The Presi-dent, after setting forth at length his view of the case, assigns a special ground for the suspension of Mr. Stanton. It will be recollected that during the summer of 1866, General Baird telegraphed from New Orleans to the Sceretary of War, and feeling stronger, he told his family to finish the work, that he would be better in a short time. Returning about seven o'clock, they found him dead in his bed. He was about sixty years of age. that a convention was about to assemble
