chair to be sworn in.

At the re-assembling of the Rump, on Thursday last, the eight so-called members from Tennessee, who had been voted for by Brownlow's negroes alone, approached the speaker's chair to be sworn in.

At the re-assembling of the Rump, on Thursday last, the eight so-called members from Tennessee, who had been voted for by Brownlow's negroes alone, approached the speaker's chair to be sworn in.

At the re-assembling of the Rump, on Thursday last, the eight so-called members from Tennessee, who had been voted for by Brownlow's negroes alone, approached the speaker's chair to be sworn in.

At the re-assembling of the Rump, on Thursday last, the eight so-called members from Tennessee, who had been voted for by Brownlow's negroes alone, approached the speaker's chair to be sworn in.

At the re-assembling of the Rump, on Thursday last, the eight so-called members from Tennessee, who had been voted for by Brownlow's negroes alone, approached the speaker's chair to be sworn in.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

The House and Senate Congressmen have been engaged in a protracted session of the House and Senate, and are expected to adjourn on the 29th inst.

The House and Senate Congressmen have been engaged in a protracted session of the House and Senate, and are expected to adjourn on the 29th inst. The House and Senate Congressmen have been engaged in a protracted session of the House and Senate, and are expected to adjourn on the 29th inst.

The House and Senate Congressmen have been engaged in a protracted session of the House and Senate, and are expected to adjourn on the 29th inst. The House and Senate Congressmen have been engaged in a protracted session of the House and Senate, and are expected to adjourn on the 29th inst.

The House and Senate Congressmen have been engaged in a protracted session of the House and Senate, and are expected to adjourn on the 29th inst. The House and Senate Congressmen have been engaged in a protracted session of the House and Senate, and are expected to adjourn on the 29th inst.

The House and Senate Congressmen have been engaged in a protracted session of the House and Senate, and are expected to adjourn on the 29th inst. The House and Senate Congressmen have been engaged in a protracted session of the House and Senate, and are expected to adjourn on the 29th inst.

The House and Senate Congressmen have been engaged in a protracted session of the House and Senate, and are expected to adjourn on the 29th inst. The House and Senate Congressmen have been engaged in a protracted session of the House and Senate, and are expected to adjourn on the 29th inst.